

LET US BE RICH

Only a few people are rich (in cash and material possessions). Many are craving, thirsting and struggling for earthly riches. It is their chief concern to make money and accumulate property. With them it is business, stocks, dividends and profits. In this thirst for gold, some of them neglect the golden rule, get all they can and keep most they get. The Divine word says something about the deceitfulness of riches. Often they do not bring the expected satisfaction, peace and pleasure. Rich people have trials and troubles and we are told that millionaires seldom ever smile. The book tells us to lay up treasures in heaven where no thief cometh or moth corrupteth. They that will be rich fall into temptations and snares, which often destroy both soul and body. The apostle Paul writing to Timothy, 6-17, 18, tells him "Warn the rich that he be not high minded nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, that they be rich in good works," this is the greatest riches, rich in good works and I am glad to say that some rich people are of this type. They get some pleasure from their wealth because they are liberal and generous. Not long since in a city in our state, not very far away, lived a millionaire who was also rich spiritually as well as materially, rich in that which the world cannot give. He was sympathetic, liberal and generous, with his wealth, ever ready to hear and help suffering humanity, kind and courteous, a true Christian, a regular attendant at his church, taking an active part in worship, doing much in word and deed for the Master's cause and kingdom. If all wealthy people were dominated with the same spirit that this good man was, what a blessing to themselves and the world. Only a few can be rich in material things, but many or all can be rich in the true and greatest riches, rich toward God and His knowledge. Some are up on worldly knowledge, know all that schools can teach, versed in science, familiar with history, informed in politics, experts in business practice, but in the knowledge of God they are poor and ignorant. This is unjust and displeasing to God. We can be rich in praise and service to God. Deeds are greater than words. Prayer, to be acceptable must be proved by works. Love is a fruitless emotion without labor and sacrifice. The good book tells us to do good and to communicate, forget not, for with sacrifices God is well pleased. Again we can be rich in love, kindness and sympathy. There is often someone near us sick and suffering some way, and it is our duty to visit and comfort them any way we can. By helping others to be happy we will increase our own. By helping others bear their burdens our burdens are made lighter. Opportunity for cheerful words, for loving greetings and the inspiring heart are found on every side. Irving once said, there was only one kind of poverty and that is to have no love in the heart. Love is the true wealth. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law. Love bringeth out the beautiful, the brave, the strong side of human nature. All the bright spots in life's picture, that which we admire and delight in, that which inspires and exalts us in thought and that which we admire and delight in are done by love and nothing else. All that will remain in the web of life are the gold and silver threads which love for God and humanity has put in the golden chain of love and the silken cord of truth entwined together will draw people as nothing else will. Rich in good works. There is too much selfish interest and not enough personal interest among people in all walks of life who are failing to express that personal interest in each other as we should. Not so much because they do not have the interest, as because of thoughtless neglect. Such neglect is hurtful to both parties and efforts should be made to overcome them. With a deep personal interest in each other's well-being, it would not be long before bitter criticism, stinging rebukes and harsh denunciations would cease. We go around carrying comforts and blessings and on our return, lo! blessedness fills our own hearts. We go about carrying the flowers of cheerfulness, love and sympathy and on our return, lo! Eden blooms in our own garden. We travel the way of life, lighting the lamps of happiness for others and by so doing, we find our way home. We come to our life through the lives of others.

Yours for more interest in true riches.

THAD K. JONES.

P.S. Was well pleased with young Mr. Terry's speech in a recent issue of the Courier, under the heading "Rich Without Money." He chose a good subject and made an excellent speech, which is worthy of our profound thought and consideration. We hope he will continue to use his talents and gifts for the moral and spiritual uplift of our country. T.K.J.

Prepares New Bulletin On Sweet Potatoes

Raleigh—All the late facts about growing and handling sweet potatoes for best yields and quality have been condensed into six short pages by workers of the North Carolina Experiment Station and the resulting publication is now available free of charge to readers of The Courier.

The bulletin is divided into eleven parts covering the production of the crop from varieties to harvest and storage. The Porto Rico, Nancy Hall and Jersey varieties are the most popular commercial sorts, yet the Station has found that some other varieties are more resistant to certain stem diseases.

The bulletin makes much of the importance of sound seed stock. The seed should be free of disease and free of disease and from a reliable from a reliable source and only medium sized roots should be used for bedding. The wise grower will produce his own plants at home and thus he will not bring some diseases to his farm. Then, too, freshly drawn plants always live better than those shipped from distances. To get early plants, it is necessary to use the hot bed and where forcing is not necessary, cold frames may be used satisfactorily. Generally it is wise to treat the seed stock with a mercuric chloride solution before bedding.

Potatoes grow best on sandy or sandy loam soils and must be well fertilized. Stable manure is not advised as a fertilizer but at least an 800 pound application per acre of an 8-4-8 commercial mixture is recommended. The average North Carolina grower does not use enough potash in fertilizing the crop.

The bulletin says that plants should be spaced 12 inches apart in rows three to three and one-half feet apart and planting on a high ridge gives best results. In harvesting, the crop should be dug when mature and before a killing frost. The storage house is the most efficient means for keeping the roots until marketed.

A Hero of Science

There are all kinds of heroes, and not all of them are soldiers or sailors. Some of the bravest, kindest spirits were those that could be described as soldiers of science. Men who went down battling against disease and unhappiness and death. Soldiers of peace, rather than soldiers of war, great indeed have been their achievements.

One of these men has recently passed away—Dr. Joseph Goldberger, a member of the staff of the United States Health Service, who specialized in combatting epidemics in southern areas.

Stricken with yellow fever, typhus fever and other lethal maladies as the direct result of his work, he lived to reveal how such disease could be prevented and cured. Then he discovered the cause of pellagra, and his long studies demonstrated how that dread disease could be eliminated.

Now Dr. Goldberger is dead, leaving little money for his family. Legislation has been urged to provide a pension for his family now that his comparatively small salary has stopped. We are in favor of this legislation, and of steps being taken to protect the families and cherish the memories of all our Soldiers of Science.

PAINFUL INDIGESTION

"I suffered a good while before I found something that would help me," writes Mr. E. W. Berry, of Neosho, Mo. "My trouble was indigestion, pains in my chest and a tight, bloated feeling that would make me feel smothered."

"Speaking of this to a friend of mine, he told me that Black-Draught was good for this trouble. I went over bought a package. It certainly did help me, so I continued to use it."

"I am in the transfer business, and sometimes when I would be hungry and ready to eat, I would have a call and would have to eat later. Then I would eat too much or too hurriedly. This would cause indigestion. After I started using Black-Draught, I found it did me a world of good. It is splendid for biliousness and stomach troubles."
