STORIES OF SUCCESS

EZRA CORNELL

Born of pioneer parents in the sterile hills of De Ruyter, New York, the oldest of eleven children, Ezra Cornell at sixteen suddenly determined to do something more than a potter. Invincible determination carried him aloft. And at though he chopped wood to put himself through grammar school, and was successful as foreman in a lumber yard for years, it was not until the age of thirty-five that success came through co-operation with Samuel B. Morse in the development of the telegraph. Then, after many weary failures, wealth came gloriously.

One of the first acts of this self-taught man was the founding of Cornell University, and almost his last address was a sermon on thrift for those who look to their future development. Thrift, today, is still the important asset of a young man's success. Timely savings of the few dollars you will never miss are the factors that will make you win out and our savings department reaches out to aid you. Aren't you almost ready?

World's Biggest Strike

Ten Million People Directly Affected. The Peace of England Threatened.

Special to Enterprise.
London, March 23.—Two and a half million workers, men, women and children are jobless today. Depending on them are enough others to bring the total of those slowly approaching starvation because of paralysis of business due to miners' strike exhaustion of reserve supply of fuel to ten millions. So serious is the situation the heads of various municipalities reported to the government that if the strike is not speedily settled they cannot be responsible for keeping order. Home office has admitted that fifty thousand soup kitchens are in operation in North Wales conducted by the municipalities.

Victims Maine Disaster

Laid to Rest at Arlington This Afternoon—Thousands Pay Respects.

Washington, D.C., Mar. 23.—The capital is still this afternoon while thirty four caskets containing the bones of the Maine victims passed through Pennsylvania avenue en route to Arlington. The President and his official family, representatives of diplomatic corps and all branches of National defense participated in the solemn and impressive services. Flags draped flew at half mast. Twenty five thousand people thronged the street and remained with uncovered heads as the caskets passed. At the navy department building President Taft delivered the principal eulogy. Father Chadwick, chaplain of the Maine, gave utterance to his personal grief of survivors. Sixteen hundred soldiers and sailors escorted the bodies from the navy yards, where they were brought by the Cruiser Birmingham from Hampton Roads, where they were transferred from the Cruiser North Carolina.

CHURCHES

"The man who has one talent is as much the servant of God as he who has five; he must give account of his one talent. The man who can work best in one pulpit and in one church is as much a servant of God as the evangelist who flies from continent to continent and makes all the world his sphere of usefulness. The Sunday school teacher who can speak to only two scholars at a time because three would be too much of a crowd, is as much a teacher of Christ's kingdom, if in earnest, as if he could address ten thousand men in thunder-tones. Why cannot we recognize these differences and appraise them at their true value?" Let no one despise his day of small things.

VISITING BUYERS.

Mr. Comer, manager of The Furniture Exchange, informs the Enterprise of the presence in the city of Mr. W. T. Walker, of Savannah, manager of a chain of stores, who has been here buying furniture.

Mr. R. F. Dalton Stricken

Friends of R. F. Dalton were greatly alarmed last night by reports that he had been stricken with a violent illness on the street and his condition was very serious. A report from his bedside later to the effect that he was resting comfortably and that his condition was in no sense considered critical caused genuine relief and gratification to those who had heard of his illness.

Mr. Dalton had been reading in the club in the late afternoon and about 5 o'clock remarked that he had a dizzy feeling and believed he would go home and take a dose of medicine. He saw he had felt similar attacks several times in the past few months. On the street he joined a son, the two walking toward home together. When he turned the Sycamore street corner Mr. Dalton became very weak and the assistance of a passing acquaintance was required to get him to his room. He soon fell asleep and last night his condition seemed greatly improved.—Greensboro News.

The Enterprise inquired after Mr. Dalton this afternoon and found him better. He had a very serious attack.

THOSE who are anxious to secure the worth of their money in the purchase of a piano had better consult the great firm of CHAS. M. STIEFF before closing a trade

Its mighty easy to be tripped into buying a cheap piano by canvassers representing, well you don't know what or who. They have nothing at stake and you are the victim.

Better patronize a firm that has something at stake and whose interest is your interest.
