It's going

You cannot expect it to do otherwise in view of the coal miners strike which has been in effect since last April, and is still unsettled among the West Virginia miners. Indications are that there is going to be a serious shortage of coal the coming winter, and we cannot too strongly urge that you place your order now for a sufficient supply to be delivered before November. Although there has been a strong advance in prices at the mines, we are quoting our old prices for fall delivery.

Don't put it off, but place your order now. We can supply you with the very best of each respective kind, and guarantee satisfaction in every respect. Remember we are still exclusive agents for the celebrated CLINCHFIELD RED ASH Domestic Lump. No better grate coal can be had at any price.

Hon. Bird S. Coler Speaks at Thomasville

Thomasville had "Everybody's Day" today and it was a success. Hon. Bird S. Coler was the orator of the day.

Mr. Coler said:

There is something American and democratic in the title of this day. In a nation that has no room for class distinctions on the one hand and class warfare on the other, it is fitting that we should have a day that is the holiday for everybody, the rich and the poor, the employer and the employe, the man with his muscle and brain for capital and the man with stored dollars for capital. It is a fine thing to have a day for all these and that the same day. It is a sign that we are not swerving to the right or the left from the democratic path blazed by the fathers of the philosophy and our politics, we are still sturdily and unchangeably American; that despite the philosophy that would make us "International" we are more national than ever we were before because we are more than ever a nation. It is a kindly, comprehensive political faith, this American faith of democracy—it takes in everybody and it warms the heart of everybody it takes in.

They tell us we have tremendous problems to solve. They tell us that we live in a changing age, that we are passing from an old political and economic era to a new. They tell us that the old ideals are dead, and that new materialities must take their place. They tell us that to eat and drink and travel in luxury are all of life. They go through the streets shouting that the old truths are no longer true, the old principles are no longer living, the old patriotism is a doddering, senile humbug, the old faith is dead.

This they say in certain college halls, and on certain soapboxes through the country it is parroted with variations fashioned to fit the political exigencies of the time and place.

But we who live with our feet on the ground and our heads in God's blue heaven, we who are still proud of our American traditions and our American citizenship, we who have common everyday problems to solve that are the problems of everybody—thank God we have not lost the faith. Thank God for us the old truths are always true, for us the old principles are forever fresh and vital, for us patriotism is still a holy and a glorious thing, for us the old faith lives eternally. We meet here, on "Everybody's Day," in everybody's land of freedom, to rejoice that everybody's government shall not perish from the earth. We meet here with leaping hearts to acclaim the unfading beauty and eternal glory of everybody's red white and blue banner, still a fluttering pledge of a bold purpose, still star-spangled, still supreme.

We hear much in these days of the evils that beset our country, and there is much truth in what we hear. But before we undertake to uproot the evils, let us sanely and calmly locate them, lest in our eagerness to uproot good things and leave the evils unmolested. We are told by some that the evil is in our form of government. What is evil in our form of Government? It is a Republican form of government. Every act of government is the act of human beings, and we select the human beings who do these things. We have a complete control of our government. It is a reflection, not upon the form of government but upon our citizenship, if the government is controlled by privilege. Who lets it be so controlled? They tell us the bosses, but there isn't a boss from the Atlantic to the Pacific who could hold his bossip ten days if a real majority decreed his fall. They tell us that the people are outwitted by cunning, conscienceless men. It is quite true that the conscienceless man has certain advantages over the conscientious man. The latter is bound by the rules of the game, the former cheats. But the instrument of government that was devised by the Fathers of this Republic put the power in the hands of the people to bridle the cunning and the strong. Under the constitution and the laws as

Mr. Ecker Buys Valuable Site for Glass Factory

The Enterprise is advised by Mr. Ferdinand Ecker that he has purchased from the Columbia Furniture Co. the valuable factory site next to the mattress factory of Mr. O. A. Kirkman. The site is one of the most available sites for his business that he could have purchased, being 150x487, running through to Green street and fronting on the main line of the Southern Railroad.

Mr. Ecker advises us that later on he expects to erect on this site a modern and up-to-date glass plant.

WORTHLESS STRANGE NEGROES WHO ARE WHISKEY DRINKERS.

High Point is infested with a class of worthless strange negroes, both men and women, who hang around the shanties along Railroad avenue, and around the depot. They are vagrants on the town—they don't live here in the first place, and they should be put on the county roads or made to go to work. You can see them every day and night in the year, getting on and off the train with suit cases of liquor. We believe they are peddling this liquor here. We see no excuse for a community like High Point, encouraging this filthy condition. That class of the dressed up and drunk strange negro, is a menace to his own race. The native born negro in this community is as a rule modestly well to do and law abiding.

If you want style and quality combined in ladies and children's shoes at a popular price then you want to see H. A. Moffitt.
