EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE President has appointed Hon. Wm. Walter Phelps, of New Jersey, minister to Germany.

DAVID A. BOWMAN, of North Carolina, has been appointed a timber agent in the General Land office.

W. RUSSEL BOWIE, ex-member of the City Council of Richmond, Va., has been sent on to the grand jury for forgery.

FLAME has been added to flood at Johnstown. Favorable winds and prompt action of Philadelphia companies averted a disastrous conflagration.

IN union there is strength, and in union alone can the organized industries of the Nation hope to cope against centralized rascality.—The National Economist.

SERIOUS trouble is apprehended with the Flat Head Indians in Montana; they refuse to surrender three murderers, and a determined force is being sent against them.

THE New York Star claims that "no other paper, in the same period of time, ever made the success or the impression which the Star has made in the half year of its new existence."

"THE Interior Department proposes to suppress this year's medicine dance of the Kiowas and Camanches. It is a perfectly decorous dance. Its medicinal feature consists in sacrificing two Indians, who are killed and cremated."

NOTHING seems to be too mean for some men. There is an old fellow in Maine who is imposing on his hens in the most shameful manner. He has put an electric light in the hen house and the hens lay day and night.—Burlington Free Press.

THE President has appointed John L. Stevens, of Maine, to be Minister Resident to the Hawaiian Islands; George Maney, of Tennessee, to be Minister Resident to Paraguay and Uruguay, and Martin Crawford, of Ohio, to be Consul General to St. Petersburg.

THE land in Oklahoma is all taken up. Texas has 5,000,000 acres of better land which is free to the settler. When that is gone she has 30,000,000 acres more for sale at $2 to $3 an acre, with forty years time to make payments.—Fort Worth Gazette.

BUTLER is again after Porter. In a four column letter, addressed to the Admiral, General Butler says: "I fear that I have done you what you could not do for yourself immortalized you: for I have given your name to a boasting, vainglorious, calumniatory lie. Hereafter forever it shall be called a "porter."

AGAIN we welcome the New York Star. For several months it has not been shining upon us, but it has come again, and we are glad to see that its light is not diminished, and that its Democracy is as pure as ever. To all wishing a New York daily, we commend the Star.

THE recent vigorous protest of the colored voters in Indiana and Ohio shows that the intelligent men of this race understand the hypocrisy and selfishness of the Republican leaders, and the cold blooded calculations of President Harrison. The color line is breaking.—N. Y. World.

REPORTS reflecting upon the character and management of Dr. Grissom, superintendent of the Insane Asylum, having become current, a special called session of the board of directors met in Raleigh on last Wednesday to investigate the same. Very able counsel is engaged and the result will be given to the public as soon as it is known.

TRUSTS continue to increase. They are getting rich from impositions on the people. They do not care for abuse so long as they make money. The strong hand of the law should lay hold of them and stop their iniquities. One of the first that needs attention is the sugar trust. It is now dividing a dishonest profit of $1,500,000 a month or $12,000,000 a year.—Baltimore American.

WE take great pleasure in presenting The National Economist to the favorable consideration of our readers. It is published weekly at Washington D. C. by the National Economist Publishing Company at one dollar per year. It is the official organ of the National Farmer's Alliance and co-operative Union of America, The National Agricultural Wheel, and the Farmer's and Laborers Union of America. It has sixteen well filled pages.

THE plucky attitude of Switzerland in regard to social and political refugees who find an asylum within her territory does honor to her spirit of magnanimity and independence. Criminals she will readily surrender on proper proof, but men who are in danger only for political or social opinions she will not surrender. Already the republic has notified her powerful neighbors that their agents, emisaries and spies have occasioned more trouble to the ministers of the law than all the refugees combined.—Washington Post.

DESPOTISM

The following communication reached this office last Thursday night:

MR. EDITOR: [illegible] on "Despotism" sank [illegible] deep in our bosom before we [illegible] half through reading it.

When we finished and began to think over what was read we were much perplexed.

We want to ask some questions, and who is better to be asked than a set of editors who, it is claimed, find out everything of any importance?

Is it out of the reach of law to prohibit the strong from oppressing the weak? You said it was treason to form a Confederacy in the United States. Was it treason against the laws of the United States, and not the people? Now, if a set of men form a combination or trust to run up the necessaries of life to famishing prices is not that treason against the mass of people striving to get an honest meal? If it is, why don't the United States call out her troops and put down the assassins? Who are the law makers working for, the assassins or the people. We have some very good laws governing us that we wish to see enforced, [illegible] interests, [illegible] "money kings" [illegible] political parasites [illegible] bones." Has [illegible] over the rights [illegible] If he has, can't he be [illegible] will lose respect [illegible] allows the masses [illegible] death by these ruling despots until they revolt. Where does he expect to get volunteers to put the revolters down? The capitalists are too disgusted to shoulder a gun, and the people will not help [illegible] fighting to keep these despots in power, and that war will become of Uncle Sam? If he does [illegible] hold of affairs and see to them better, profit [illegible] in a few years, [illegible] hands full.

Our [illegible] Grocery, [illegible] to our [illegible] as a [illegible] granted as a [illegible] blade, [illegible] busy [illegible] great [illegible] sets [illegible] edge [illegible] sets [illegible] pointed [illegible] laced [illegible] and who is not going to begin to think about the [illegible] hope for the country. [illegible] government of the people, by the people and for the people, [illegible] is the determinate [illegible] reform, and hence we must spur [illegible] on as the great [illegible] agent of the times.

We have [illegible] understood [illegible] Thursday we said [illegible] the establishment of the Confederate States within the territory of the United States was "treason against the [illegible] of capitalism in the heart of the republic is revolution."

The JOURNAL has not asserted that the establishment of the Confederate States was treason, but the United States has said so, and a majority of the advocates of a protective tariff hold the same position. The Confederate Government rested upon the same truths set forth in the Declaration of Independence. The action of the people of the South in the formation of the Confederacy, was in imitation of our fathers, and in accordance with American ideas. Capitalism is in direct oppposition to the theory of the Federal Government, and the conduct of the founders of the Republic.

The tariff was designed to raise a revenue for the government, but has been perverted from its original purpose and is now used for the protection of certain industries which, under its fostering care, have become powerful monopolies. Not more than one third of the revenue from customs goes into the treasury of the United States, by far the greater part of it is carried to the pockets of manufacturers and capitalists. This being the case, the JOURNAL said, "if the establishment of the Confederate States in the territory of the United States was treason, the entrenchment of capitalism in the republic, is revolution." Perhaps the sentence would have been clearer if instead of the word treason, we had written rebellion, but the sense and force of the sentence would not have been materially changed.

Revolutions are not necessarily bloody. Those that have exerted the greatest influence upon men and nations have been effected without a resort to arms. This of which we have spoken—a revolution which has changed our political system—was not accomplished by the bayonet, but it was the work of subtle legislation through the agency of representatives chosen by the people.

The reformation must come through the same agency. Let the people become instructed so that they can see clearly the operations of protection, as it gathers its resources form all departments of labor and empties its accumulated treasure into the laps of protected capitalists, and the evils of capitalism will be realized and the remedy applied.

DESPOTISM

There are many kinds of despotisms, and among them is the despotism of kings and the despotism of capital. The American people have too long enjoyed the blessings of constitutional liberty ever to endure the bondage of political slavery, but they are oppressed by a tyranny far more cruel and ignoble, and that is the despotism of capital—the tyranny of wealth.

Beyond question much of the unrest of the masses, the apparent popularity of socialistic theories, is to be accounted for by the multiplication of monopolies.

If the establishment of the Confederates States within the territory of the United States was treason, the entrenchment of capitalism in the heart of the republic is revolution.

The ultimate aim of capitalism is universal empire. Its march is over highways paved with human bones and through rivers of tears red with the life blood of the poor. It is the enemy of liberty, of equality, of justice, and Northern and Southern industry alike are the objects of its conquest.

The people of the United States, by a vast and almost countless machinery, are attached to the Confederate Union and the Union, but superior to this attachment is their love of life, liberty and happiness. Let it not be supposed that the citizens of these States will consent to pay tribute to the money kings who fill their coffers with gold coined of the blood and muscle of their countrymen.

We do not wish to be misunderstood. Wealth when properly acquired is honorable. Capital when rightly employed is a ministering angel blessing all it touches, and making the waste places of earth to blossom as the rose. But when used as an engine of oppression it is more terrible than the earthquake's shock or the battle's roar.

In the war between capital and labor we are on the side of labor because it is the side of humanity and right.

We would not encourage strikes, much less would we invoke the fury and havoc of communes. With hope in man and trust in God, we counsel fortitude and moderation until enlightened public sentiment comes to the rescue and demands for all classes an equal share in the blessings of government.

So long as we have a tariff that discriminates against the farmer and the laborer, and collects from the cottages of the poor the means for equipping manufactories and building palaces for the rich, the iron heel of an accursed despotism will be upon the prostrate necks of our people.

Let us anticipate the day in which our sons will rise in their manhood and shake this despotism from them like dew drops from a lion's mane. Education, education is the lever that is to lift us from the dark valley of danger and suffering to the sunlit mountains of security and happiness.

It is impossible for men who have tasted of the blessed fruits of freedom to be held in the chains of an ignoble bondage. Even now the light is streaming across our eastern skies, and the day of our redemption draweth nigh

Mrs. Hayes Dead

FREEMONT, Ohio, June 25. Mrs. R. B. Hayes died at 6:50 this morning. At 8 o'clock Dr. Mrs. Hayes turned much worse and gradually sank until the hour of death. At her bedside were the members of the family together with Mr. Mitchell of Columbus, cousin of Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Huntington, cousin of Mrs. Hayes, Lucy Keeler, Mrs. A. H. Mott and the physician. Mrs. Hayes will be buried Friday afternoon.

Governor Fowle as a Fisherman.

Fishing is an instinct of humanity. No man—no distinguished man—no great man feels satisfied with himself until he has spit on his hands, got a bite and hauled in a big fish—big enough to found a tale on it that is five to ten times as big as the fish. Governor Fowle has just found out that he has labored successfully these many years to make an orator and statesman, but finds that he cannot be a finished big man until he becomes an expert fisherman and knows how to split on his bait like old Isaac Walton, who never cast his line without wetting his bait (not his whistle) from the port side of his mouth. We like Governor Fowle. We welcome him to the fishermen's guild. He will find [illegible] the fished in all the best fishing grounds in his dominions, and sung fishing songs with all the tarpaulins from Washington to old Calfee's Inlet. [illegible] he will be a bigger man than old Grant. He has lately been to Ocracoke, ostensibly to catch [illegible] pirates, but really to catch fish, and we can see already the effect of that [illegible] fishing on his popularity and his [illegible] tion. Dan. Webster owes much of his hold upon the popular heart to his [illegible] ing the wave in his boat at Newport, singing "The Bay as Biscay O," and hauling in the porgies. We would be enthusiastic in our admiration of Governor Fowle, if we could see him in his shirt sleeves, in the surf at Nags Head with his trousers rolled up to his knees and throwing his heavy line, with a young kitten for bait, and running up the beach with a 75 pound old drum hung on to him. His instantaneous photograph at such a moment of rapt unconsciousness, we would prize more than when commanding the applauses of listening senates. Come down to the surf at Nags Head this season, Governor, and hand this order no. 1 to C. C. Winston, at his cottage by the sea, and if he don't serve you right, then report the fact to these headquarters, and we'll know the reason why.—Elizabeth City Economist.
