

First Yankee Doodle President

President Calvin Coolidge

Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts is our first Yankee Doodle President, being born on the Fourth of July, fifty-one years ago—1872 at Plymouth, Vt. He is the third vice-president from that State—and it is a coincidence that one of the other two, Chester A. Arthur, became president upon the assassination of James A. Garfield. The third was Levi P. Morton, vice-president to President Harrison.

AUDITORS ADMIT DEFICIT AND MAXWELL WINS FIGHT

Raleigh, Aug. 5.—With the North Carolina intellectual heavyweight championship tucked under his belt, Allen J. Maxwell, sometimes the "brilliant Maxwell," sometimes "doomed," but in that Archibald Hendersonian "treble-cueous" modernity way of speaking, always one of the most disagreeable debaters in the kingdom, on this gladsome Sabbath retires from the ring.

The fact that he believes he has knocked out everybody in sight is inferable more from reading him as one peruses Price, Watchhouse and company, than from anything he actually says. Jack Dempsey, Jack Johnson and even clumsy speaking Jim Jeffries talked bigger when they held the championship. The corporation commissioner merely cites the public to the fact that one terrible, sad day, he observed that instead of totting a two and a half million dollar surplus looosely about its jeans, North Carolina was in fact transporting an elegant assortment of holes in its pockets. He doesn't relate that Governor Morrison hired a hall, rhetorically speaking and lambasted Maxwell for "slandering the state." He does not observe that one after another administrative champion came to bestow an additional kick. He seems to leave history altogether to another writer or to the imagination. He does not descend on the fact that the state hired some auditing experts and paid them $43,000 to find, not the mistakes of Moses, but the blunders of Maxwell. He just sits down, as every great literature or letter writer always does, writes out some sayings, prints the letter on which he appropriates the championship belt and trusting to all contenders to recognize that he has won the fight, quits fighting. He doesn't even recall that administrative papers have told him to shut his mouth. He just says he has won.

TOBACCO SELLS HIGHER

THIS YEAR IN ROBESON.

Lumberport, Aug. 4.—Estimates given out by officials of the Lumberport tobacco board of trade tonight show that more than 100,000 pounds of tobacco were sold at auction today at an average of nearly $20 per hundred, which is double the pounds sold on the opening last year and a much better average. Accurate figures were not obtainable late tonight. The Banner and Star warehouses were completely filled early this morning and it was necessary to hold two sales in the Banner. Streets leading to the warehouses were congested with wagons and trucks waiting to be unloaded.

The quality of the primings and lugs which was the majority of the grades offered today is exceptionally good and farmers state that their crops are showing up better than expected. The tonnage is good and if the prices continue to advance with the grade, the farmers will lose that grouchy look in spite of the boll weevil infestation.

Fairment, the only market in Robeson county that sells more than 5,000,000 pounds during a season, opened today strong selling $1,818 pounds for $15,969.41, an average of $19.63 as compared to 54,848 pounds for $7,896.63 an average of $14.40 last year on opening day. The quality of the tobacco sold on this auction market was exceptionally good and in keeping with the prices received.

LIVING TISSUES ARE PUT UNDER THE MICROSCOPE

Scientist Perfects Apparatus Making it Possible to Study Human Cells.

An apparatus for the improved study of cellular tissue which, it is expected, may lead to important discoveries in the treatment of baffling diseases, has been announced at Northwestern university, Chicago, by Professor C. E. Tharaldsen of the department of zoology.

The instrument, it is said, will dissect living human tissue and increase the means of observing its functions.

Professor Tharaldsen describes his microvissection apparatus as follows: "A small or large amount of tissue, the size does not matter, is cut from the human body. In the tissue are the living cells.

"Then the tissue is fastened on the stage of the microscope of my apparatus. It is on the under side of the microscopic lens and has been seeped in a nutrient solution to preserve life. The solution is suspended in a drop from the under side of the lens.

"Beneath the tissue there are tiny needles pointed upward and small hollow glass pipes.

"Living cells, or parts of them, are isolated from the rest of the structure by a gradual breaking down process through use of the needles. Such a process and its effects have not before been observed.

"The hollow tubes are used to apply chemicals to the living cells and the remainder of the tissue.

"Chemicals can be injected directly into the protoplasm of these cells and the effect can be studied through the microscope.

"Studies in the past have largely been confined to the observation of dead and fixed tissues, but in the last fifteen years there have been repeated attempts to dissect the living human protoplasm and to develop study under conditions of complete dissection. This our little machine renders wholly possible and practical."

Many Young Chicks Die Every Year From Gapes

Many thousand young chicks die every year from gapes. The disease is caused by a parasite worm which attaches itself to the walls of the windpipe. This worm is sometimes called the forked worm by reason of the fact that the male and female are so firmly united that at first glance they have the appearance of one worm with two heads. The worms suck blood from the mucous membrane, thus weakening the chick. They also clog the windpipe, which interferes with breathing.

The first symptoms of the disease are coughing and sneezing. Soon the chicks begin to gape, plainly showing that they are unable to get sufficient air. Gapes spread rapidly. The female in the windpipe develops a large number of eggs, which are coughed up by the chick, or else are swallowed, passing through the intestines and being voided with the droppings. In its efforts to rid itself of the obstruction in its windpipe, the chick often coughs up live worms.

Difficult to Eradicate Tuberculosis in Flock

Tuberculosis in fowls can be eliminated only by disposing of the infected stock. Treatment is impractical and of no value in the control of the disease. To eradicate the disease:

1. Replace the entire flock as soon as possible with healthy birds raised on uninfected ground.
2. Kill and burn all birds showing symptoms of tuberculosis.
3. Put dropping boards in poultry houses and keep them clean.
4. Get plenty of fresh air and light into the poultry house.
5. Get rid of old fowls.
6. Burn and bury deep all dead birds.
7. Plow up and sow down land when practical.

DOULTRY NOTES

Good feeding helps in making a greater hatch, with fewer weak chicks.

Rations for baby chicks should contain nutrients necessary to furnish both heat and energy and to manufacture bone and muscle.

MAXWELL SUGGESTED FOR NEXT GOVERNOR

He Has Never Thought About It But People Have—He Is Heartily Congratulated.

Raleigh, August 6.—Corporation Commissioner Allen J. Maxwell, receiving congratulations from all parts of the state today, took a good laugh at the suggestion that he is the man to lead the state from its financial chaos and the governorship is the way.

"I never thought of it," he said to the Daily News correspondent this

WANT ALL EGGS STAMPED

British Housewives Ask Protection Against Masquerading Product.

Every egg sold in England will be stamped with the country of origin, if the plans of various housewives' organizations to put such a bill through parliament are successful.

Much interest has been aroused in London recently by the declaration of the National Poultry council that only about 10 per cent of the eggs sold as new-laid eggs come from the provinces of England. It has been shown that huge quantities of eggs shipped into England every year from Holland, China and Egypt are mixed with other eggs, and sold as native eggs.

Because the foreign eggs are of a better color and larger than English eggs, it is said the retailers are able to sell them more readily.

WOMEN RISK LIVES FOR DOG

But They Save Irish Setter That Was Drowning.

Two women, Mrs. George Masters and Mrs. William Masters, risked their lives at Berwick, Pa., to rescue an Irish setter that broke through the ice in the river, sixty feet from shore.

Alarmed by the barking of the dog, the women got a rope, which Mrs. William Masters held on the shore while Mrs. George Masters crawled out on the ice and rescued the dog. Several hours later the ice on the river went out and the water had risen about 4 feet.

evening. Though the commissioner hasn't been in the same position as the public, he had taken on the governor, the state officials en masse, the budget committee, the legislative audit committee and the auditors without help. Fighting to save himself from extinction he wasn't in shape to launch gubernatorial bombs. An Orange county man, one of the most prominent lawyers in the fifth district, said tonight that the thing is almost unanimous for Maxwell up there today. The public is so full of admiration for one man who seemed to know where he was at that it is almost persuaded he knows where the public is "at." The personal victory is nothing less than annihilation for the opposition.

The Banker and The Farmer

"THE

BANK"

By co-operating with a bank the farmer places himself in position to receive the financial support that is so necessary at certain seasons in all agricultural pursuits. And it is the farmer's co-operation that places the bank in position to render such support. In a word, the banker and the farmer need each other.

We particularly solicit the accounts of farmers, because we are really a farmers bank, and the facilities of this bank are always at their disposal.
