

Better Tobacco Beds Control Flea Beetle

Raleigh, N. C.—Preparing the plant bed so that tobacco flea beetles cannot enter to attack the young plants is one means of successfully controlling the pest to the extent that stronger plants are obtained for setting in the field.

First the plant bed should be made tight," says C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State College. "This can be done by using boards about the bed instead of poles. Poles cannot be so placed that the small flea beetles may not enter. Then soil should be banked about the boards to prevent the insects crawling under. Have the boards fit tightly at each corner. Next, use new cheese cloth that has at least 25 strands to the inch. This should be well sewn and fastened to the margin boards by wooden strips. Tacking or nailing the cloth to the boards will usually pull holes in it.

The next step, says Mr. Brannon, is to plant an area of a few feet around the bed. Poles may surround this bed and old cloth used to cover it. This is a trap bed in which the flea beetles will congregate and where they may be killed easily with a mixture of one pound of paris green to five pounds of arsenate of lead. Use this dust at the rate of one-half pound to each 100 yards of trap bed. The dust must be well covered with the soil and the applications made frequently, especially if there is much rain.

Mr. Brannon states that the tobacco flea beetle does great damage to the crop each year. The pest is only about one-fifteenth of an inch long and usually escapes notice until it appears in destructive numbers. When control is practiced at the plant beds, there are fewer insects to hurt the tobacco crop in the field and stronger plants are secured for setting.

Death Of Georgia A. Winstead (col.)

Georgia A. Winstead departed this life November 16th, 1928, at the age of 55 years. She leaves to mourn their loss a husband, John Winstead, five sons, four daughters and six grandchildren. Three brothers and three sisters, and a host of relatives survive. She joined the church in her youth and has been a member of the Mill Hill and Hyco Zion Baptist churches since. She was a true and faithful wife and Christian. She took her sickness patiently, knowing it was the Lord's will. She passed away conscious and peaceful. We want to extend our sincere thanks to everyone, both white and colored, for every visit and kindness shown her in her hour of affliction. I also want to extend thanks to the Doctors who so faithfully attended her, Dr. Bryce of Roxboro, and our faithful, untiring family doctor, B. E. Love, of Roxboro.

When each of you have crossed the river and gone to the great judgment seat of Christ, you may hear his voice, saying, "When I was sick you ministered unto me; when I was hungry, you gave me meat." Then you will say, Lord, when did I do this unto you? Then He will say, So much as you done unto the least one that believe on me, you did unto me." Since you have been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many. Enter into the joys of eternal rest prepared for you. Amen.

John T. Winstead and Children.

SORE Could Not Rest

Mrs. J. H. Nichols, who lives at 513 Elm Tree Lane, Lexington, Ky., says:

"Some few years ago, my health was bad. I had very severe pains in my sides. My nerves were in a terrible condition. I could not rest.

"The lower part of my body was very sore. I did not feel like eating, and did not sleep well at all at nights.

"A friend of mine recommended Cardui. I began taking it and saw quite an improvement in my condition. I kept it up until I felt strong and well."

"About a year ago, Mrs. Nichols says, she found herself in a nervous, run-down condition. "I took Cardui again," she adds, "and it helped me wonderfully. It is a splendid tonic."

Cardui is a mild, medicinal tonic, made from purely vegetable ingredients.

At all druggists.
