TRENCH SILOS POPULAR WITH DAIRY FARMERS

The digging and filling of 28 new trench silos in Stanly County this summer and fall is a fair indication of the tremendous popularity of this economical method of saving feed for winter use by North Carolina dairymen.

"The 28 silos which we have dug and filled this summer are distributed over every section of the county and is a new venture for the men preparing them," says Oscar E. Phillips, county farm agent. "Each of the silos has an average capacity of 27 tons and will feed ten cows for six months at the rate of 30 pounds of silage to each cow a day. These 28 farmers and their families are real pioneers in this new endeavor because none of them had ever seen silage before and knew nothing about the construction or filling of the silo."

Phillips says two of the silos were built by 4-H club boys who pestered their parents until they agreed to have the containers dug.

The experience in Stanly County is but a repetition of that occurring in other Piedmont counties. John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist, says that many of the farm agents are reporting from 6 to 14 new silos per county and that these have all been filled with succulent silage for feeding this winter.

Farmers with small herds are finding that the silo in winter followed by pasture and legume hay in early spring and summer is permitting them to produce milk and cream more economically. The low price for milk and cream is making this low production cost almost imperative if these herd owners are to stay in business. Mr. Arey expects a large increase in the number of trench silos next summer as the new owner find out how well the silage will keep.

Lime And Legumes For Vacant Land

While cotton and tobacco farmers are aiding in the fight to remove the surplus of these crops by reducing their acreages drastically during the next two years, the opportunity is offered to improve the land so that it will never be necessary to plant such large acreages again to obtain equally as good yields.

This is the opinion of Agricultural Extension workers at State College who are urging a return to the old slogan of "Lime, Legumes and Livestock" this fall.

About 95 percent of the tobacco growers have signed agreements promising to reduce their acreage by as much as 30 percent of that planted during the past three years. Cotton growers will be offered a rental and benefit payment plan by which the acreage must be reduced by 40 percent under that of the past five years. This means considerable land removed from the cultivation of cash crops.

To make the best of this situation, extension workers are urging an increased acreage to legume crops this fall. The advantage of having such crops on the land is well known to most farmers but there is this year the additional incentive of producing seed for sale. Indications are that there will be a shortage of all kinds of legume crop seed and those in a position to grow certified seed which may enter the channels of interstate commerce may secure an excellent profit from the project.

The prevailing droughts of summer also makes it imperative to grow as much hay as possible during the winter when there is sufficient moisture in the soil.

Dean I. O. Schaub, director of the Agricultural Extension Service, says further that it is imperative to save all the legume seed possible this fall, especially of soybeans and lespedeza.

Olive Hill P. T. A. Gives Enjoyable Stew

Many thanks to the hospitality committee of the Olive Hill P. T. A. which was responsible for such a delicious Brunswick stew given Friday, October 20th.

Early Friday morning eight huge, steaming pots could be seen hanging on a long pole over glowing coals. Several mothers and fathers were already busy preparing vegetables and meat for the stew. All through the day delicious odors drifted into the school rooms, which made concentration on school books almost impossible.

How happy everyone was when the 2:30 bell sounded. Spectators were eagerly waiting to see the two baseball games which were scheduled for the early part of the afternoon. The boys' game was well played. The girls and boys on the side lines added pep and enthusiasm by giving many yells. After the boys' game the girls of the sixth and seventh grades exhibited their fine talent in playing baseball. Several home runs were made by both teams.

After the games the call, "Soup's on," was heard and eagerly responded to by all. We can truly sympathize with the old woman in the shoe if she had as long a soup line as we did. There were over two hundred children and about one hundred parents present. About 85 gallons of the stew was eaten, and everyone had all he could eat. The twenty gallons left was distributed among those parents present.

The friendly contact and associations among children, parents and teachers was a wholesome one. We hope to have another occasion as this before the school year is over. It is truly worth while.

Sooty Carbon Does Least Harm to Motor

Although most motorists are familiar with carbon and in a general way appreciate the fact that it has a deleterious effect on the operation of their motors, few persons know that three different kinds of carbon may be formed in a motor, depending on the oil used, and that each type has a different effect on the motor.

"Of all the different types the dry, sooty type, which does not accumulate in large amounts and does not affect detonation is the least objectionable," Standard Oil Company of New Jersey's engineers discovered in developing Esolube.

"The scaly, curly type, whose deposits resemble large numbers of tiny clam shells, causes preignition and knocking and leads to lost power and sluggish performance. The third type of carbon is the coarse granular kind that resembles black granulated sugar. This breaks off and wedges between the pistons, rings and cylinder walls and because of its high abrasive quality causes rapid wear.

Carbon need no longer worry the careful motorist as it once did, these lubrication experts point out in a recent bulletin on motor oils. A new method of refining, employing the hydrogenation process, does away with excess carbon in the oil, thus increasing the lubricating qualities of the oil itself, while at the same time assuring low oil consumption and preventing loss of power and undue wear of the motor.

Hurdle Mills P. T. A. Meets on Wednesday

The P. T. A. of Hurdle Mills high school met in the school building Wednesday afternoon, October 20.

Mrs. H. D. Young's seventh grade pupils entertained with a splendid program, which was enjoyed by all.

After the program the meeting was called to order for a business meeting by the president, Mr. H. D. Young.

We received several new members at this meeting. The chairmen of the different committees gave a summary of their duties. It was decided at this meeting to have a Brunswick stew at the school building Friday, Nov. 3rd, sponsored by the P. T. A. for the benefit of the school. A rainy day schedule will be observed on that day, getting out of school at 2:30. At this time there will be a basketball game. Stew will be served during the afternoon. If you can't come earlier, come and have supper with us. After supper about six o'clock the school will give an hour's entertainment of songs, ghost drills, readings and plays. A special feature of entertainment will be a black face comedy by Messrs. Joe B. Currin, Dewey Young and Hubert Gentry. We hope to have the Roxboro choral club present to entertain with some of their negro spirituals. Come and enjoy the game, program and eats. We hope to be able to both entertain and feed you. Stew will again be served after the program. Come and bring your friends and help our school. There will be no admission fee.

Watch next week's Courier for further announcements. Chm. of Pub. for P. T. A.

PERSON CIRCUIT NEWS

There will be preaching at Leas Chapel on fifth Sunday, October 29, at 11 a. m. and at Oak Grove at 3 p. m., the same day. At these services an offering will be taken for our Methodist orphanage, where there are more than three hundred children looking to us for support. Let's raise our entire apportionment for this cause next Sunday!

On Thursday afternoon, October 26, at 2:30 a quarterly meeting of the Aid Society of Concord church will be held with Miss Minnie Lee Winstead. Every member will enjoy the good program and pleasant social hour.

Don't forget the Hallowe'en party at Louis Magstaff's cabin next Friday evening the 27th. The young people of Leas Chapel are trying to raise money for a worthy cause. Let all friends and members of the church show their interest by attending. The Pastor.

HONOR ROLL

The name of Cornelia Satterfield, a graduate business student in the Roxboro high school, was inadvertently omitted from the first honor roll as published in last week's papers. The oversight is cheerfully corrected.

Cornelia's average for the month was 95%. G. C. D.
