

HearD about TOWN

No, we didn't say it. A friend of ours says some of the good folks of this county are mad because we said the "farmers are selling their tobacco in Virginia because they can get liquor over there." Again, we say, NO, we said nothing of the kind, but on the other hand, we emphatically said we did not believe it. Read it again:

For instance, some say it is because some nearby markets furnish an opportunity to get white-lightning, liquor, others say it is because of the sales tax, and others say it is because the people of Roxboro care nothing about the farmer until time to sell tobacco comes along. Honestly, we do not believe any of these answer the question; we do not believe the good people of this county are carrying their tobacco to Virginia because they want the privilege of buying liquor from a bar room; as a matter of fact—if reports we hear are true—they can buy all they want, in any quantity they want, at any time they want it, right here in Roxboro.

We dropped in at Hambrick, Austin & Thomas drug store, headquarters of the Busy Business Men, just to see how the boys were doing, and one of the soda jerkers picked up a sandwich and asked the crowd to have breakfast with him. Walter Williams, an old bachelor and a faithful and worthy member of the club, replied: "No, thank you, I am not married." The soda jerker was. "Pretty neat, don't you think."

Flem Long, our popular and worthy chairman of the board of County commissioners, says he now carries one key to his automobile in his pocket. Last week he was attending a religious service down near Wilson. When he arrived on the grounds he got out and locked his car; when he was ready to start home in the late afternoon he put in his key, turned it, but it did not unlock the car, rather he felt it give and upon further examination found he had broken it. And there he was, one of the finest cars in the county, the key on the inside in full view, out no way to get at that key. After driving 20 miles to Wilson he found a locksmith who made him another key but after returning to his car at the church he found the new key would not work. Well, we know Flem is a gentleman, a Christian gentleman, but if there had not been a preacher standing nearby we doubt if we could print what he said about that locksmith. However, the wife of the good preacher was equal to the occasion, for she turned to her handbag—one of those carryalls—and produced a nail file and after much filing and fitting the key unlocked the car, and Flem made the trip home without further trouble, but Flem says from now on the extra key will be found on his key ring, inside of his pocket at any and all times.

Wise business men know that the first thing is to have what people want, and the second is to let them know you have it. In short, advertise in The Courier.

Walter Whitfield of Hurdle Mills, R. 2, one of our most progressive young farmers, was a caller last Thursday. Walter says he has sold all of his crop, save about two barns, and it has averaged more than $35. And, he further says, he tried all of the markets and found Roxboro the BEST. And lots of others have had similar experience.

Fertilizer Gift Yields Rich Return For M. E. Church

Here is a story that will make a hit with a lot of church people who are seeking inspiration to get their house of worship out of debt, also it's a mighty fine fertilizer ad, a swell warehouse ad and it speaks volumes for the members of the Allensville Methodist Church in Allensville Township, of Person county, North Carolina. Since everybody gave everything that entered into the proposition free—they are getting this publicity for nothing—in fact we just love short stories like this.

The Allensville church is built of native white flint rock. The walls are up, the top is on and the sub floor is in, in fact it is being used now as a place of worship.

The church building is a monument to the fine spirit of its congregation led by Rev. S. F. Nicks, who, not at all daunted by the depression, but possessed by the spirit of a Nehemiah of old, began work on the building in January 1933 during the most disastrous winter this generation has ever known.

Last year one of the donations that helped make the church possible was a gift of a ton of Orange 3-8-3 fertilizer by the Smith-Douglas Co., through its agent T. B. Davis, a member of the Allensville congregation. Again this year the same donation was made by the Smith-Douglas Company through T. B. Davis, but this time strings were attached to the gift. The fertilizer was to be used by members of the congregation to grow tobacco the proceeds of which were to go to the building fund of the church.

Today the major portion of the tobacco grown on that ton of Orange fertilizer was sold at the Star Warehouse where T. B. Davis is connected. 1,477 pounds brought $626.00.

The balance of the tobacco on hand with what has been sold previously will swell the total receipts to around $800.00.

Members of the Allensville congregation participating were: Charles A. Gentry, Mrs. Ed. T. Gentry, Thos. O. Gentry, B. G. Compton, Mrs. Lonnie Slaughter and T. B. Davis.

Through the efforts of T. B. Davis and H. K. Sanders, a tax exemption card was obtained for 1,500 pounds which saves over $150 for the church.

This is the best example of what a small gift will do. Truly, the ways of Providence are mysterious but mighty.—Tobacco News.

Roxboro P. T. A. Has An Excellent Meeting

Last Tuesday the Roxboro Parent-Teacher Association held its second meeting for the year. Mrs. Jack Hughes ably discharged the president's duties and then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Berly Clayton, who had charge of the program. Mrs. E. V. Boatwright discussed "The Purpose of the P. T. A." Miss Collins from the Central School and Mr. Heffner from the High School gave reasons for having a rainy day schedule in inclement weather.

At the close of the program the entire group was invited down stairs and served delicious refreshments, prepared by Mrs. Oveida Long, Mrs. J. A. Long, Mrs. George Kane and Mrs. E. V. Boatwright.

The Roxboro association has joined many other associations in thinking that,

"We are blind until we see
That in the human plan
Nothing is worth the making
If it does not make a man.
Why build the nation glorious
If the child unbuilt goes?
In vain we build the city,
Unless the child also grows."

Farmers of Nash county who planted more cotton than allowed in their adjustment contracts have destroyed the surplus acreage.
