SENATE ADJOURNS IN MIDST OF THRILLING DEBATE OF DISLOYALTY

Stung by the Replies to His Speech LaFollette Makes Unsuccessful Effort to Get Time for a Response.

LAFOLLETTE IS DENOUNCED

Washington, Oct. 6.—In the midst of a thrilling debate of disloyalty of Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, the extraordinary session of Congress, which began April 2, and generally regarded as the most momentous in American history, was adjourned sine die at 3 p. m. today.

Vehement criticism of the Wisconsin senator and his own defense occupying virtually the entire day, marked the close of the war session, with other customary adjournment and legislative procedure, including President Wilson's attendance at the capitol. The usual eleventh hour grist of legislation was put through, following six months of important war action, and tonight most of the members who had remained for the final days were en route home to await the call of the next session December 3.

The Galleries Crowded.

With the galleries crowded to their capacity, the senate chamber was the scene of five hours stirring discussion of Senator LaFollette's attitude but in the house there was little to mark the occasion except submission of a committee report mildly censuring Representative Heflin, of Alabama, for criticizing fellow members in connection with Count von Bernstorff's request for Berlin to furnish funds to influence Congress.

The day began with three hours speech by Senator LaFollette in defense of criticisms of war questions. Without mentioning his recent address before the Non-Partisan league at St. Paul, for investigation of which arrangements were completed today by a senate sub-committee, or naming any of his critics, Mr. LaFollette read a carefully prepared defense of his course and declared his intention to follow it in the future. He was interrupted only once and was applauded by the galleries when he closed.

LaFollette Stung by Replies.

Senators Kellogg, of Minnesota and Fall, of New Mexico, Republicans, and Robinson, of Arkansas, Democrat, replied with criticism of Mr. LaFollette's public statements. They denounced what they termed his unpatriotic stand, Senator Robinson asserting that if he held such opinions he would seek a place in the German Bundesrath. Statements accented to the Wisconsin member in his St. Paul speech were flatly contradicted, especially that regarding Former Secretary of State Bryan's knowledge of ammunition being on the Lusitania before she sailed on her fatal voyage.

Apparently stung by the criticisms, Senator LaFollette made an unsuccessful effort to get time for a response. He succeeded, in stating that he wished to make known authority for his declaration regarding the Lusitania and tonight announced he would issue a public statement tomorrow. On Monday the senate privileges and elections-investigating sub-committee will meet to investigate his St. Paul speech, including the Lusitania incident.

BOONE AND PERSON AND THE COUNTY FAIR

I have been in the county now nearly four years, and it seems that the unrighteous forces of our county are not able to place me. Therefore I feel that it is best for me and the forces of righteousness to speak once more in behalf of my contentions. There are many in and out of the church that have eyes to see and see not, that seem to think that it is amazingly strange that I should be so pronounced in my protest of the unrighteous side of our County Fair. Now I want it understood once for always that I have given my life without reservation for these four years for the growth and development of our county morally, mentally, and materially, and mean to continue to fight for these so long as I am a citizen of Person county. No man in Person county has suffered more agony in trying to give birth to higher morals, and cleanse of moral danger I have hurled er living. In order to do this in every my body between danger and the life of our people, and have often stood alone fighting for the destruction of moral evil, and for the lives of our sons and daughters with my soul torn and bleeding with criticism and rebuke.

I have worked for more and better education, for better high ways, cleaner politics, for the destruction of the liquor traffic, and for holy living. Why should you think it strange for me to raise a protest and refuse to endorse the county fair as it has been run for the past three years? I stand precisely where I have always stood, and God being my helper will for ever stand. I believe in both destructive and constructive work. One with out the other is a failure.

The first reason I had for knocking the Fair, was not the Fair itself. For this I not only endorse, but am a strong advocate of a good fair. I know of nothing that would be more stimulating than for our farmers to be brought together, and to learn and be taught how to farm more intelligently. This is not the fight. The fight is against the rotten and demoralizing carnival run in connection. This no man that hungers for righteous living could endorse.

The first fair we had I made a made a kick, and the President made a promise that the fair for 1916 would be a clean one. And behold it was worse than the first. After seeing that a promise ment nothing, I made up my mind that I would make a stump campaign against it. But when the President came before the people in and out of the press promising emphatically that nothing questionable for the year 1917 would be tolerated, I gave way, and ask many of the farmers to help make the Fair a success. But the carnival this year was far more questionable than ever before. In proof of this the carnival was run on a larger scale. The gambling dens were in every quarter. At least one Methodist preacher called them gambling dens. Many of our best people called them places of robbery. The leading Baptist preacher of Roxboro called them money traps. Call them what you may, no son of Person county would be allowed to run such dens on the streets of Roxboro. In proof of the fact that they were places of gambling, and contrary to the law of our country, our sheriff on first sight had six of these places closed.

In the second place many of the shows were vulgar, indecent, and not fit places for our wives and children, and holy men. I dare not go any where that is not a fit place for the womanhood of our country. I have my first man to find that has any self respect, but what said these hellish holes were demoralizing to our country.

One man said he went in 49 and had a hugging frolic with one of the girls, and he thought she was alright. Wait a minute. Nothing but the passion of a brute would ever prompt a man to go behind curtains, and lock his arms about the body of a strange woman in a questionable place. I love pure womanhood, and would give my life in her defence. But believe me, no pure, holy woman would ever consent to place her pure body in the arms, or hands of unrighteousness and then cling to you begging for a drink.

Several have said that most of these girls were married women, and their husbands were always there to take charge of them as they came out of the hands of other men. In the name and for the sake of virtue what could possibly prompt a man to hug, frolic, and dance, with a strange married woman other than a brutish and friendish hope. This is 49. Yet one of the stock holders told me this was clean in comparison with other enclosures.

Now sons and daughters of Person county, in the face of all this filth and rot, the Courier, our County paper, our conscience creator, our moral director, had the following to say in an effort to boost the fair. "The midway this year is far better, cleaner and a higher class than ever before on the fair grounds. The management of the association promised the people of Person county that nothing indecent now would gambling be allowed at this fair, and fater a careful examination by the writer, we found that the association had kept its word. And too, the attractions are good, and well worth the price of admission." Read this over again and notice every word in it. Everything is blue to the man wearing blue glasses. I hate to say what I am going to say, but to be honest I must. During my four years stay in your county, the Courier has boosted better roads, better schools, and better farming. This the Courier should have done, but at no time and under no circumstances has it boosted better morals and cleaner living. But on the other hand has endorsed and boosted questionable thing that has been in our county, even to that rotten contemptible thing stuck under the nose of our wives and children on the Court House Square. When ever a paper over looks the morals of our people it has no mission. I am contending for the moral Children of Person you see my position, and moral betterment of our home county. Give me holy womanhood, and pure manhood, and away with your filthy lure, coming out of places of indecency.
