High l'amages.

"And that reminds me," chimed in one of the party, "of a peculiar case which happened some years ago on the Grand Trunk. A car jumped the track and tore down a steep embankment. but fortunately no one was killed. Among the inmates of the car, however, was a farmer who sustained some very severe injuries, and was compelled to remain for several weeks in bed. His physician asserted that his spine had cen permanently affected, and, realizing that a suit for damages would probably ensue, the railroad company sent an agent to the injured man with an offer to compromise. The agent called as directed, and after discussing the matter with the sufferer, asked him point blank to name the damages. Well, let me see-rolled clear down

A few years ago a missionary came to the United States, and being rather hald, some kind friends provided him with a wig. Upon his return to the island, the chief and others went to welcome him, and after the usual salutations, one of them said to the mission-

You were bald when you left, and now you have a beautiful head of hair. What amazing people the Americans are! How did they make your hair grow ициіп? "You simple people," replied the missionery, 'how does everything grow? Is it not by sowing seed?" They immediately shouted,— "Oh, these American people, they sow seed upon a bald man's head to make the hair grow!" One shrewd fellow inquired if he had brought any of the seed with him. The missionary carried on the joke for a short time, and then raised his wig. The revelation of his "original head" of course drew forth a roar of laughter. which was greatly increased when one of the natives shouted to some of his countrymen who were near,-"Here, see, Mr. - has come from

The Land of Ducks.

There are more ducks in the Chinese Empire, says an authority, than all the world outside of it. They are kept by the celestials on every farm, on the private roads, on the public roads, on the streets of cities, and on all the lakes, ponds, rivers, streams and brooks in the country. Every Chinese boat also contains a batch of them. There are innumerable hatching establishments all through the empire, many of which are said to turn out about fifty thousand young ducks every year. Salted and smoked ducks and ducks' eggs constitute two of the most common and
