

OBSERVATION AND COMMENT

F. O. CARVER, Jr.

POLITICIS

Aside from the two theories of political government that have been so simply expressed by William Hard, writing in June's Red Book, as the feeding of the economic cow, as was done under Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, and the milking of the economic cow, as is now being done so successfully in the present administration, there seems to be a definite swing toward a Left, or Radical thought of government. It has its expression in Huey Long's "Share the Wealth" Clubs on one hand and Father Coughlin's monetary currency reform on the other.

Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico considered himself a staunch supporter of the "Third Party" or, as has been said, the group that believes in the cutting up of the economic cow for general distribution. Since his tragic death these have lost a possible leader who could unify the theories of Long and Coughlin into a political factor of magnificent proportions.

Huey and the Priest can't get together, so it seems likely that someone besides Long will be the candidate for the Presidency on the "Third Party" ticket in '36. Possibly Senator Burton K. Wheeler, a Progressive and a candidate for the Vice-Presidency with LaFollette in 1924 on the Progressive ticket, may be chosen to head the ticket. And then too, Long's chief support lies in the south, while Father Coughlin's lies in the North and West. A man like Senator Wheeler could unite these two elements, it is felt.

Undoubtedly we will see a chastened Republican Party in 1936. They have realized that their policies are not inviolable. But sacrosanct is one word that can be applied to no political organization. Their methods and ideas become outmoded and are voted down by the voting public, sometimes a desperate public.

So it may be that, between those who swing to the Left and rally behind the Long-Coughlin outfit, and those who swing to the Right behind the Old Guard, we Democrats may be in the Apocrypha, or in modern parlance, holding the bag.

At this early date it seems that the "Solid South", in endorsing the policies of the Democratic Party in general and the political dogma of Franklin D. Roosevelt in particular, is going to have a real significance in 1936.

Public's Activities During Hauptmann Trial Probed

Trenton, N. J. May 10—The American Bar Association is investigating the public's activities during Bruno Richard Hauptmann's trial at Flemington.

Oscar Hallam, St. Paul lawyer, visited Trenton and Flemington yesterday, seeking views of the action of the press crowd outside the courtroom.

Hallam said the committee, of which he is chairman, and which will report to the association at its meeting in Los Angeles in July, will probably submit some recommendation concerning conduct of trials, but will not attempt to review any rulings.

He said the committee was concerned only with activities outside the courtroom.

Agriculture Census Shows Gain of 23,685 Farms In This State

North Carolina has 303,393 farms, the enumeration of the bureau of the census, United States department of commerce, now completed, reveals. This information was obtained by the Daily News from James L. Harrison, area supervisor of the quinquennial census of agriculture, who had charge of the work in this state, the area headquarters office having been located in Greensboro.

This constitutes an increase of 23,685, or nearly 8.5 per cent, over the total of 279,708 farms enumerated in North Carolina in 1930, the last preceding farm census.

The area headquarters office in the new federal building here has been closed and Mr. Harrison has returned to Washington where he is with the bureau of the census. He is at 23 Anacostia Road, N. E., Washington, D. C. Miss Marian Massey, who served as office secretary in the area headquarters office, has returned to her home at Durham, the district supervisors and the locations of the district headquarters office were as follows:

District No. 1, David M. Buck, Charlotte; district No. 2, Daniel J. Carter, Lexington; district No. 3, John R. Hall, Greensboro; district No. 4, Walter B. Myrick, Raleigh; district No. 5, Denton W. Lupton, Washington; district No. 6, Edgar V. Edens, Lumberton; district No. 7, Marvin F. Aldridge, New Bern; district No. 8, George F. McAllister, Statesville.

Expresses Appreciation
Upon closing the area office here Mr. Harrison expressed appreciation, on behalf of himself and the bureau, "to all the farmers and the various county and state officials and newspapers who have so kindly rendered their co-operation in this work." The effectiveness with which the work has been prosecuted since its inception about the first of the year has elicited much favorable comment.

Examination of the farm enumeration totals in the 1935 census discloses that of North Carolina's 100 counties, 13 have more than 5,000 each, these being Robeson, 8,020; Johnston, 7,680; Pitt, 6,419; Sampson, 6,333; Wake, 6,009; Wilkes, 5,667; Duplin, 5,661; Buncombe, 5,633; Nash, 5,432; Cleveland, 5,331; Guilford, 5,161; Randolph, 5,146; Wayne, 5,083. The counties with the fewest farms, the 1935 census shows, are Dare, 126; New Hanover, 435; Graham, 865; Camden, 885; Carteret, 887; Currituck, 953.

Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin, is available in all sorts of foods these days, and of course, the greatest single source outside of the direct use of sunlight on bare skin, is even yet—cod liver oil! But foods irradiated with ultra violet light are on the market, fresh milk of cows that have been fed irradiated food, fresh milk that has been irradiated with ultra-violet light, and condensed milk treated the same way—all these have more vitamin D than they would without special care.

Study New Plan Of Seeding Pines

A new idea in reforesting loblolly and longleaf pines on idle farm lands is being tested by eleven farmers in ten North Carolina counties under the supervision of R. W. Graeber, extension forester at State College.

"We are broadcasting the pine seed at the rate of one pound per acre with the loblolly variety and 1 1/2 pound per acre with the longleaf variety," says Mr. Graeber, in explaining the plan. "This is not a heavy seeding but when we realize that loblolly seed average about 20,000 seed to the pound, this amount would seem sufficient. Then too we are preparing the land with a disk harrow and the seed are covered with a drag harrow, weeder or brush. We plan to make periodic observations of the planted plots to see if the plan justifies wider adoption."

Mr. Graeber says the idea back of the experiment is to find a quick and economical method of reforesting idle farm lands on an extensive scale with the smallest outlay of labor and seed cost. Heretofore, the artificial broadcasting of pine seed has been done largely on cut-over pine lands and has not been successful. By preparing the land and covering the seed, it is hoped to get better results.

Those farmers cooperating with Mr. Graeber in the plan are checking the seedings to study the best time of seeding and to see how much of the seed is devoured by migratory birds. The seedings were all made at different times extending from January 20 to March 20. Further seeding tests are planned for 1936 extending over a wider range of soil and time.

Until the plan has been proven successful, Mr. Graeber advises prospective growers to get seedlings from forest nurseries in the usual way.

USING Nature's GIFTS

The Carolinas' storehouses of valuable minerals have been almost overlooked. These states have the largest variety of minerals in the nation. Approximately 300 species and sub species have been identified in the Carolinas.

More thorough research to determine the extent and value of minerals is needed. Possibilities of utilization of these products in manufacturing enterprises in the two states are almost limitless. To fail to exploit these opportunities permits other states to reap the major benefits from our resources.

DEVELOPMENT POSSIBILITIES INCLUDE:

Clays:

The United States imports from 250,000 to 300,000 tons annually. Recent tests reveal that Carolina Clay meet the highest standards. North Carolina has residual and South Carolina, sedimentary clays.

Mica:

New uses developed during last several years have created a greater demand for this mineral. The Carolinas have produced more than half of the nation's output for the last several years.

Alloys:

Rare alloys present a new field of expansion for the Carolinas' mineral industry. Many of these, such as nickel, beryllium, titanium, tungsten, molybdenum, columbium and tantalum have not been prospected.

Chinaware, Refractories Electric Porcelain and Glass:

Principal raw materials necessary for the manufacture of these products (clays, feldspar, kyanite and quartz or silica) are produced in great quantities in the Carolinas. With their large power developments and the development of a new type of heat unit, these States should become the center of these industries.

Manhattan Transfer. That's the name of a play: It's mentioned in songs and stories. It isn't a town. It isn't even in a town. It's just a station where the Pennsylvania Railroad trains change to electric engines before diving under the river of Manhattan. . . . And now it's slated to go, because the Pennsy has electrified a long stretch of its lines, and engine changing will be done at Newark.

An extra-high-hat purveyor of groceries in New York also purveys fine tobaccos, including a cigar at a dollar an issue. They used to have the same and, though perhaps not the same cigar at six bucks per each, if you please, and if you haven't a fancy humidor to keep them at about 65 degrees and about 60 per cent humidity, they'll do it for you—at a price. And the man at the counter since 1888 (who buys his own) smokes and likes a ten cent cheroot.

About to return to France aboard the Manhattan, Louis Bromfield found he had inadvertently torn up his ticket in the taxi to the pier. He ordered a boy to find the cab—a job that seemed impossible. But just before sailing time, the boy returned with enough shreds of the ticket to let Bromfield aboard. He'd gone down a long line of cabs at the pier until he found one with enough scraps of paper to look like the right one!
