

Treat Seed Wheat For Better Quality

Raleigh, N. C.—Two ounces of copper carbonate dust to one bushel of wheat, thoroughly mixed so that each grain is covered with the poison will increase acre yields of quality wheat.

"Copper carbonate is a light green powder which when thoroughly mixed with the seed wheat will control covered smut," says G. W. Fant, plant disease specialist at State College. "Any type of closed container, such as a barrel mixer may be used for treating the grain. The method is easy to use and valuable in results."

Mr. Fant has encouraged this method in North Carolina for the past several years. He states that the only precaution to observe in applying the treatment is to thoroughly mix the dust and the seed wheat. Where the copper carbonate escapes into the air to any extent it irritates the eyes and nose and therefore mixing had best be done in the open. Many growers have built dust-tight, rotating, barrel mixers that they have used to advantage.

This treatment may be given to the wheat any time before planting. It acts as a repellent to both weevils and mice and if properly stored may be treated at least a month before planting time. However, only that wheat which will be used for planting should be treated, states Mr. Fant. Copper carbonate is poisonous and grain so treated cannot be used for milling purposes or for feed.

It is not wise to leave the treated grain in the seed drill over night. The copper carbonate absorbs moisture and may cause the drill to clog. If the drill is not emptied when work is done for the night, it is advised to turn the feed shafts with a wrench before the drill is thrown in gear. This will free the feed wheels and will likely avoid gear breakage.

Will Hold Fair Within State Fair

Raleigh, N. C.—A fair within a fair will be offered to the public of North Carolina when the agricultural students at State College hold their eighth annual fair at the same time of the State Fair, October 22 to 27, within the State Fair grounds near Raleigh.

"We have secured donations and prizes to the value of over $1,000 to offer to the students who make exhibits in our various departments," says R. W. Shoffner of Greensboro, president of the student's fair. "All of our entries and educational exhibits will be housed in a large tent just inside the main entrance to the fair grounds and admission fee will be charged. Educational displays will be made by students in seven departments of the school of agriculture."

In addition to competitive entries with field crops and horticultural products secured from their home farms, the students will also engage in several contests. Judging contests with livestock, seed and soil identification contests, model judging and other features will entertain the students program and will prove of interest to visitors.

DIZZY Lost Appetite

Mr. M. F. Fink, of Harrisburg, N. C., says: "It must have been fully twenty-five years ago that I began taking Black-Draught regularly."

"I was in town one day, and while talking to a friend I stooped over to pick up something. When I straightened up, I felt dizzy. I spoke to him about this and how I had not felt like eating."

"My friend told me to take some Black-Draught. I knew my mother had used it, and so I bought a package. When I got home, I took a good, big dose, and the next night, another. In a few days I felt much better."

"A good many times I have had this dizziness and a bad taste in my mouth, or headaches, and then I take Black-Draught and get better. I do not have to take it very often. We buy from five to seven packages a year." Try it!

day will be dispensed with this year. Instead, the students will prepare one representative float that will parade each day.

Officers in charge of the students fair this year are R. W. Shoffner, of Greensboro, President; J. U. Harrell, of Gibsonville, vice-president; P. H. Mast of Valle Crucis, secretary; A. D. Stuart of Hamer, S. C., assistant secretary and R. S. Dunham of Bladenboro, treasurer. The fair is incorporated under the North Carolina laws and is well organized in all departments. There are leaders or superintendents for each activity and some of these will be on duty at all times to explain the displays and exhibits to the visitors.
