CITIZEN TALKS, ABOUT ROADS.

Mr. Editor:

The Good book says, "What profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul," and the writer asks "What profit the good people of Person County to spend their good money to build good roads and lose them for the want of upkeep and attention? The road by Jalonz is today in as bad traveling shape as it was ten years ago, and if something is not done for it real soon, it will be to build again. We hope the people who have the roads in charge will take a look at this road, and some others, and try to do something before it is too late, for when the fall and winter rains come and go we will have no road. And the bridges on this road in question are in real bad order and should be looked after at once.—Citizen.

his terms and conditions which we are bound to acknowledge from a sane point of view and study, is right, finest and good absolutely. Let's get in the BOAT with him—then don't try to upset it—if we do, we may drown ourselves.—T. Y.
