Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the care-less choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation. Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys. Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be controlled. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go! Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists, ready for use, in big bottles. Final Plans Made For Cotton Show At Palace Theatre

"Cotton Follies of 1934" To Be Presented Monday And Tuesday, November 6th and 7th

"Pick Dat Cotton," the familiar song line will be changed to "Pick Dat Cotton Queen" at the Palace Theatre on Monday and Tuesday nights, November 6 and 7, when the "Cotton Follies of 1934," the south's own musical extravaganza will be presented by the Ladies Circle of the First Baptist Church. A host of local loveliness will assemble on the stage of the Palace on each of these nights to drive away the boll weevil blues or any other sore of "mood indigo" which may have settled on your disposition. The idea is to stimulate a greater interest in the use of cotton, one of the south's greatest products.

Who will be Miss Queen Cotton? Has suddenly become the question of the hour; who'll be the reigning belle of Beautiful Cotton Court? It will take two nights to decide this important event so the program of "The Cotton Follies" will be completely different each night including the picture program. Excellent pictures have been booked for this great event in Roxboro, making it worthwhile to attend both nights. The spectacular stage presentation will take place between the first and second showing of picture each night only. Color, beauty, music and vaudeville are features of "The Cotton Follies." Rousing choruses and entrancing solos, fascinating drills, and snappy numbers, making it the show of the season. Many local merchants will be represented by local young ladies in the ensemble. And one of these ladies will be selected Queen Cotton by volume applause and presented with a very beautiful loving cup. Don't miss hearing the famous merchants' mouth piece, it's the talk of America; it is new, different, educational.

JOKE GETS JOB BUT STAR MUST KEEP IT GOING

Claudette Colbert, who, with Richard Arlen and Mary Boland, is starred in "Three-Cornered Moon," which comes to the Palace Theatre Thursday, Nov. 2, once discovered that it doesn't pay to jest unless you're willing to keep the joke rolling.

It was a joke that started her on her stage career and keeping that joke rolling has been a serious job that has taken her to the top of the screen heap. The "joke" was this: Several years ago she was an art student in New York. At a tea she met Anne Morrison, the playwright of "Pigs." Jokingly, Miss Colbert said, "You should put me in your next play." Shortly after, Miss Morrison called her and put her in the cast of "The Wild Westcotts."

Entirely Different Barbara Stanwyck "Ever In My Heart"

It's an entirely new and different Barbara Stanwyck who comes to the screen of the Palace Theatre on Friday, Nov. 3, in "Ever In My Heart," her latest starring vehicle for Warner Bros.

Almost always she has appeared in the role of a woman more or less soiled. In "Baby Face" she was a gold digging girl who had no scruples whatever about vamping and ruining men for the sake of luxury. In "Ladies They Talk About" she was a gangster and convict and in "Ten Cents a Dance" a gun moll and taxi dancer.

In "Ever In My Heart," however, she is a changed woman, being a New England girl of strong character and moral fiber assailed by cruel fate. To Miss Stanwyck's credit, her talent is such that she is said to enact this role with even more force and feeling than she has portrayed the women of the underworld. The picture is said to be a romance of rare beauty as well as a drama of terrific emotions and dynamic action. The cast is unusually strong.

New Fox-Lasky Film Gives Jobs To 400

Four hundred Los Angeles railroad men had fuller dinner pails recently as the result of an ambitious production policy by Fox Film.

The men-locomotive engineers, machinists and shop hands—more than 100 of whom had been out of work for months, were hired to man the Union Pacific shops which served as a location for "The Power and the Glory," coming Monday, Nov. 6, to the Palace Theatre. Each man was paid his union or established wage in the pursuit of Director William K. Howard of authenticity and business-like activity in the huge U. P. shops.

The railroadmen, made extras for the occasion, were obtained through the employment agency of the Union Pacific. Each man was assigned to duty by regular shop foremen. Many of the 100 or so who hadn't worked in months were in desperate plights, according to railroad executives, and sorely needed the money paid them by the movie company.

After first "shooting" a scene of the shops in full operation, Howard directed a vivid strike scene utilizing his "extras" and the cast of principals headed by Spencer Tracy and Colleen Moore.

"THE POWER AND THE GLORY" HERE MONDAY

Spencer Tracy And Colleen Moore Are Leads In New Fox Film Produced By Jesse Lasky

"The Power and the Glory," reported as Jesse L. Lasky's most important film in a career replete with important films, comes to the Palace Theatre Monday, Nov. 6. It is Mr. Lasky's third production as a producer under the Fox banner and marks a high point in the screen achievements of this veteran.

The story of the film cannot be separated from the method in which it is told. Through a new medium evolved by Lasky, the film reveals the important events in the life of a man who rises from the most humble beginnings to a position of great power and influence. It shows his change from a simple young man without any education to a figure of national importance with manifold interests and great wealth. It depicts events which make his life a complicated affair of intrigue, adventure and romance.

The new method of screen storytelling is called "narratage" and is said to presage a new form of motion picture technique. It takes the story out of its usual chronological order and emphasizes only the incidents that are important to the pattern of a lifetime. Spencer Tracy, in the leading role, has a characterization that has been heralded as the outstanding one of his career. It is said to present him with almost unlimited opportunities for a varied portrayal of personality. Colleen Moore, absent from the screen for three years, makes her return in the leading feminine role opposite Tracy.

The supporting cast, headed by Ralph Morgan and Helen Vinson, includes Clifford Jones, Henry Kolker, Sarah Padden, Billy O'Brien, Cullen Johnston and J. Farrell MacDonald. The script, in which the idea for narratage was first revealed, is from the pen of Preston Sturges, noted playwright. William K. Howard directed.

Barbara Stanwyck Noted For Home Mission Work

Barbara Stanwyck, who has the staller role in "Ever In My Heart," a Warner Bros. picture which opens at the Palace Theatre, Friday, Nov. 3, has really never given up her early desire to become a missionary. She studied to become one, but was compelled to get something to do die next an orphan. As she was a talented dancer she got a job in a night club and rose to stardom on the stage and later in pictures. She never expects to become a foreign missionary now, but Barbara practices missionary work at home as scores of families in Los Angeles can attest. She is always aiding the needy but will never tell about it. Sometimes, however, the families who have been recipients of her kindness do.
