

THEY keep lying on President Cleveland about a second term. First, he would not be a candidate for re-election under any circumstances, now, he is not only a candidate for re-election but is exceedingly anxious to head the Democratic ticket again next year. It is not a "prominent Senator" that starts this last story but a New York politician. So says a special from Washington to the N. Y. Times.

The negro persecution of negroes who vote the Democratic ticket is with this race. One of these was surrounded at the second ward polls Monday by a crowd of white drawn knives who seemed as they would cut him to pieces. Another morning with a crowd of white drawn knives for the same offence, and freedly. The act has all the week been full of threatening against the negroes who voted Democratic in the municipal election, and the has been a burden to them—Statewide Landmark.

A Democratic General Assembly in the Clark and Lane cases sustained such ball-doers.

THE Legislature of West Virginia has elected a Senator for the 1st District. Judge HARRIS JAMES FAULKNER is the man. We believe it has been stated that HARRIS, the Governor's appointee, will attempt to hold over. The Baltimore Sovereigns of Judge FAULKNER.

In the prime of manhood, with an unusually clear intellect, and with well developed habits of industry, Mr. Faulkner may be expected to make his mark in the Senate. As a lawyer of extensive practical experience, he has given evidence of capacity which promises the best results of the enlarged arena to which his services are to be transferred. It is to be regretted that he has not been elected to the entire Democratic vote in the West Virginia Legislature, shows that the place has been contented with him with practical unanimity. CHARLES'S OPINION OF THE PRESIDENT. In his speech on taking his seat as permanent chairman of the Kentucky Democratic State Convention, Hon. JOHN G. CHARLES said: "The country will be very fortunate if it can secure the services of an executive vigorously devoted to the real interests of the people, and as just and impartial in the execution of the law as the stars in the firmament. The signs of the times point inevitably to the nomination of President CLEVELAND in 1888, and our friend (Capt. KITCHEN) might just as well get ready for it. The opposition to the President by Democrats has generally arisen out of his determination to enforce the civil service law. The Journal has for sometime recorded the civil service law as a hindrance, but we cannot blame the President for his efforts to honestly administer it. If it is a bad law, an honest, faithful administration of it will reveal its folly and the people will demand its repeal."

THE COLOR LINE. It is evident that the colored people are beginning to exercise more intelligence and self-direction in the use of that greatest blessing, American citizenship, the privilege of the ballot. There may be Democrats who do not care to have their vote in any other way than solidly for the Republican party, but in a community like ours we must continue to appeal to their reason, and insist on an intelligent use of the power confided to them as citizens. They are citizens; they have been invested with the ballot; our interests in many respects are identical; their duty should be not to continue to exercise independence and judgment in casting their ballots. The following from the New York Star shows what progress they are making down South, and we add with pleasure, that the most intelligent colored men in this community are beginning to think for themselves, and are not afraid to cast their ballots for the man of their choice.

"Last Tuesday's election in Montgomery, Ala., resulted in a Democratic triumph, and a very significant one from the fact that a large Democratic colored vote was polled. The opposition was formed by a combination of white Republicans and independent voters, and it was supposed that the alliance would secure the support of colored citizens. This instance is one of several recent illustrations of the breaking down of the color line. The desirable change is confined to the South.

"The course of the President regarding the Repeal of the Deeds of the District of Columbia has made thousands of friends for his party. The colored people have learned to discriminate between the value of Democratic performance and Republican promises, and the Democratic candidate will poll a small proportion of the colored vote of the country at the next presidential election.

"Those who opposed the President's nomination for the place vacated by Mr. Douglass will have occasion to regret their narrowness and to acknowledge the breadth as well as the sincerity of Mr. Cleveland's statesmanship."

VANCE AND HIS CONSTITUENTS.

Senator Vance misrepresents the Democrats of North Carolina in his attack on Monday. The above is a reproduction of a column in the Raleigh Standard, and it is a fair specimen of the kind of misrepresentation which the Standard is capable of. The Standard is a Democratic paper, and it is not surprising that it should misrepresent the Democrats of North Carolina in this manner.

Another War Poem. An OLD SOLDIER IN THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. I see many sketches and incidents of the war published in your valuable paper and have derived much pleasure from reading them. In the course of my military life I have seen many of the incidents which you describe, and I have often wondered how they would be described by those who were not present. I have often wondered how they would be described by those who were not present.
