M'NAMARS ARE GUILTY.

Confesses to Having Caused Destruction of Los Angeles Times Building.

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.—Startling as was the sudden confession of guilt yesterday on the part of J. N. McNamara, secretary and treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers and his brother, James B., the one of causing the the Llewellyn iron works explosion and the other the Los Angeles Times disaster that costs 21 lives, more amazing to the people here today was the statement that big business men brought about the surrender in a novel way. According to the story the application of the golden rule and the spirit of conciliation started the ball rolling. More than a dozen prominent business men, who feared continuation of the trial would be dangerous to the city's welfare and said to have participated in bringing about the compromise.

Charles J. Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, reiterated today that the compromise was best for all concerned.

James B. is to get life imprisonment instead of the death penalty, and John J. a brief sentence, while to the state came victory.

As far as the district attorney's office is concerned, the explanation is that the men pleaded guilty because they were guilty.

Members of the District Attorney Frederick's staff says the defense saw the handwriting on the wall as a result of the complete chain of evidence as well as the Franklin bribery incident. A strong factor in the action of the defense is said to have been the physical condition of James B., whose heart is weak.

Pronouncement of sentence is now in the hands of Judge Bordwell, who has set December 5th as the date. It is announced that the prosecution of Burt H. Franklin, a defense detective charged with bribing a prospective juror, will not be abandoned.

The estimated cost of the trial to the state is two hundred thousand dollars, and the abrupt ending is supposed to have saved the county nearly a million dollars.
