OBSERVE 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF LOCAL FRIENDS MEETING

Interesting Services Held Yesterday Morning at High Point Friends Church in Commemoration of the Founding in 1892 of the High Point Monthly Meeting.

The 25th anniversary of the establishment of a monthly meeting of Friends in High Point was fittingly observed yesterday morning at the 11 o'clock service at the Friends church. The congregation present for the service was large and interesting sketches and beautiful musical selections comprised the program for the morning. There were, by approximation, but 121 members of the church present for the service and one of the speakers declared that Quakers quake more before cold weather now than they did 25 years ago when the committee from the Springfield church met in the old meeting house in the Quaker woods and decided to establish the meeting here. There were, however, just 10 of the first members of the meeting present, this proving that the old weather conditions more readily than the young.

A. M. Briggs, a member of the committee responsible for the founding of the High Point meeting and a member of the church at present, gave a short historical sketch of the meeting, starting with the arrival of the first Quaker in North Carolina, tracing his travels, giving the arrival of friends, and coming down to the founding of the various quarterly and monthly meetings in this section. He covered that period when the Friends decided it was best and proper to weed out certain members for use of tobacco and spiritous liquors, and it was shown that the church prospered despite this severance of relations with certain erring Friends.

Joseph Cox, a younger friend, gave a history of the development of the church from the time meetings were held in a building standing where the Kress store is now located on down to the present time, touching upon the work of the various ministers. The men whose efforts have been largely responsible for the substantial growth of the meeting were mentioned, and the development history proved one of the very interesting events of the morning, both to Friends and visitors.

Mrs. Henry A. White spoke on the outlook of the church and gave her impressions of those things which have made the meeting so successful and something of such prime importance to its members. Mrs. White had suggestions to offer as to other features which the Friends might well insert and the rapid attention given her showed that the Friends, young and old, were interested. The spirit of co-operation shown by the members and their way of getting together when things must be decided, together with other ways of doing things that might be classed as virtues, were mentioned by Mrs. White.

A roll call of the members was made by O. E. Mendenhall soon after the Scripture reading by the pastor, Rev. Sylvester Newlin. H. A. White and Miss Lula Albertson were asked to check off those who answered present and at the conclusion of the service they announced that just 121 members had answered to their names. Ten of these were original members of the High Point meeting, having had continuous participation in the sessions since 1892. The musical selections, rendered by choir, congregation and a mixed quartet, composed of Mrs. H. L. Coffield, Fawell, Mendenhall and Mr. and Mrs. J. Gurney Briggs, were particularly enjoyable and appropriate.

The historical sketch given by A. M. Briggs, reproduced because of its interest to the people of the entire section, was as follows:

The beginning of Quakerism in North Carolina occurred in 1673, 245 years ago, when William Edmondson was put out because of his connection with the revenue service, his subsequent return to favor and membership, and countless other items of interest to Friends which are not contained in his manuscript.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION DAY
Everybody Expected to Think About His Health, Says Health Board.

"Today has been set apart," the state board of health says, for everybody to think about himself—not about his finances, his social standing or his relation to other people or things, but as to what he may count on in the number of years he expects to live. He is advised to think about his heart, arteries, kidneys, teeth, any prolonged pain, or any abnormal growth like a wart or a mole that is beginning to grow or change its shape. He is particularly advised to consider on this day the seriousness of lost weight, a low blood pressure, a cough, or a slight fever in the afternoons. This usually means the beginning of tuberculosis—a stage which is easily cured if treatment is begun in time.

"A few years ago," says the board, "a man didn't want to know if his arteries were hardening, if his blood pressure was high, or if anything was wrong with him inside. He seemed to prefer to travel life's road in ignorance and darkness to be cut down at an unexpected moment without warning or without remedy. Such a method of living is considered now not only unsafe but unsound. Applied to business it would wreck any firm or fortune as it used to wreck the most valuable lives, all unnecessarily. Men are now using the same common sense in keeping themselves well that they use in running their business. If they are headed toward some disease they want to know it so as to take another course. They no longer prefer that sickness or death slip up on them unawares, when they can intelligently prevent it."

"To have a medical examination once or twice a year to know if there is any defect or impairment that needs correcting, or if any disease has set in, that it may soon be checked, or if the living habits are wrong that they may be changed, is the most intelligent sort of health work. The selective draft has not only taught us the great need for such work but the value of it. Men who are rejected on account of some defect or disease have had the condition remedied and are now well, efficient young men."

"A SPLENDID TONIC"
Says Hixson Lady Who, On Doctor's Advice, Took Cardui And Is Now Well.

Hixson, Tenn.—"About 10 years ago I was..." says Mrs. J. B. Gadd, of this place. "I suffered with a pain in my left side, could not sleep at night with this pain, always in the left side..."

My doctor told me to use Cardui. I took one bottle, which helped me and after my baby came, I was stronger and better, but the pain was still there. I at first let it go, but began to get weak and in a run-down condition, so I decided to try some more Cardui, which I did.

This last Cardui which I took made me much better, in fact, cured me. It has been a number of years, still I have no return of this trouble. I feel it was Cardui that cured me, and I recommend it as a splendid female tonic.

Don't allow yourself to become weak and run-down from womanly troubles. Take Cardui. It should surely help you, as it has so many thousands of other women in the past 40 years. Headache, backache, dizziness, nervousness, sleeplessness, tired-out feeling, are all signs of womanly trouble. Other women get relief by taking Cardui. Why not you? All druggists.

Mr. Briggs discussed several interesting facts during the reading of the history of Quakerism in North Carolina and the events leading up to the setting up of the monthly meeting of Friends in High Point, among them being the measures taken to weed out certain members who were addicted to tobacco and liquor; the imprint of bloody hands on the ceiling of the church near Guilford courthouse, the prints being caused by wounded being laid out on the lumber; the expulsion of Brother Worth and the appreciation of Brother Worth and the appreciation of Brother Worth and the appreciation of Brother Worth.

Views of Humor.
What's humor, anyhow? Sometimes a sentence is said that has all the earmarks of a jest—it has followed all the rules, and should be good for a laugh—and it turns out to be the saddest thing that ever found utterance. Such is the following:
A lovely girl married a fine young man. They were happy for a while, and then he contracted bad habits. He got steadily worse and worse, and she became more and more unhappy. Sometimes she hardly knew him.

As for the man, he had his moments of remorse. One day he said to her: "My dear, I am a bad husband to you and I know it. What a mistake you made when you chose me! You should have married a better man than I am."
And she answered him tragically: "I did."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
