A DISAPPOINTMENT.

Those who had hoped that the ruling of the Supreme Court regarding the American Tobacco Company meant a release from former unjust practices by this Company will hardly favor the plan of reorganization, or disintegration as it is called.

It is said the plans for the reorganization of the American Tobacco Company to conform to the mandate of the Supreme Court provided for the disintegration of the parent company into three separate companies to be known as the American Tobacco Company, the Lorillard Company and the Leggett & Meyers Company. Each individual company to own stock in the other two companies.

To us this a sore disappointment, for it looks too much like a sham affair. What difference does it make by what name you call it, or whether by one or a half dozen names, if the same man or men are to have power of control. And that is just what this disintegration means if we have read it aright.

When will come any competition between the American Tobacco Company and the Lorillard Company and the Leggett & Meyers Company when they are one and the same. Will not each buyer representing these different companies have the same limit on all tobaccos? Then where is any competition?

Tobacco is selling better than for the past few years, but if this "disintegration" is the last of the suit brought under the Sherman Act, then our farmers had just as well give up all hopes of ye olden times, when tobacco sold on its merits and brought sixty, and seventy, and even one hundred dollars a hundred pounds.
