

Hear D About TOWN

Now is a good time to visit the post office; the floor has been oiled, cobwebs all brushed down, in fact it is spick and span. Reason: Inspector expected.

We kinder believe it would be a good idea to make application to the PWA, or maybe it should be the WPA, for an airport and an armory for Roxboro. Of course, we have no earthly use for either, as we do not have any soldier boys, neither any flying machines, but the government seems to be looking with favor on these two propositions, and not at all in favor of more worth while propositions. About two years since the town put quite a bit of money in what was supposed to be a swimming pool, with the understanding that it would be completed by government money from some of the many alphabetical set-ups, but the cement hole in the ground is all there is to show for it. Yes, let's try for an airport.

The 1930 census gave Roxboro a population of 3657, but judging by the number of children on the school grounds Tuesday there must be at least twice that number now, or else the families must average about 16.3 per family.

Roxboro has been discriminated against in the way of opening of the tobacco market, this market opening two weeks after neighboring markets opened; the result has been heretofore that many loads of tobacco which should have been sold on this market went to said neighboring markets. Well, we'll bet you a ginger cake there will not be so many this season, that is, unless the price gets better.

BARRIED

The Post Office Department continues its efforts to prevent sweepstakes operators in Canada, Cuba and Ireland from operating in this county. Last week 128 were banned from the mails under a fraud order.

Three Fighters Who Will Appear On Next Card Here

JIMMY PATTISALL

TOMMIE BARTON

J. P. MORGAN, JR.

Here are three good reasons why you should plan to be at the next boxing card to be presented here on September 27th. Pattisall will meet Campbell. He is welterweight champion of Virginia amateurs and has made an excellent record in the ring. Conqueror of Oakley on July 4, Pattisall will make his second appearance here on 27th. Morgan and Barton, both of whom have fought here before, and who have impressed their audiences with good fighting will also fight here on the same card, Morgan meeting Tommy Seawell of Ca-Vel, and Barton meeting Malcolm Umstead of this city.

Pattisall To Fight Campbell In Main Bout On Sept. 27th

Conqueror Of Oakley To Meet Duke Campbell, Who Won From Cox In Last Event

The headliner for the boxing event to be staged at the Winstead Warehouse here on Friday night, September 27, at 9:00 P. M. will be between Jimmy Pattisall, 142 pound fighter of Danville, Va., and Duke Campbell, 140, of Durham. They will engage in five two-minute rounds.

Pattisall has appeared here before when he knocked out Clyde "Jack" Oakley in the first moments of the first round on July Fourth. Campbell made his first appearance here when he won from Fred Cox of Danville in the main event of the last fight. Both fighters have impressed audiences with their fighting and it is felt that this fight will be well worth seeing.

Other bouts scheduled for the same card include Malcolm Umstead, 152 pounds of Roxboro vs Tommie Barton, 148 pounds, of Danville; Thomas Seawell, 132 pounds, of Ca-Vel, N. C., vs J. P. Morgan, Jr., 126 pounds, of Danville; Thomas Rigley, 110 pounds, of Danville vs Charlie Atkins, 108 pounds, of Danville; and one colored bout between "Snake-Eye" Tharpe vs "Dee" Amos of Durham. These fighters weigh 158 and 156 pounds respectively, and should put up a good scrap, as fans who have seen Amos, a newcomer to the ring here, say that he will be a match for the mighty Snake-Eye.

Readers will note that this card presents many newcomers to the Roxboro arena, and it is felt that this will be one of the best cards ever presented for the enjoyment of local fans. Admission will be: general admission 25c; ringside, 25c.

THE DEATH OF MRS. W. O. LONG

Mrs. W. O. Long of near Dixon's store passed away Saturday afternoon the 14th at 4:15 o'clock following a long illness.

She leaves to mourn her death a mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Wilson, of Virgilina, Va., and four brothers, Herbert, James Asa and Johnnie Wilson all of Virgilina, Va., and seven sisters: Mrs. Terby Long of Roxboro, N. C., Misses Martha, Elena, Ada, Ophelia, Sueleen and Edna Wilson all of Virgilina.

Also her husband, Mr. W. O. Long and a host of relatives and friends.

Mrs. Long was laid to rest in the Union cemetery under a beautiful mound of flowers with Rev. Harris to conduct the funeral.

The flower bearers were Miss Maggie Saunders, Miss Martha Wilson, Miss Louie Long, Miss Hazel Long, Miss Elma Wilson, Miss Ada Wilson, Miss Ophelia Wilson, Miss Gerlene and Thelma Wilson.

The pall bearers were friends of Mrs. Long.

A loving one from us has gone, A voice we hear is stilled.

A place is vacant in the home that no one else can fill.

Sleep on dear Etta and take thy rest. We all loved you, but God loved you best.

He sent a band of angels to take you to rest. Oh, how we miss you, Etta, more than we can tell, but we will all live, dear to meet you in that beautiful heaven above. We know you are waiting at the golden gates to welcome us home when we pay the debts that you have paid. We know that you are at rest where no pain is suffered and no tears are shed. "Gone but not forgotten."

By her friend, Miss Maggie Saunders.

The Story of the Constitution
by CALEB JOHNSON

X. HOW THE CONSTITUTION GREW

The Constitution was not intended to be a rigid body of law, but a broad statement of democratic principles and a set of rules for the application of those principles. For as long as the Legislative, Executive and Judicial branches of the Federal Government adhered to those principles and were guided by those rules, they were given almost a free hand to do anything that changing circumstances and conditions might require to be done. If at any time it seemed desirable to change the rules, the Constitution itself provided a method of amendment.

The growth of the Constitution, to keep pace with the growth of the Nation and the changing times, has, however, been accomplished not as much by changing the rules as by successive interpretations of the rules by the Supreme Court. There have been only eleven amendments to the Constitution in the 144 years since the adoption of the first ten, which constituted the Bill of Rights. But through the decisions of the Supreme Court, the principles which were stated only in broad, general terms by the framers of the Constitution, have been clarified and applied, almost from the beginning, in new ways to meet new situations. The great body of constitutional law comprised in the decisions of the Supreme Court has become as much a part of the Constitution as the original document itself. It has been developed into something living, flexible, adaptable to every social and economic change in human affairs; yet not once, either by amendment or by interpretation, have the fundamental principles laid down in the Constitution been abandoned.

The growth of the Constitution began with the advent of John Marshall as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, in 1801. In the 34 years throughout which Marshall presided over the Judicial branch of the Federal Government, hardly a phase of the Constitution did not come before the Court for interpretation. John Marshall's decisions pointed the way to keep the Constitution abreast of the time without sacrificing the principles of democracy.

Marshall first seized upon the possibilities inherent in the clause giving Congress power to regulate commerce, between the states. His successors, following his lead, have made it possible by their decisions, to expand the powers of the Federal Government in pace with social and economic evolution. No provision of the Constitution has been more zealously scrutinized than this one, as both Congress and the Executive have constantly sought to broaden the powers of the Federal Government. Upon the rather slender thread of "commerce among the several states" hangs a weight of Federal powers that would have snapped any less elastic provision.

Through the bold exercise of its right to decide what the Constitution means, the Supreme Court has made the Constitution reflect the solid convictions of the people, throughout all the transformations brought about by forces of which the framers of the Constitution never dreamed. The inevitable result of steam and electricity applied in railroads, telegraph and telephone, was to unify the Nation, and to give the Federal Government steadily increasing importance as compared with the individual states. The great function of the Supreme Court has been to determine how far the Federal Government might exercise its powers to meet conditions thrust upon it by such physical unification, without infringing unduly upon the rights reserved to the states.
