ANNA'S EASTER DREAM

BY LOUISE COOPER

When little Anna went to sleep
Upon the eve of Easter day
She dreamed of candied eggs a heap
And frisky, brisky lambs at play.
Plump Dumpty Dumpty with a bow,
Blood smiling on its countenance,
And Ducky Daddie, wondering how,
Was at the foot just to explain.
Three baby ducks in noisily play,
Who never thought to pardon beg,
Cried "Quack, quack, quack, for Easter day!"
And then tobogganed down an egg,
A rooster and a hen on seat
Exclaimed, "Please put us in the rhyme,
For we are doing our level best
In working up the Easter time!"
Five bunnies, each with eyes of pink
And ears so long they flapped like wings,
Said, "After all, do you not think
That we are cunning little things?"
Two lambs, like that which Mary had,
That frolicked as all lambs will do,
Said, "We are not considered bad,
And, don't forget, we're little, too."
Five sparrows, proud of their wee size—
They never grow too broad or tall—
Chirped, "We should surely win a prize,
For we are littlet of them all."
Two tiny men from Etaham,
With good strong arm and sturdy leg,
Held steady as a block of gum
A large and glowing rainbow egg;
There, standing on it like a queen,
With rosy lips and roguish eye,
In pink and gold and brown and green,
The girly, curly butterfly.

RALEIGH MEAT DEALERS FINED BY CITY COURT

Raleigh, March 26.—After a trial in the city court extending through ten days fines of $500 were assessed against Swift and company, meat packers, and $50 against W. D. Vaughn, local manager of that company, for putting on the market a dressed hog declared to be unfit for food. The alleged defect in the carcass was declared to have been of a pronounced character, showing organic impurities, which, it is said, should have condemned the animal before being slaughtered. An appeal was taken to the Superior court in each case.

FORMAL OPENING JR. ORDER COUNCIL ROOMS

There was a large gathering in the Council rooms of the Junior Order last night to witness the exercises incidental to the formal opening of the lodge room. It was about as fine an audience as we have seen assembled in High Point for some time.

District Deputy J. W. Sechrest presided. After the invocation by Rev. J. E. Thompson the address of welcome was delivered by Mayor F. N. Tate in a very appropriate speech. In a happy vein Mr. Webb, of Greensboro, made a response, one of his characteristic speeches, which are always good. Dr. W. G. Bradshaw, of High Point, introducing the main speaker of the evening, Judge Eure, paid a handsome tribute to the local Junior Order and referred in complimentary terms to the public spirit which has been manifested in the order and the general usefulness which has characterized its movements for several years. Judge Eure made one of his finest speeches, which is saying a great deal. He has unusual oratorical powers and when he is brought out on a popular subject which stands near his heart as does the Junior Order, his remarks are highly interesting as well as instructive. He complimented High Point Junior Order on the work it was doing here, the influence of which extended throughout the district. Judge Eure was followed by Mr. John Phoenix, of Greensboro, who made a very witty speech and wound up with some very pleasant references to the High Point Junior Order boys. Another principal speaker of the evening was Mr. Joyce, of Reidsville. Mr. Joyce is quite an orator and after leading off with some happy hits relative to the District Deputy and to the High Point Junior Order Councils, he delivered a most patriotic speech which was highly enjoyed by all present.

Another one of the home speakers was Dr. Dred Peacock, always a popular speaker here. Dr. Peacock made a splendid speech which embraced some very fine references to the splendid work the local Junior Order was doing from his observations as an outsider, closing with some fine historical references on the lines of virtue, patriotism and liberty, for which the Junior Order stands. Dr. Peacock was very eloquent in his allusions to the divine part of the work of the Junior Order as based upon the Bible. The last speech of the evening was made by J. J. Farris, who referred incidentally to the good work of the order in the community and to the work of the officers who had done so much to bring about the good results that have been accomplished.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Kid Band and as usual, they did well. The Enterprise desires to congratulate the Junior Order on the success of the formal opening of the new Council room. It was one of the best meetings that we ever attended and we think it was enjoyed by all who were present. We trust that they will have these public gatherings often. We believe it will be largely enjoyed, as well as of benefit to the entire community.

A COLD EASTER?

Tomorrow's Forecast Gives Promise of it.

If the prophecy of the Weather Bureau stands and like is to follow like some cool weather may be expected for Easter Sunday. Saying that it will be fair tonight, the forecast adds: Colder Sunday.

TELEGRAPH POLES ON FIRE

The firm alarm was turned in from box No. 32 this morning at ten o'clock. The fire department made a prompt response and found the fire to be a pile of telephone poles in front of the Alma Furniture Co. The blaze was evidently started from sparks from a locomotive. The fire was soon extinguished, but was getting under good headway when the fire department arrived.

ANOTHER LOCAL OPTION MASS-MEETING.

The Salisbury Post says: It leaks out today that a meeting similar to that held at Henderson by local optionists several weeks ago will be held in Salisbury shortly. A meeting of a number of citizens representing the various parties will probably be held one day next week at which time a mass meeting will be called. A speaker will address the meeting and it is not unlikely that an organization will be effected to wage a campaign for local option.

It is understood that meetings of this character will be held in several other counties in the state.
