

Providence Baptist Church Dedicated Sunday, June 30th

All-Day Services in Charge of The Pastor, Rev. J. C. McGregor

Providence Baptist Church, situated about three miles north of Roxboro, one of the best equipped country churches in the County, was dedicated Sunday, Rev. J. C. McGregor is the pastor, and under his leadership these good people have almost accomplished the impossible. Back in the days when we were all enjoying prosperity the church decided to build, and erected a house costing ten thousand dollars or more, carrying a debt of six thousand dollars. Then the depression, and things looked mighty gloomy for these good people; but they never gave up, and Sunday, with all debts paid, they dedicated the house to the Lord.

There was a large crowd present, but one thing was very noticeable, there were no children in the audience. The services opened with Sunday School at 9:30. At the close of the school Rev. N. J. Todd, a former pastor of the church, delivered one of his best sermons—and all who have heard Mr. Todd know what that means. At 11:30 the dedication services took place, with Rev. C. H. Stanfield reading the Scriptures, and prayer by Rev. J. H. Fordon. After these services dinner was served on the ground. After lunch the exercises were continued with songs by the various choirs present. J. W. Noell spoke on "The Deacon's office," which was followed by Rev. B. E. Kelly, who spoke on "The Mission of the Church."

To us the most enjoyable part of these exercises was the music. This community is settled largely by Gentrys, Perkins and Slaughters, and they are just naturally singers; we do not believe we will offend any one when we say there are more good singers in this community than will be found anywhere in the County. The Providence choir, under the leadership of Mr. Thomas Perkins, was exceptionally good; there were about forty voices in the choir, and it was a real pleasure to hear them. There were selections by several other choirs which were greatly enjoyed, but Providence stood out in front. It was a happy day for the Providence folks, and it was a pleasure to meet with them.

Davis, who with his family and another family, occupies a house belonging to Mr. Gentry near the Allensville school, is alleged to have cut the young man while he was standing in his yard. No motive could be assigned for the act.

Young Gentry thought at first that some one had hit him in the back with a rock or some other instrument, but when he was examined it was found that he had been cut with a knife.

He was rushed to a doctor here and a more thorough examination revealed a cut two inches in depth and eight or ten inches in length. Though a flesh wound the knife had severed some muscles, the wound going to the boy's spinal cord.

Davis was apprehended at his home shortly after the affray and is now in jail awaiting a hearing.

Young Gentry, after receiving treatment here, was carried back to his father's home where he is said to be resting as well as could be expected. Barring complications, it is not thought that his condition is critical.

Refuses To Leave; Is Shot Down In Cold Blood

21-Year-Old Negro Shot Down By Elderly Negro Man Friday Night

At about 9:15 P. M. Friday night, so the story goes, George Timberlake, fifty odd year old negro tenant on the farm of Mr. W. R. Wilkerson, told Herman Newman, 21-year-old wage hand on the same farm that it was bedtime and he must leave his house, where he had been visiting for the evening.

After being told several times, it is said, tempers got out of bounds and there was some profanity slung around. Timberlake, remarking that there sounded like a dog out there, referring to the front of his house, reached for his shot-gun, stepped out on the front porch, turned and shot Newman down. He died about fifteen minutes later.

Though it could not be substantiated, it was thought that there had been some ill feeling between the two negroes for quite a time before the killing and that it culminated Friday.

Timberlake is a married man with a family and had been living on the same farm for eleven years. He is now in jail, but efforts are being made to arrange bond for him, in order that he might save his crop. Newman was hired by Mr. Wilkerson in April to work for him this season.

Funeral services for the dead man were held Saturday afternoon from Young's Chapel Church.

However, every ballot that was cast before the deadline on Saturday will be counted in the referendum.

The total ballot is approximately 3,000 with sixteen votes being cast against the program.

This puts the county in accord with other counties throughout the state and the tobacco growing section of the country, as the vote favoring continuance of the program has been overwhelming.
