NEW BERNE, N. C., AUG. 20, 1900.

Published at the Post Office at New Bern, N. C.

Second-class matter.

A letter can now be sent around the world in sixty days via Vancouver.

CONGRESSMAN LARSON, of Nevada, was killed by a surgical operation that was unnecessary.

DR. GRISWOLD's letter of resignation is a good one. It had been written earlier it would have been more appreciated.

A BEAUTIFUL woman makes the eye, a good woman makes the heart, and a jewel, the other treasure.—Napoleon.

GEN. CRANE has been directed by the War Department to drive the marauding Indians back to their reservation in Colorado.

If the report of further seizures of British sailors by the Irish be confirmed, the Banning Sea question will become a very lively one.—N. Y. Star.

A MAN, man in the West has applied for a pension from the Government. He claims that he was born the day Fort Donelson was captured.

THE colored editor at Selma, not finding a second to his own, is leading a race war in Alabama, has retired from the newspaper profession in disgust.—Washington Post.

In the first week of August 20 strikes occurred in the single State of Pennsylvania, where labor has been taught to expect so much from our protective tariff.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

When Mr. Wamamaker's Philadelphia firm added the 50,000 fourth class postmasters to its list of agents he displayed a business foresight which will be generally admitted.—Kansas City Times.

THE Baltimore News says that the Pennsylvania Steel Company intend to establish an immense ship yard at Sparrow Point, 12 miles from Baltimore. The company will have the most magnificent equipment in the United States.

ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL CLARKSON owns up to having taken the scalps of 10,000 postmasters up to date. Yesterday added 14 to the score, and he didn't count it a large day's work either. He's a big leaguer.—Boston Herald.

BY GOVERNOR CARMEAN made an utterance which will probably become famous, if not national, when he said that if President Harrison endorsed for Mahone he must not complain if he should go to prison with the little General.—Richmond Dispatch, Dem.

ANOTHER wooden mill in Hiale Island has failed, "protected" to death by a stupid tax upon raw materials. The United States is the only nation in the civilized world which handicaps its manufacturers in this barbarous fashion.—New York World.

ALL Southern Cotton Exchange have been invited by the New Orleans Cotton Exchange to meet in convention in that city on 11th of September next, to agree on a uniform adjustment of the difference in late between cotton and sale lagging.—Washington News.

WHENEVER a parade was the most formidable demonstration the London strikers have yet made. It is reported that 30,000 men were in line, and the appearance of the red flag at the head of some of the marching divisions excited apprehensions of more serious disturbance.

A DISPATCH from San Francisco says the lawyers are beginning to fear that Nagle, who killed Judge Terry, cannot be held by the U. S. authorities, as he cannot claim to be an officer of the Circuit Court. If the Federal right to interfere is not recognized Nagle will be returned to Stockton for trial.

GOOD streets for the cities, good roads for the States, these mark the stage of a people's progress. The next legislature can do no better work than improve upon present statutes so that a compulsory system may give us what has not been attained under present laws. Good country roads in every section of Virginia.—Norfolk Virginian, Dem.

DUNN's latest weekly review of trade says: The monetary pressure, of which so many warnings have been given, has operated this week to modify an improvement in general trade due to the excellent crop prospects. Failure for the week. United States, 1900, Canada, 1900, total 200, compared with 211 last week and 201 the week previous to the last.

It would not be detrimental to the business interests of Boston if there was less gossip in counting rooms, back parlors and horse cars about failures. The topic is wonderfully catching. The mention of a firm in connection with a failure is apt to be misconstrued, and concerns which are every way solvent suffer from unjust suspicion.—Boston Journal.

It is very well for a man to do his own thinking, but it is not well for him to attempt to do God's thinking. Free thought and free speech is not a license to think and speak contrary to truth and right. If a man chooses to declare that it is always summer time at the North pole, and that the equator is an ice belt, he is only showing his own folly. Bible doctrines are God's declarations of truth and facts. From them there is no appeal. To accept them is not mental bondage.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

From time immemorial there have been those who have opposed the infliction of the death penalty. They say that it is contrary to the divine law and harmful to society. Then, again, it is said that the innocent sometimes suffer, and the guilty often go free.

The latter objection, says, "When said not some cannot be denied, but also says, 'Whoever sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed.' The first is the law of the second, is the penalty for its transgression.

It is true that familiarity with death, especially public executions, hardens the sensibilities and weakens the moral perceptions. The New York Tribune, referring to an atrocious murder, in the very shadow of the gallows, says:

"The death penalty is a feeble menace in the prevention of crime. It is better evidence of the infirmity of human justice as a deterrent agency can be offered than is to be found in the details of the horrible murder in Brooklyn, committed recently by a man who had already been sentenced to death for the same crime."

The execution of the death sentences of these four murders was planned, either deliberately or for the convenience of the hangman, so as to have a cumulative effect. Each had arrogated to himself the right to take life, and each was required to pay for it in kind. Four deaths were arranged to occur simultaneously, and thus vindicate with solemnity and impressiveness the majesty of the law. For weeks the newspapers had been the subject of daily conversation and read just among the criminal classes of this community. At last only one day remained on earth for the condemned wretches, and the four carpenters were at work fitting together the beams of the scaffolds and adjusting the weights; but even as the hammer strokes of the ropes were heard at the Tombs the victim of a fresh and peculiarly atrocious murder lay weltering in his blood a mile away. Even with four deaths planned for the same day, the law had no more than a few seconds in reserve for evidences that three burglars were calmly plotting at the further end of the bridge a most revolting murder.

It is not to be denied that "other guilty often escape and the innocent sometimes suffer. At this moment the prevailing sentiment seems to be that Mrs. Maybrick, lately convicted, in Liverpool, and condemned to die for the murder of her husband, is innocent of the terrible crime of which she has been adjudged guilty. Admitting all this and the problem of adjusting punishment to transgression is unsolved. An emphatic warning is given to the court, but this is all.

The preponderance of enlightened thought seems to be in favor of the infliction of the death penalty in cases of clearly ascertained cases of murder, but there is a wide difference of opinion as to how the penalty shall be executed. In many countries, all over the world, the condemned man is shot to death, but there is no universal adopted mode of execution. In France the unhappy culprit is brought to the guillotine, and its keen blade severs his head from the body on the twinkling of an eye. In England and the United States the gallows is the engine of death. Sometimes it does its work quickly, and then, again, it lacerates and tortures its victim in a way revolting to the civilization of the age. Hanging by the neck has so often been attended with strangling that nearly approaches savage brutality; other methods of executing criminals condemned to die, are being considered.

The State of New York has declared in favor of executions by electricity. The experiment is yet untried, and its merits are yet to be determined.

The great object of penal statutes is the prevention of crime. Solitary confinement is a punishment from which the guilty instinctively shrink, but nothing is so terrible to the condemned man as the prospect of death.

So long as men commit murder let the death penalty be inflicted. The manner of execution is not so important as its certainty. Let it be clearly and inexorably settled that he who commits murder must die, and the community will seldom be startled by the commission of the crime.

Very rarely—if ever—should executions be in public. As at present practiced they are, not infrequently, carnivals at which exhibitions are made which are demoralizing and harmful to society.

It sometimes happens that a wretch, guilty of the most abominable crime, harangued the multitude with the rope around his neck, and claims that the gallows is, not the wretch that admits him into Heaven. Such an exhibition is no deterrent; on the contrary it excites to emulation by investing the criminal with the martyr's crown and robes of victory.

While somebody who happens to know about it please inform an anxious and impatient people whether the coroner has done his duty in the case of that white man, the Republican party which recently came crawling out of the canebrake down South, and has not been heard of since.—Washington Post.

TEN Republicans who are growing in North Carolina because they have been left behind find consolation in the fact that there are many good places vacant among them: the Russian mission paying a salary of $12,000 a year; the mission to Bolivia, Persia and Siam, $5,000 each; and Liberia, $4,000 besides a large number of consulates and a few post offices.
