EDITORIAL NOTES.

SNOW in Michigan last Thursday.

NORTH CAROLINA securities are in demand.

THE Chippewa Indians are on the war path in Minnesota.

AN exchange says last Monday was the hottest day since the flood.

LATEST returns place the number of deaths by the Johnstown disaster at 4,215.

THE cool nights have very much cleared the stand of cotton in Georgia and the Carolinas.

Building contracts amounting to over $1,000,000 are now being carried out in Nashville Tennessee.

THE Sultan of Turkey has presented the Empress of Germany with a necklace valued at $150,000.

FIRST Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson says he knows that the President wants the postoffices filled with Republican workers.

SENATOR RANSOM has accepted the invitation to deliver the centennial address at Fayetteville on the 21st of November next.

It is said that Harrison's fondness for Mahone is based upon his size. The Ex Senator is an inch shorter than the President.

HENRY WARD BEECHER once said: "The blonde type is nearest to the divine likeness." Very few newspapers use blonde type.—Wilkesbarre Leader.

THE farmers of this section should remember Hon. Harry Tracy's appointments. He will be in Greenville on the 2nd day of July in New Berne on the 3rd and in Kinston on the 4th.

SUNDAY'S floods in Kansas caused an immense deal of damage, sweeping away railroad bridges, residences and destroying over a million bushels of wheat. Four farmers were drowned.

EIGHTEEN negro gamblers were arrested Near Waycross Ga., last Sunday night. They were tried the next morning, convicted and sentenced each to 12 months imprisonment.

GREAT presence of mind is reported to have been shown by an American mouse which fell into a dish of cream. He simply swam round and round violently until he was able to crawl up on the butter.—London Globe.

LOU ALLENT SPRINT, the baby pianist of Baltimore, is but three years and seven months old, and has played a number of times in public, her first appearance being when she was two years and four months old.

GEN. WM. T. WITHERS, aged 64 years, proprietor of the celebrated Fair Lawn Farm and a breeder of noted trotting horses, died at his home in Lexington, Ky., last Sunday, of wounds received in the Mexican War.

THE Virginia State Democratic Convention for the nomination of candidates for Governor, Lieut. Governor and Attorney General will be held on the 14th day of August. The Old Dominion will have an early opportunity of showing the effects of a sectional administration.

THE national American population of the New England States is annually diminishing and their places are being taken by immigrants from Canada and Europe. It will not be many years at the rate of diminution which has been going on for some time, before the native Americans will be outnumbered by the new comers and their children.

FRUIT.—If a man grows the right varieties of fruit it will pay him a better interest on the money invested and the time required for its cultivation than anything else on farm. Fruit will not pay every year any more than any other crop, but on a ten years' average the fruit on any man's farm if of the right sort and properly grown stocked planted will put more clean cash into his pocket, in proportion to the amount taken out, than anything else he can raise. Louisville Farm and Home.

THE Greensboro North State complains that Col. Dockery did not get such recognition at the hands of Harrison's administration as his friends thought he was entitled to. If the North State will take the trouble to examine the make up of President Harrison's cabinet and appointments, it will discover that the administration is not national but sectional. Grover Cleveland's cabinet and appointments showed his administration to be broad and national as every administration should be. The North State however is inclined to be content with small favors.

THERE is not a town in North Carolina where some small industries might not be established, or those already in existence increased, by co-operative effort among their citizens. Where only a few thousand dollars of capital to begin with is necessary, as would be the case in many of these industries, it would not be difficult to raise that amount on the instalment plan, which has proved so satisfactory in PALESTINE.

ASIA is destined to be the scene of stirring events before which the achievements of Alexander the Great and his successors will pale into insignificance. The time is not far distant when the Turks as a European nation will cease to exist. For more than four centuries they were a plague spot upon Europe, a continual menace to the surrounding nations, and are now a stain upon the civilization of the present age, and a bar to human progress. It is the jealousies of the Christian nations of Europe that enable them to hold their present footing both in Europe and Asia. They are military adventurers, and hold the land by military tenure only, and the rest of their four hundred years of the occupancy of Europe has converted the fairest spot in it into almost a barren desert. Like locusts they have consumed them wherever they have obtained the ascendancy. The civilized world cannot afford to allow them to stay the tide of modern progress much longer. The wants and needs of civilization will burst the barriers that ignorance and Moslem superstition have erected in Asia Minor; and it is the policy of the civilized nations to establish a better government there the sooner the way for comparatively an almost new world.

As far as the key of human wisdom reaches, there are very strong probabilities that the Jews will at no distant day occupy Palestine and dominate the country. They may not be a very powerful nation, but they will be the most enlightened on earth. The Rothschilds, it is said, hold a mortgage on the country for two hundred million francs, loaned Turkey, and the European powers will see that they are protected in their claims.

There are now comparatively but few Jews in Palestine, but those who are there with the characteristic intelligence and far sightedness of their race, are working great changes for the better. Outside of the walls of Jerusalem a new city is now being built up; land is being reclaimed by irrigation, agriculture is improving, progress is sure, and the waste places are beginning to prosperity. The history of this great race is worth study. No other people on earth have ever shown such tenacity and singleness of purpose, clung with such intelligence and indomitable energy. When the long dark night of ignorance and superstition overshadowed Europe, they were the great custodians of learning all that was valuable in science. They were the bankers of the world, and the princes and potentates of Europe were their customers. Though, oft times they were hurried through Europe and suffered persecution unto death, they clung to the religion of their fathers as promulgated from the top of Mount Sinai. They never have forgotten that they are of one faith and one lineage, and the chosen people of God. The world has never yet made full acknowledgment of their indebtedness to them. Whatsoever things that are good in morals or government, mankind is, in a great measure, indebted to them. The light that always led them shines in their traditions in the dawn of the world's creation, and encircles as with a halo their long line of prophets, priests and rulers. Place them as a nation in their own country, the land where their fathers trod, and it will again blossom as the rose, "instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree, and they can exclaim in glorious exultation with the prophet of old," awake, put on thy strength O Zion, put on thy beautiful garment O Jerusalem.

England is now seeking a shorter route through the gateway of Palestine to her East India possessions, she is surveying a railroad route from the Mediterranean to the head waters of the Persian Gulf, thus shortening the route to her possessions in India nearly one thousand miles. On the other hand Russia wants an outlet on the Indian Ocean for the rapidly increasing empire in Asia. She already holds the great inland Caspian sea, and has a dominating influence in the semi civilized countries west of the river Indus. If she should attempt the conquest and annexation of these countries, and in all probability she will, and succeed, she would thank the English possessions on the west, and to use a common expression, have the inside track of England. Then would come a contest, the Russian Bear and the British Lion would meet in deadly conflict.

Ever since the days of Peter The Great, Russia has sought an ocean outlet. The possession of Constantinople has been the object of her rulers, but all of her attempts have been thwarted by a combination of European Powers; they did not relish the idea of the Mediterranean becoming a Russian lake. Both England and Russia hold their possessions in Asia by the right of conquest, and a conflict between these powers would arouse the Moslem element which is now a semi dormant volcano of unquenchable hate of both nations, whose slumbering sounds are distinctly heard. They have a legacy of hate against all christian nations, that has been handed down for nearly twelve centuries of unceasing warfare. They have seen their glories depart from them one by one. Their splendid kingdoms and empires, have passed away, they were wrought into existence by violence, and by violence they have been destroyed.

They once held part of the northern shores of the Mediterranean. The Isles of Greece "Where burning Sappho loved and sung" were theirs;—they held the half of Spain for nearly eight hundred years, and left behind them monuments of architectural skill, that are now the wonder of the world. From the gates of Hercules, their power extended to the land of the ancient Pharaohs, from thence, to the plains of India, they levied tribute upon nearly all of the nations of the

My lot was laid in the South where I have resided since I was fourteen. I was first a mechanic and afterwards adopted the legal profession, in which I think I can say I am not a failure."

The writer knew Mr. Jones at the bar, and can say of a truth, he was no failure as a lawyer. With a multitude of friends we hailed his election to the U. S. Senate with the satisfaction incident to the conviction that Florida would be well represented and the South gallantly defended. We were not disappointed. For four years or more, he met the expectations of his friends, and reflected the highest honor on his State.

Then there came a change. The world has remained himself and will continue to consume him to the end, but it is the part of charity to hear his statement, remembering the frailties of human nature. "Error is human; to forgive divine." Mr. Jones says that from his advent into public life, he was conscious of the existence of a subtle and powerful conspiracy against him, that had its origin in the worst element of our Irish population.

While in the assiduous discharge of his duties as a senator, residing in the neighborhood of Washington with his wife and children, defamatory letters were addressed to him which fell into the hands of his wife and greatly distressed her. Increasing in virulence they [illegible] drove her to [illegible] and then killed her. The blackest [illegible] stared by the [illegible] and [illegible] dure like a [illegible] Washington [illegible] Europe in the hope of [illegible] rest abroad [illegible] America [illegible] and again united [illegible] Senate [illegible] resolutions [illegible] made to get [illegible] and confessed [illegible] gone, lost in the wreck of his [illegible] ness. In his extremity he was invited by a benevolent gentleman to go to Delaware and make his home in his family, and he accepted the invitation, subject to [illegible] what he did.

There [illegible] affair" in the [illegible] Woodness.

From a [illegible] know of his [illegible] we are firm in the conviction that he has long been a downright honest man, entitled to the sympathy of a generous people.

CONSUMPTION CURED
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. A grand appointment.—The Encampment of Governor Ward will be held at Asheville, Tuesday, commencing July 9th and closing July 16th. All regiments and companies are to be in full field and staff officers will report in heavy marching order to the Adjutant General at Camp Glenn on Tuesday evening, July 9th. Two cents will be under the [illegible] H. Anthony.

Advertising the Fair.

The advertising [illegible] granted by the Board of Trustees some days since has brought [illegible] favorable character. Letters are [illegible] received daily from different parts of the country in relation to [illegible] establishment of manufacturing industries in this section. The only reason we have not enterprises of a manufacturing character [illegible] is because of the lack of water [illegible] among [illegible] Atlantic [illegible] machine [illegible] ultimately [illegible] with [illegible] contractors.
