Quarrels that are Contagious.

It is unreasonable and unkind to insist that your friends shall share your quarrels. Because a misunderstanding has arisen between yourself and some acquaintance, there is no excuse for you drawing your friends into the difficulty. It is not even wise to discuss the matter with one after another. Quarrels are like certain diseases—the worst of them is their tendency to spread. Make it your business to see that in case of an unpleasantness between yourself and another, no third person catches the disease from you.—Young Peoples Weekly.

Read It Through.

To use an eighteenth century phrase, this is an "o'er true tale." Having happened in a small Virginia town in the winter of 1902 it is a very much of the present. Up to a short time ago Mrs. John E. Harmon, of Melfa Station, Va., had no personal knowledge of the rare curative properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. "Last January," she says, my baby, took a dreadful cold and, at one time I feared she would have pneumonia, but one of my neighbors told me how this remedy had cured her little boy and I began giving it to my baby at once and it soon cured her. I heartily thank the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for placing so great a cure within my reach. I cannot recommend it too highly or say too much in its favor. I hope all who read this will try it and be convinced as I was." Sold by W. R. Hambrick.

The Dog Never Looked At It.

Sometimes one discovers in an animal a wisdom lacking in some boys of his acquaintance. A public speaker says:

I once learned a lesson from a dog we had. My father used to put a bit of meat or biscuit on the floor near the dog, and say, "No," and the dog knew he must not touch it. But he never looked at the meat. He seemed to feel that if he looked at it the temptation would be too strong; so he always looked steadily at my father's face.

A gentleman was dining with us one day, and he said, "There is a lesson for us all. Never look at temptation. Always look away to the Master's face."

It is claimed that by the application of scientific agriculture Palestine may be transformed, from a country capable of supporting but 600,000, to one capable of supporting 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 people.

There is another big scandal involving the chief law officer of the Post Office Department. A few fraudulent get rich quick concerns have from time to time been put on the fraud list when they are unable to nab the gullible millions through the mails. But the large majority of three concerns are untouched although the attention of the Post Office Department has been called to them again and again. They are known to every body except the acetate detective of the P. O. D. whose duty it is to find and prosecute them. Now it appears that a brother-in-law of the Officer of the department whose duty it is to bring these concerns to justice has been connected with one of the largest of these fraudulent concerns.

The Test of Little Trials.

It is the little every-day vexation that test our cheeriness and philosophy. Great trials put us on our mettle. We realize that we must conquer or be crushed, and so many a one faces serious illness or a disastrous change of fortune with an equanimity that fails completely when the breakfast bacon is scorched or the rain interferes with some plan for an outing.—Exchange

Greensboro Nurseries.

Greensboro and Connett's Southern Early peaches are now all the talk among the fruit growers. Look out for these two peaches and remember that they were introduced by John A. Young, proprietor of Greensboro Nurseries. Fruit growers shipping by the car load, say that they are the money makers. Men who have introduced other varieties and talked them until they were hoarse, are now bound to acknowledge that these two are the leaders. They are being planted by the thousand. To be sure of getting the genuine, you should order from headquarters.
