FRENCH FIGHT GERMAN MOVE TO REVISE DEBT

"There can be no question of revising the Young plan," Briand said, "since it has a definite character and contains in itself possibilities for Germany."

France, he said, would be on guard against any attempt to lead her into an international conference for the revision of the reparations scheme and the Young plan, following the Anglo-German convocations at Chequers.

The foreign minister's speech quieted the turbulence of the deputies and resulted in a majority of sixty votes for Premier Laval's government.

Answering a fire of questioning from his critics, Briand reiterated his faith in his attitude toward Germany, although he criticized such manifestations as that of the German "Steel Helmet" organization, recently held at Breslau.

"Such demonstrations," Briand said, "made it difficult to continue peace efforts with Germany. I have not ceased," he said, "to plead with the German government that it should halt such manifestations. The last was deplorable and regrettable."

"The disquieting thing about the Breslau incident is the state of mind of the individuals who massed on the Polish frontier shortly after the question of the Polish minorities had been discussed at Geneva." Briand reminded the deputies, however, that "a Bruening government is preferable to a Hitler government, which might one day come into power."

S. S. Europa (by Radiophone to London), June 9.—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, are returning from the Chequers conference with renewed conviction of the importance of the part American public opinion will play in any attempt to reshuffle the reparations and war debt problems.

They are looking forward to conversations with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, who will be in Europe this summer, and they are fully aware that economic problems have made both reparations and war debts unpopular topics in the United States.

The viewpoint of the heads of the German state was obtained in conversations in which they could not be quoted directly, as Downing Street has placed its veto on public discussion of their conference with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary.

The Germans hope a prostrate Germany, unable to purchase raw materials from America, will help convince Americans there is a connection between the economic crisis and reparations.

On one item their policy is adamant—under no circumstances will the Bruening government permit Germany to participate in any maneuver designed to bring Europe into a united front against America.

In any conversations between the heads of the German government and the visiting American cabinet members, the point will be made that Germany and Britain both wish to work with America as a friend in deciding what course must be pursued.

DISTILLERY AND 4 MEN CAPTURED IN DURHAM HOUSE

ing and abetting in the manufacture of whisky.

B. J. Jones, charged with aiding and abetting in the manufacture of whisky.

The still, which was complete in every detail, was set up in the basement of the house, located at 609 Markham avenue and which was fully furnished, being occupied by two women and a child in addition to the men. In the basement were 62 barrels of 50-gallon capacity, most of which contained still beer.

Heated By Kerosene.

The still was heated by kerosene oil forced from a container through well-contrived jets. A wood-stove, which had evidently been used during the winter, was also in the basement. The plant had two cooling worms.

Deputies said the still had been making "bottled in bond" whisky. Bottles bearing labels of other countries, seals which were to be placed on bottles of "imported whisky, gin and wine," straw bottle containers, and other apparatus for the bottling of "imported" whisky were found in a room of the house.

Trean, who was a member of the Durham police force until a few months ago, said he did not know the still was in the house. He had only been there once before, he said.

Jones likewise denied having had any knowledge of the liquor making activities. He said he was working for Duke university in construction work. His wife, who is ill, was in the house with him. McGill had the house in charge.

Nevin denied that he had helped in the manufacture of whisky but work clothes containing letters addressed to him were found near it.

All of the men were held in default of bond. They are to be tried this morning in recorder's court.

Cottons For Sunny Days

THE vogue for white continues with unabated popularity. This summer when you think of white you instinctively think of cottons. One reason for this is that white cottons are so cool and comfortable. They are washable and above all they are the acme of economy.

The versatile younger generation that has a crowded calendar of sports, week-end yachting trips and visits to the country will plunge heavily on the black and white sports frock shown in one of the accompanying photographs. This is particularly smart by virtue of the double breasted jacket blouse—a new feature in the mode for summer. White pique is used for this costume which goes admirably with a smart sailor beret of heavy woven cotton fabric.

The other photograph shows one of the new beach frocks which is just the thing for those hot sunny days so delightful to many who take their sun tanning and swimming seriously. This costume is also of pique and has already scored a great hit in smart European resorts with indications that it will enjoy pronounced favor in summer wardrobes in this country.

Young Peoples Meeting At Rock Grove

A meeting has been planned for the young people of several churches in the eastern part of the County at Rock Grove, on June 17th. Those from other churches who are interested in such work will be welcomed also.

With a few exceptions we hope the program will be about as planned at the first. Rev. W. F. West will fill the time left vacant on the program that was sent out some time past. As the church is in no way responsible for the meeting, each one is asked to bring his own lunch. It is hoped that the young people will have a pleasant and profitable day.

While the repairs are being made on the interior of the Presbyterian church the Sunday School and preaching services will be held in the school directly across the street from the church.

First Baptist Church

"What America needs more than railway extension and western irrigation, and low tariff and a bigger wheat crop, and a merchant marine and a new navy, is a revival of piety—the kind father and mother used to have—a piety that counted it good business to stop for daily prayer before breakfast, right in the middle of harvest, quit work a half hour early Wednesday night so as to get ready for prayer-meeting."—Wall Street Journal.

Clara Bow Freed Of Paramount Contract

Hollywood, Cal., June 8.—Officials of Paramount studio announced tonight that they had broken the film contract of Clara Bow, red-headed star, in accordance with several requests from her that she be released so she might regain her health.

Statements were made recently by the actress and B. P. Schulberg, general manager of Paramount, that termination of the contract was under consideration because of Miss Bow's health. She spent several weeks in a sanatorium because of a nervous condition.

Miss Bow had said that if her request was approved, it would mean only a temporary retirement from films. She said when she has recovered her health she hopes to return to her film career.

Under the contract she was bound to make two more pictures. Although Paramount declined to reveal the salary paid the actress, it was reported in Hollywood that she had been receiving between $2,000 and $3,000 a week.

Miss Bow has been under contract since 1925 when she made her first starring pictures, "It." She has made eight pictures.

To Aid Cuba's Finances

Prof. Seligman, Columbia University economist, has accepted an offer to straighten out Cuba's money tangles.

Washington, D. C.—President Hoover's frank appeal to all citizens of the country to aid him in his efforts to restore normalcy is considered by political observers here to be one of his greatest speeches. It was delivered at Valley Forge, and the President used General Washington's trouble in Revolutionary days as a background against which to picture present difficulties.

Mr. Hoover's greatest drawback has been the way the general public has pictured him as a cold, calculating machine, undemocratic in the extreme. At Valley Forge he touched everyone's heart by the short expression, "I have my troubles also." That phrase, following his assertion that there could be no hope for a change in the financial or employment situation through governmental agencies alone, formed a plea for help that will do more to win him support than anything else he could have said or done, it is thought here.

Mr. Hoover's words carried conviction, both from what he said and the way he said it. Radio listeners, who must have numbered millions, heard a warm, logical, sympathetic voice speaking to them, a voice vastly different from that heard in the few campaign talks he made, which many campaign workers at that time asserted were of little benefit in winning votes because of their mechanical delivery and precise phraseology.

The President unquestionably won many warm supporters by his Valley Forge speech and it will probably be translated into much helpful activity on the part of those who had felt that Hoover's voice was more the voice of big business than a fellow-citizen, sorely tried by the mishaps of drought and financial unsteadiness that overcame the country in the first two years of his administration.

Wheat corners have intrigued the imagination of growers for three generations, in which time Jim Patten, J. Odgen Armour and others have headed purchases of wheat that staggered the country. The Federal Government has just successfully managed the greatest corner of wheat in history, not even being able to make the front pages of newspapers with it because the element of uncertainty was lacking. Carrying 150,000,000 bushels, as it did, at a price varying from around $4 to $1 cents, there has never been a question that the bottom of the nation's pocketbook would ever be reached, forcing the "pool" to dump its holdings with a consequent terrific drop in price. The pool was engineered by the Grain Stabilization Corporation, the Farmers' National Board and the Federal Farm Board all governmental institutions. While the pool has cost the country money, yet the loss to individual farmers would have been enormous had the corner not been run and the country would ultimately have been carried through. Due to the government's trading, all operations have been accomplished in an orderly manner and deliveries have been prompt at all times.

Retirement of Charles C. Teague, California vice-chairman of the Farm Board, which became effective on the first of the month, served to focus attention on the many co-operatives fostered by the government during his tenure of office. The institution of the revolving fund during Teague's work with the board, enabled producers to weather many storms of lowered prices, due to the adoption of systems for more orderly marketing of farm produce.

Teague declared in his letter made public by the President, that governmental aid alone had saved many of the co-operatives from perishing in their early operations and that as the benefits of the Agricultural Marketing Act becomes better known, the growers will hail it as one of the most constructive measures of the present administration. He says he is firmly convinced that more progress has been made in marketing food products in the past two years than in any previous ten-year period in the country's history.

A curious finding was uncovered by the Department of Agriculture this month. It is that wheat ranks sixth in importance in all crops and not first, as many believe. It is exceeded by cotton, milk, hogs, cattle and calves, and eggs and chickens. Cotton accounts for 14.59 per cent of the average farmer's income, milk being a fraction less. Wheat averaged only 7.89 of the total income from farm products.
