

JINGLE BELLS

BY FRANK R. ADAMS
ILLUSTRATED BY FRANK B. DRUEN

Fourth Installment

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

The Sheridan Dramatic Club, of which Tom Bilbeck, the narrator, Maryella, the girl he cares for, and Jim Cooper, his rival, are members, are to give Pymalion and Galatea at the Old Soldiers' Home. Mr. Hemmingway, husband of one of the actresses, thinks Bilbeck is in love with his wife. The escape of prisoners from the local penitentiary keeps Bilbeck busy at his newspaper work so that he can't stay with the dramatic group. But Maryella summons him and starts telling the story of "Dollanna" who believes that everything that happens turns out to be for the best.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"She is a sweet child," I said admiringly.

"But she doesn't die, so it is all right," Maryella hastened to reassure me. "There is a great lesson in the book though, and if every one would take it to heart this world would be a better place to live in. Don't you think so?"

I looked at Maryella's eyes sharply. I never can tell from the rest of her face whether she is in earnest or not. She was perfectly serious.

"Yes," I admitted cautiously.

"All we can do," she went on, "is to make a beginning; but maybe others when they see how beautifully it works will follow our example."

"Us?" I questioned in alarm.

"Whom do mean, mean by 'us'?"

"Why, the Sheridan Dramatic Club of course! All the members whom we have asked so far have agreed to do it. Jim Cooper started it. He just finished reading the book to me last night. I think it is an adorable scheme and also very practical. I wanted you to be one of the first to come in. Mrs. Hemmingway and Jim and I are the only ones so far, but if you'll try it we'll bring it up before the club and maybe change the name of the organization to the Optimists or something like that."

"Ouch!" exclaimed Mrs. Hemmingway, who had been sewing away industriously while Maryella and I were talking.

"What's the matter dear?" Maryella inquired.

"I just stuck the needle in my finger about an inch, darn it," murmured Mrs. Hemmingway feelingly.

"You mustn't say 'darn it,'" reproved Maryella. "The fact that you pricked yourself is all for the best. You ought to be glad."

"Why?"

Mrs. Hemmingway was a trifle petulant.

"Because"—Maryella paused and thought a moment—"because if the needle wasn't sharp enough to prick you, you couldn't sew with it. So you see it is all for the best."

She turned to me triumphantly.

"You see how it works out, don't you, Tom? Isn't it lovely?"

"It would be even a better example if it had been your finger," Mrs. Hemmingway, because if it wasn't for the curve you would probably be so tall that your head would bump the ceiling. After we got that one everything else was easy."

What was the use of being angry with her? She evidently regarded my curves impersonally, as if they were some freak of nature impossible to explain, like the Grand Canon or Niagara Falls. It was more fun being with Maryella than against her in a discussion, so I willingly let the subject drop. Adopting our new code, I decided that it was all for the best.

"How long before you'll be through with that?" Maryella asked Mrs. Hemmingway, who was pinning ruffles on a curious-looking garment.

"I think I can finish in another hour," she answered.

"Then, Tom," Maryella went on, taking charge of me and the expedition with her customary eye for detail, "let's get started for the Old Soldiers' Home right after lunch. Is the car running all right today?"

"I don't know. Are we going out in the car?"

"Can't we? It will be much nicer. Besides, there is no train back late at night and we don't want to sleep there. I called up Mrs. Lillelove and she says we can use their 'bus, as there is no funeral in town this afternoon. That holds twelve and if you'll take me and three others that will be all we need. Fred Merryweather went out on the train with the scenery and properties this morning."

I agreed to this arrangement. I had a few private doubts as to whether Grandmother Page would negotiate the thirty miles out to the Home and back without making any Yuss about it, but I kept them to myself. The prospect of the long drive with Maryella on the front seat beside me was so rosy that I overlooked all the blue goops that might be hovering in the background.

As a justifiable precaution, however, I went to the garage to inspect the car as soon as I left Maryella's house. Grandmother rattled with joy when she saw me coming, as she always does: I gave her a lump of hard grease and patted her on the radiator. As far as I could see she looked as if she would last twenty-four hours longer.

Just to be on the safe side, however, I put a hank of basting-wire and some babbitt metal in the tool-box and bought a package of chewing gum in case the acetylene-gas system should leak anywhere.

When I called at Maryella's house I found that my load consisted of Maryella herself, Mrs. Hemmingway, Mrs. Lillelove and Jim Cooper!

"I don't like to take my car out in bad weather," he explained in answer to my look of surprise. "It's all for the best anyway," because this way we can all be together."

I hastily smothered the reply that rose to my lips and busied myself adjusting the carburetor.

It was snowing slightly and a pleasant winter sting was in the air as I threw in my clutch and Grandmother started up with a jerk as if I had struck her with a whip.

We left town at two o'clock and—here is the surprise with which I close this chapter—arrived at the Old Soldiers' Home at three-thirty without having to stop for anything!

CHAPTER IV

Comrade Plik Henwether

I have never received a more royal welcome than that tendered us by those living at the Home. They had heard us coming a long way down the road—that is one of the advantages Grandmother Page has over most cars—and when we came around the turn the Home Band burst in melody.

"Burst" is absolutely the correct word, as you would realize if you had heard the sound and had seen the expression of the players. Grandmother Page shied and nearly jumped into the ditch. The air was "The Star-Spangled Banner," but the slide trombonist evidently had the wrong music.

But what a bass-drum virtuoso! I have never heard a bass-drum played more feelingly, even in Sousa's Band. What expression, what shades of meaning the artist put into it! You could just picture the bombs bursting in air. First came the boiler-factory motif, then a minor counterpoint melody of bursting quick-detachable tires, and finally a reversion to the original theme in the major key, ending in a magnificent crescendo, a sort of tone-picture of a courtship because he went on cheerfully:

"It will be all right when we get inside and thaw out the horns. Then we'll play it again for you."

We had a lovely time that afternoon. The old soldiers were as eager to play as children. In the summer-time they had lots of visitors, but in the winter it was rather dull. The Home is on Three Bears Lake, eight miles from the town of Fair Oaks at the other end where the railroad station is. As a consequence few people take the trip in winter except for some special reason.

Comrade Abel Dreyenfurth had lost a leg at Antietam. That did not interfere with a lively desire to learn the fox-trot, and Maryella spent an hour teaching it to him.

The bass-drummer Plik Henwether, discovered in me a kindred soul.

"I like you, Mr. Bilbeck," he confided at the top of his voice. "I can sort of tell what you are talking about because you make faces when you speak."

The undertaker's bus arrived just before dinner. We all ate together in a large mess-hall. The dwellers at the Home cook their own meals and do all their own housework.

"That's the chief objection I got to the Home," said Plik Henwether, hardly raising his voice above a shout. "There ought to be some female veterans. I'm durned if I like washing dishes."

The dinner was good, all except the dessert, which was fallen angel-food cake with ice-cream.

"Henry Klingman made it," Plik confided, "and I think, it's punk. If you want my honest opinion. But I wouldn't let him hear me say that because it would only hurt his feelings."

As Comrade Klingman was in the room and Plik Henwether spoke in his ordinary tone of voice, there seemed little doubt of his feelings receiving a jolt.

"It ain't so bad though, Plik went on, "when you come to think that Henry has only got one arm. He says the other one was shot off at Chancellorsville, but it's my private opinion he lost it running a buzz-saw after the war was over. Anyhow, he draws an extra allowance as a one-armed man."

"We're sorry we couldn't play that piece all the way through," apologized the bandmaster. "We know all the notes, but it's so cold that the wind instruments all froze up. I told the boys not to blow damp, but I guess they couldn't help it."

"Never mind," I soothed. "It's probably all for the best."

He looked at me suspiciously, but apparently saw no guile in my eye

When We Came Around the Turn the Home Band Burst into Melody

Maryella in a moment of enthusiasm is a glowing magnet. I could no more have resisted her than as she stood before me like a little saint fairly alive with the spirit of optimism than an emotional sinner can stand against an old-fashioned revivalist. I knew there would come moments of doubt later when I would kick myself for a sentimental fool, but now I was carried away by her belief in her propoganda.

So I promised to join the cheer-up movement and to seek for the kernel of good in every husk of hardship.

"I knew you'd do it," Maryella congratulated. "You'll find it makes everything look so different!"

"Some problems are harder than others, of course. One of the very first things that struck me this morning was remembering about your being bowlegged. I couldn't figure out any way that it could be all for the best, but finally I got it. Jim Cooper helped me."

"Oh, he did," I said truculently. "What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the best."

"What cheerful outlook could you two get on the dark fact that I am laid out in curves like a park, instead of straight like a city street?"

"We decided that it was all for the

Notice!
On Friday, 31st May, 1929, I will offer for sale at Court house door in Roxboro, the John Ray place, bounded Easterly by Ruffin Rogers; Southerly, J. W. Jackson's heirs; Westerly, Moses Winstead Estate; and Northwesterly by Highway Roxboro to Concord, and about 2 mi. from town, containing 69 1/2 acres more or less. This by authority conferred on me by deed in trust executed by one Henry Smith and recorded in Person County Bk. 3, p. 690, default in its terms being made. THIS April 29th, 1929.
T. C. Brooks, Jr., Trustee.
ADVERTISE IN "THE COURIER"

GOOD TIRES ONLY

We sell only the best tires at our garage. Be sure that you carry a GOOD tire. Let us put on a new tire and transfer your old tire to your spare tire carrier.

STEWART CHEVROLET CO.
CHEVROLET CARS & TRUCKS
Roxboro, N. C.

You might call this "putting the car over the hump." Drawing made from a photograph of a car driven over a road scientifically made bad at the Proving Ground.

TUNE IN—General Motors Family Party, every Monday, 8:30 P. M. (Eastern Standard Time) WFAE and 77 associated radio stations

CLIP THE COUPON

General Motors (Dept. A), Detroit, Mich.

Please send me, without obligation, information on the new models of the products I have checked—together with your new illustrated book "The Open Mind."

- CHEVROLET
- PONTIAC
- OLDSMOBILE
- OAKLAND
- VIKING
- BUICK
- LASSALLE
- CADILLAC
- Frigidaire Automatic Refrigerator
- Delco-Light Electric Power and Light Plants
- Water Systems

Name.....

Address.....

Here's where a car leads a tough life

NO General Motors car is turned out of the factory until a fleet of exact duplicates of that model has been found good by the engineers at General Motors' Proving Ground.

Such an advance model must prove itself from stem to stern. The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil, and tire economy; body strength—every phase of car construction and performance. It's a tough life.

Such testing would be beyond the means or resources of an individual. 1268 acres of land at Milford, Michigan, are devoted to this outdoor laboratory where hills are steep and roads are vicious. Men who are among the world's best automotive engineers conduct the tests.

This tested performance is as much a part of a General Motors car as the chassis. You can't see it. You don't pay extra for it. But you know it as you give the car long use on the road.

GENERAL MOTORS

"A car for every purse and purpose"

CHEVROLET. 7 models. $325—$725. A six in the price range of the four. Smooth, powerful 6-cylinder valve-in-head engine. Beautiful new Fisher Bodies. Also Light delivery chassis. Sedan delivery model, 1 1/4 ton chassis and 1 1/4 ton chassis with cab, both with four speeds forward.

PONTIAC. 7 models. $745—$895. Now offers "big six" motoring luxury at low cost. Larger L-head engine; larger Bodies by Fisher. New attractive colors and stylish line.

OLDSMOBILE. 7 models. $875—$1075. The Fine Car at Low Price. New models offer further refinements, mechanically and in the Fisher Bodies—yet at reduced prices. Also new special De Luxe models.

OAKLAND. 8 models. $245—$375. New Oakland All American Six. Distinctively original appearance. Splendid performance. Luxurious appointments. Attractive colors. Bodies by Fisher.

VIKING. 3 models. $1395. General Motors' new "eight" at medium price. 90-degree V-type engine. Striking bodies by Fisher. Unusual appointments. Three years spent in its development and test.

BUICK. 19 models. $1195—$1445. The Silver Anniversary Buick. Three wheel-bases from 115 to 128 inches. Masterpiece bodies by Fisher. More powerful, vibrationless motor. Comfort and luxury in every mile.

LASSALLE. 14 models. $1295—$1875. Companion car to Cadillac. Continental lines. Distinctive appearance. 90-degree V-type 8-cylinder engine. Striking color combinations in beautiful bodies by Fisher.

CADILLAC. 25 models. $1395—$7000. The Standard of the world. Famous efficient 8-cylinder 90-degree V-type engine. Luxurious bodies by Fisher and Fleetwood. Extensive range of color and upholstery combinations.

(All Prices F. O. B. Factories)

ALSO

FRIGIDAIRE Automatic Refrigerator. New silent models with cold-control device. Tuxton cabinets. Price and model range to suit every family.

DELCO-LIGHT Electric Plants — Q Water Systems. Provide all electrical conveniences and labor-saving devices for the farm.

All General Motors products may be bought on the lowest GMAC Time Payment Plan.