THE PROPER METHOD OF PLANTING

It is a common error to suppose that the proper method of planting is to throw the seed into the ground and let it take care of itself. This is a mistake.

THOUGHTS FOR THE MONTH

For the Month of June. BY W. W. BROWN.

The cultivation of a summer crop is the most important feature of the farmer's operations. It is the only one that is entirely under his control.

June is a good month also in that it is the best time to plant corn. The soil is warm and the weather is favorable.

Every one who has the slightest farming experience knows that the best time to plant corn is in June. This is the time when the soil is warm and the weather is favorable.

It is a common error to suppose that the proper method of planting is to throw the seed into the ground and let it take care of itself. This is a mistake.

Another point to be remembered is that the soil should be well prepared before planting. This will ensure a better start for the young plants.

The proper method of planting is to use a dibble to make a hole in the soil, drop the seed in, and cover it with soil. This is the best way to ensure that the seed is in good contact with the soil.

It is also important to remember that the soil should be kept moist during the growing season. This can be done by watering the plants regularly.

When the plants are well established, they should be weeded and the soil around them should be kept loose. This will help them to grow better.
