F. D. R'S SALARY BELOW AVERAGE OF MOVIE STARS

Report Shows 110 Person in Movie Industry Paid in Excess Of $75,000; Maintain Salaries in Face Of Deficit

Washington, July 19.—The motion picture industry, even while suffering a loss of $19,589,393 last year, was shown today to have given 110 people larger salaries in 1933 than that received by President Roosevelt.

Three others equalled Mr. Roosevelt in the salary he would have received without his government pay cut—$75,000.

Salary Inquiry. The inquiry into the salaries paid film stars was ordered by the President when he suspended provisions of the motion picture code making payment of "unreasonably excessive inducements to talent" an unfair trade practice.

Sol A. Rosenblatt, NRA division administrator, who directed the investigation, recommended in his report to Hugh S. Johnson the continued indefinite suspension of the code provisions dealing with salaries. He suggested the creation of a committee to report on whether film artistic talent should not work for a minimum salary base and a percentage of receipts on their pictures.

The committee also would make recommendations on other employment and salary problems. Rosenblatt said "no salary is too excessive if the picture produced by the individual receiving the salary meets with unusual public favor as a result of unique direction or artistry." Not in Harmony.

Some Highlights. Statistics included in Rosenblatt's reports contained these highlights: Of 113 persons who last year received $75,000 or more, 51 were actors, 28 directors, 22 executives, nine producers, two writers, and one a counsel.

N. C. READY FOR RURAL ELECTRIFICATION

The rural electrification of North Carolina will be an important step forward in the agricultural advancement of the State according to David S. Weaver, agricultural engineer at State College.

Thousands of farms over the State are well situated to take advantage of the possibilities now awaiting development, he said, and the time is coming when these farms will be equipped with efficient and economical electrical appliances.

Already there is a large potential source of power which may be obtained by extending rural transmission lines from the 49 municipally-owned plants now in operation. Still more power can be obtained by the development of hydroelectric plants along the many streams in the Piedmont area.

Before a transmission line can be erected with assurance of profitable operation, the farmers along the proposed right-of-way must guarantee the consumption of a reasonable amount of current for each mile of transmission line.

Weaver said that in a number of communities the farmers are getting together and ascertaining how many of their number will use the current if a line is erected.

When a sufficient number agree to install electricity, negotiations can be made with the local power systems for extending transmission lines. He is making a special study of rural electrification possibilities in North Carolina, and is willing to offer suggestions to any group of farmers who communicate with him. He hopes to soon have an investigator available for every two or three counties to go into the field and help the farmers plan for the obtaining of a transmission line and the installation of electrical appliances.

Directors Of Service Conference See Benefits; N. C. Newbold Elected As New President

Chapel Hill, July 20.—Outstanding in a full day's discussion relating to proposed social legislation relating to public health service, agriculture and rural life, training in mental hygiene, minimum wage, child labor, unemployment insurance, capital punishment, beautification of the highways, child welfare and educational administration, was the action of the board of directors of the North Carolina Conferences for Social Service, meeting here at the Carolina Inn, in endorsing, with but one dissenting vote, the proposed new constitution for North Carolina.

While disapproving of some of the changes relating to the constitutional status of the State Board of Public Welfare, and expressing the hope that improvements might soon be effectuated by amendments, the board of directors, because of their belief that the proposed new constitution offers great opportunities for the improvement of state and local government in North Carolina, took the view after an hour and a half of debate, that disagreement over minor matters of detail ought not to impede adoption of the proposed constitution as a whole.
