How English Kings Died

Henry I, of gluttony.
Henry VII, wasted away.
Edward VI, of a decline.
Charles I, on the scaffold.
Richard III was killed in battle.
George III, as he had lived—a madman.
Henry VIII, of carbuncles, fat and fury.
James I, of drinking and the effects of vice.
Charles II, suddenly, it is said of apoplexy.
William the Conquere, from corpulency and from drink.
Edward V, was strangled in the Tower by his uncle, Richard III.
William Rufus died the death of the beast stags which he hunted.
Henry II, of a broken heart, occasioned by the bad conduct of his children.
William III, of consumptive habit of body, and from the stumbling of his horse.
George I, from drunkenness, which is a physician politely called an apoplexy.
Edward III, of dotage, and Richard II, of starvation—the reverse of George IV.
Edward II, was barbarously and indecently murdered by ruffians employed by his own wife.
Henry VI, in prison, by means unknown then only to his jailor, and now only known in Heaven.
George II, died of rupture of the heart, which the periodicals of the day termed a visitation of God.
Richard Coeur de Lion, like the animal from which his heart was named, died by an arrow from an archer.
Henry V, is said to have died of a spiritual affection, preparatory to a country term of getting a fall.

A Proposed Remedy for Pa

Singing at Work.

The Jingling of the Guinea Helps the Hurt that Honor Feels."

What is conscience? If there be such a power, what is its office? It would seem to be simply this: to approve of our own conduct when we do what we believe to be right, and to censure us when we commit whatever we judge to be wrong.

GUARD AGAINST THE STRIKE.

As I always have a bottle of Acker's English Remedy in the house. You cannot tell how soon Croup may strike your little one, or a cold or cough may fasten itself upon you. One dose is a preventive and a few doses a positive cure. All Throat and Lung troubles yield to its treatment. A sample bottle is given you free and the remedy guaranteed by R. Berry, New Berne N. C.

There is no contending with necessity, and we should be very tender how we censure those who do ill. 'Tis one thing to be a liberty to do what we will, and another thing to be tied up to do what we must.
