SATURDAY, MAY 8, 1909.

Charlotte says that she will be able to take care of us. Well, we are all going if we have to bunk in the public square.

Florida had better be satisfied with the suffrage laws as other Southern States. A bill is before the legislature to give the ballot only "to every white male person twenty-one years old."

The new Spanish Armored Cruiser Viscaya paid a friendly visit to our shores before the war with Spain in '98 and she is now on the junk-pile. The Japanese warships were received with all due honors at San Francisco and they made a junk-pile of the Russian naval vessels.

The efficiency of the American navy is now acknowledged the world over—keep it so.

There is an opening in the business world for a large insurance company, a number of them for that matter, that will on a business basis work out a cheaper line of insurance. In order to do this the stockholders must first make up their minds to be satisfied with an average profit on a good investment and the policy-holder should also be satisfied to take some risk and not ask the earth for a guarantee that the loss will be paid at his death. Much can be done in this direction by selecting men to manage and control such companies in whom the public already has faith.

The insurance companies do not yet reach the great masses of people who need it most and we believe that ere long there will be a change in the policy of some of the old line companies. There is already cheap insurance, some of it good, but the most of it fakey. The need is for safety and cheapness. Can it be done?

A BENEFICIAL MOVE.

The extremely favorable location of the city of High Point as a manufacturing center leads to the opinion in a great many minds that a diversity of industries would be of great benefit in more ways than one. The lines manufactured by the different companies would spread into all parts of the world carrying the name of High Point into many lands and over many seas, causing people generally to inquire about it as to its availability as a place to locate their plant and eventually bringing into our midst many different manufacturing establishments. This would mean of course increased population—real estate would increase in value as the necessity for more houses arose—the trade of our merchants would be increased in proportion as the population increased and a general era of prosperity would be with us.

It is not the purpose of this article to designate the different lines of business which would find it to their interest to locate in High Point but that there is room and actual need for a toy factory which would utilize the by-products of our furniture factories.

It would seem reasonable to believe that a cotton factory could be located here with advantage to the concern and great benefit to the city. Surely the silk mill we already have is a great addition to the manufacturing district and the class of operatives which work in a cotton mill is about the same as those who work in the silk mill so we need have no hesitancy on the score of undesirable inhabitants.

HOW THEY DO IT IN KANSAS.

"Eastern automobile factories are now making a strong bid for the trade of western Kansas," said Fred S. Walker, of Topeka, Kan., recently. "They are not only establishing agencies in every county seat town in the short grass country, but are also making special models of autos for that trade. Whether they will be able to drive the saddle horse out of business remains to be seen."

"Probably no people in the world are more prosperous than the farmers of western Kansas," continued Mr. Walker. "Reports show that their bank deposits aggregate $400 for each man, woman and child. The average over the state is $135 per capita, which far exceeds the per capita deposits of other states."

"The short grass farmers have thousands of tons of alfalfa in the stack, more growing wheat in the bin and in the ground, while cattle and horses and mules are roaming on every side. Up-to-date farm machinery makes it possible for the farmer to spare his children time to go to school from seven to nine months in the year, and the school he provides for them now is just as good as that provided for the children in the thickly settled sections of the east. The only difference is that the schools are not so numerous."

"At the present time the saddle horse is the most popular means of transportation," added Mr. Walker. "Every morning the roads around a country seat town are lined with boys and girls on horseback with their geometry, botany, Caesar, Virgil and other high school books coming to school. Sheds are provided at most of the schools to shelter the horses during school hours. The farmers take turns about furnishing feed for the horses. When school is out for the day the pupils go downtown, do the trading for the family and ride home."

"Many farmers are now buying automobiles for their children to use in going to and returning from school. Frequently two or more farmers make up a jackpot and buy a light touring car just for the children to go to school in."

LIMITS BRITISH TRADE IN PHILIPPINE ISLAND

Special to the Enterprise. London, May 8.—The announcement that the American government intends to close the Philippine market to other nations by establishing free trade between the islands and the United States means the ruin of an extensive and growing trade in British goods. Some of the British export houses mainly engaged in Philippine trade have connections that date back over 100 years. Special resentment has been aroused because, when America took the islands over from Spain in 1898, specific assurances were given to the British foreign office that no tariff changes would be made injurious to our old established commerce there. Under the Treaty of Paris made at the close of the Spanish-American War, America was bound to keep the Philippine market open to other countries for 10 years, ending on April 11, last. In this open market British manufacturers have more than held their own. In the 4 years, 1904-7, the imports of British products and manufacturers were about $8,000,000 a year, while those from the United States averaged less than $6,500,000 a year. An export duty was recently imposed on Philippine hemp and a full rebate was given on all sent to America. Up to then the center of the hemp trade had been in London. The American government also declared recently that all trade between America and the Philippines was coastal trade, and that none but ships under the American register could take part in it. Up to then the trade had been largely done in British ships. There are about 20 British firms in Manila alone. The largest import and export firms are British, the two leading banks are British, a British company owns the railway, and many of the most important enterprises have British capital behind them.

An announcement is made that the Russian government has secured for the navy the technical advice of John Brown, of Clydebank, and the news has been received in Glasgow with the greatest satisfaction. It is known the Germans had high hopes of securing the overlooking of the Russian naval work. No time will be lost in making a start with the long delayed Russian naval program. The condition of the Brown agreement is that the work will all be done in Russian yards by Russian artisans. Since the destruction of the most effective Russian ships in the Japanese war the Russian navy has been a negligible quantity. The recent German humiliation of Russia over the Balkans, and the startling disclosures of the weakness of the French navy, have no doubt been the two forces that have impelled the allies of the French to delay no longer in strengthening a naval force that has sunk to a very low level.
