HINTS FOR THE HOME

By NANCY HART

Spanish Eggs

There is something very delicious about a Spanish omelet, yet it is not easy to make, because any sort of omelet making requires considerable culinary skill. But you can make scrambled eggs and serve them with Spanish sauce to make a dish that is delicious for breakfast, luncheon or dinner.

There is nothing difficult about making the scrambled eggs. Break the eggs into a bowl and stir sufficiently to break the yolks and mix a little with the whites. Melt a tablespoon of butter in the pan and immediately pour in the eggs. Keep the heat low so that the butter will not turn dark and stir the eggs so that they will be smooth and creamy and evenly cooked. Turn on a warmed platter when they are softly done throughout.

In the meantime make the sauce as follows: Melt two tablespoons of butter in another pan. Put into the pan a tablespoon or more of coarsely chopped onion and a like amount of chopped sweet green pepper. Let them cook in the butter without actually browning and then add a cup and a half of canned tomatoes or the equivalent of ripe, juicy raw tomatoes, and cook gently until the vegetables are soft. Pour over the scrambled eggs just before the Spanish sauce and then pile on top the rest of the scrambled eggs.

Macaroni and Cheese on Toast

Have ready a cup of macaroni that has been boiled in salted water and cut up rather fine. This means a cup after cooking, not before, and the pieces should be half an inch or more in length. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a skillet, and add one tablespoon of cornstarch and stir until well mixed. Add a quarter teaspoon of salt, a dash of cayenne pepper, and a quarter of a teaspoon of mustard. Into this sauce stir first macaroni, then half pound of mild American cheese, grated. Stir and simmer gently until the cheese has melted, then turn the mixture out on triangles of toasted bread. Serve at once.

With It

Irish stew is best eaten with dumplings and boiled onions. Roast of beef can be accompanied by browned potatoes, string or buttered beans, or asparagus. Broiled beefsteak can be accompanied by mashed or scalloped potatoes, cauliflower or asparagus. French fried potatoes are also a proper accompaniment of broiled beefsteak. Boiled tongue is served with tomato sauce and spinach.

Stuffed Potatoes

Six large potatoes, one-half teaspoon parsley, one-half teaspoon onion, pepper, salt. Wash the potatoes well. Bake them. When done, scrape out the inside. Mash light. Add one teaspoon butter and a little hot milk the parsley and onion, well chopped, pepper and salt. Mix well. Fill skins with mixture and brown in the oven.

CHURCH NEWS

First Baptist Church

How can we best serve our day and generation? This means putting others in the forefront of our thoughts and self in the background. It involves sacrifice, giving up. There seems to be a nifty spirit abroad today, a spirit which has increased since the war, a spirit which demands payment for every little bit of work done, a spirit of selfishness. The ideal of service is expressed in the following words: "Teach us, O Lord, to serve Thee as Thou deserveest; to give and not to count the cost; to fight and not to heed the wounds; to toll and not to seek for rest; to labor and not to ask for any reward, save that of knowing we do Thy will."—Scott.

The church of Jesus Christ is set for the task of changing the spirit of selfishness to that of Service and in the accomplishment of that task lies the hope of humanity. Bible School 9:45 A. M. TOO MUCH BELLYACHING

I shall be criticized for the title of this editorial, but it is a good old Elizabethan phrase and there is no other which expresses so forcibly the thing I have in mind. Let me illustrate with a story. I stood in line one night at the ticket window in Providence, waiting to take up the lower berth which I had reserved to New York.

In front of me was a man who had come up from Chatham on Cape Cod, having telegraphed for a reservation from there. Through a mistake on the part of the Chatham operator the telegram had gone to Boston instead of to Providence. If the man waited for the train to come through from Boston he would not get to bed until about two o'clock in the morning. If he got on a Providence car he would have to sleep in an upper berth because all the lowers were sold.

He bought an upper, but not without a great deal of grumbling. "This is atrocious," he exclaimed. "Give me a telegraph blank. I am going to wire that operator in Chatham and tell him what I think of him."

To which the station agent answered very sanelly: "What good will that do? You're mad already. What's the use of getting two men mad?"

Every hour of every day a certain number of things happen which just should not happen, but do. To err is human. When I became a magazine editor years ago a very wise editor said to me: "You are about to make a sad discovery. You are about to learn that there are no efficient people in the world."

He went on to prophesy that writers would consistently misinterpret my instructions about articles and that artists would insist on drawing their pictures all wrong.

To a certain extent the prophecy was fulfilled; but, having been warned in advance, I managed to get along without losing my temper often or increasing my blood-pressure much.

If you expect perfection from people your whole life is a series of disappointments, grumblings and complaints. If, on the contrary, you pitch your expectations low, taking folks as the inefficient creatures which they are, you are frequently surprised by having them perform better than you had hoped.

Too many of us are like that man in Providence, who probably "jelly-ached" to his wife; and he may still be telling the sad story, for all I know.

What's the use of it all?

The leaves of the acacia are so sensitive to light and dark that they frequently fold together in sleep when a cloud obscures them.

In Memory Of A Dear Friend And Neighbor

On Thursday, April 16th, the death angel was sent to the home of Mr. Ira Glenn and took from him a devoted wife, and true, loving mother. God needed her to fill a vacant place before the throne. All was done for her that doctor, nurse and loving hands could do, but nothing could stay the cold hand of death. She was always ready to do anything she could for everyone and will be greatly missed by all. She was a true and loving neighbor, if anyone was sick in the neighborhood, she was always ready to come and do her part. It was sad to give a good neighbor up, but God knows best. We know she can't come back to us, but we can all work and hope that we will be able to meet her in that beautiful land. She leaves to mourn her sad death a broken-hearted husband, two sons and one daughter.

the car over, to see that it is in first-class order, that the trip might be made with maximum ease and comfort? You certainly would, if you used the plainest variety of common sense.

I know of no more important trip than this journey that we call human life; we are all on the highway; and, a happy, successful journey is what of all things, we most want.

A contemporary tells us that the doctor is by your side when you are born—and he will probably be there when you pass into the great beyond. And, during your active years, you do your best to keep away from him; you use every nostrum that you can hear of for your ailments that are sure to come—and you gaud for the doctor only when you are "all shot to pieces," and fear you are going to die!

This seems to me, the most inexcusable form of short-sightedness that a sensible man or woman can exercise. Do you wait till your automobile is reduced to a pile of junk; before going to the expert repair man? Is your body of less importance than the car? Think about it. It is every man and woman's privilege and DUTY to go to their family physician at stated intervals and be carefully looked over; here is the moment above all others that "a stitch in time saves nine." I am sure nine cases of sickness out of ten would be eliminated, if the rule of periodical examinations were faithfully observed. Wouldn't that be a paying proposition?

A dangerous rise in blood pressure may be nipped in the bud; a serious kidney disorder may be recognized at the earliest stage for cure. I could instance many more, see if you can't.
