Pines Make Crop And Reclaim Land

One thousand loblolly pine seedlings set in 1927 have reclaimed an acre of land on the L. Vanhoy farm in the Plyler section of Stanly Co. and are headed towards making a valuable crop for the farm.

"The pine seedlings were set in March 1927 through the efforts of R. W. Graeber, extension forester at State College," says John W. Artz, county agent of Stanly Co. "At the time of planting L. Vanhoy, father of the present owner, had the seedlings set six feet apart in rows seven feet wide. Recently, Mr. Graeber visited this acre with me and we found that only four of the 1,000 had died. The pines are now seven years old and they average 20 feet high and are four inches in diameter."

Artz said the pines show now that they will need thinning in five years. In the meantime, the young trees will grow considerably taller and will shed their lower limbs due to the crowded condition. After another final thinning later, it is estimated that about 200 pines can be left on the acre to mature into valuable timber.

Artz explained that the Vanhoy farm is being worked by a capable tenant, L. H. Efrid. The trees were set on a steep, rocky acre of land that was badly eroded and in the short time of seven years, there is evidence to show that the acre is being reclaimed.

Among other changes, it eliminates the so-called "corporate excess" tax. It was sent to the Committee on Finance.

L. Vanhoy, father of the present owner, carved the planting date of trees on a large rock in the field. He has died since that time but in addition to his indelible inscription, he has also left a monument in the pine trees standing.

"He set a splendid example for our section in reforesting land that was undesirable for other cultivation," says Mr. Artz.

A change in the silhouette is fore-shadowed by Paris designers. Chanel sponsors slim daytime skirts eased by pleats, 12 to 14 inches from the floor. Lanvin permits petticoats to peep from under the lower hem for afternoon. Molyneux eliminates bias cuts by using gatherings and shirrings. Evening dresses shorter in front. Patou sponsors amber shades and shirred bodices. Maggy Rouff—Grecian lines, front fullness, bloused bodices, loose sleeves. Vionnet shows width at top with silhouettes slim or irregularly full. Worth shows full skirted evening gowns.

Mrs. Meta Fay, assistant to the chief of speakers of the Federal Housing Administration has the job of creating discontent among women and urging them to change their homes—modernizing, adding rooms, modernizing kitchens, building play rooms to make work and life easier—with the help of FHA money.

with a girl who runs a music shop, visited her home and ate viands such as he had never dreamed of before. He is led to believe that the girl's brother, grandson of a great continental chef, had cooked the meal.

By a clever maneuvering he gets a contract for the man at the most fashionable hotel in the city, the Ritz. Then he discovers that he can't even boil water without burning it. A bankers' convention is scheduled at the hotel for that night and the chef is making concoctions that would poison anyone.

Patricia Ellis has the role of the music store girl who finally gets the wild publicity man out of his jam and sobers him down a bit. Allen Jenkins will be seen in a rough and tumble comedy role as a chauffeur and the devoted slave of Gargan.

Dorothy Tree, as a flirtatious gold digger, gets everyone with whom she comes into contact in trouble. Others in the cast include Eric Rhodes as the chef who can't cook, his mother, Bodil Rosing, Ger-don Westcott as a disreputable columnist.

MYSTERY IN McCOY FILM

The mystery of "Hidden Valley," baffling hide-out of hard-riding Tim McCoy in a thrilling picture of Wyoming ranch life, will be unfolded for the entertainment of picture patrons for the first time Saturday at the Palace theatre in "Square Shooter." McCoy plays a dangerous lone hand against crooked ranchers who have cheated him out of an inheritance with lovely Jacqueline Wells in the hands of his enemies, who are played by genuine western cowboys. In support are Charles Middleton, Johnny Darrow, and Wheeler Oakman.

The screen brings a monumental masterpiece of story-telling to life—Charles Dickens' immortal classic—"David Copperfield!"
