EDITORIAL NOTES.
SENATOR HARRIS of Tennessee, feels confident that we will hold the ground gained last year.

THE Louisiana National Bank of New Orleans loses $190,000 by the defalcation of its paying teller E. F. Grier.

CONFIDENT Democrats offer odds on Flower in New York; but Republican bluffers fail to put up or shut up.

MAUD S. is no longer queen of the trotting turf. Sanol, the mare owned by Robert Bonner, lowered by half a second the famous record of Maud S. on the kite shaped track at Stockton, Cal. Bonner paid $40,000 for Maud S. and $41,000 for Sanol.

ONE judge in New York naturalized 600 new citizens the other day in five hours, or at the rate of one in every thirty seconds, and it wasn't a very good day for naturalization either. It would have been no more a force had he naturalized the whole 600 in the half minute.

SENATOR PASCO of Florida, stood up like a little man in the State Alliance convention and cast one of the five votes against the sub-treasury loan scheme. And the expiration of his present Senatorial term is not so very far off, either. We always like a man who won't truckle.

Of the ninety six counties in the State eighty six have appointed local boards of public charities which work under the direction of the State board. A great deal is being done for the amelioration of the poor and persons confined in prison. The reports which will be collated at the end of the year will show this clearly.

WHEN there are short crops in Europe and long crops in America, everything is lovely on this side of the water. But when there are long crops in Europe and long crops in America at the same time, the farm mortgage steps in and takes a hand in agriculture. Nothing in the McKinley high tariff law can alter this condition.

THE government is having about the same success in making rain as in making diapirae. Given clouds and favorable atmospheric conditions, the rain comes down upon the rainmakers. Given a melting pot, a sheet of imported steel and a Welsh workman, and tinplate is produced of fairish quality. But neither rain nor tinplate is ready for delivery at the demand of purchasers.—Philadelphia Record.

THE Atlanta Herald says: Mr. Cleveland is the greatest President that this country has had since the war, and he is the greatest living American today. Likewise he is the most distinguished Democrat in the country, and as such, the accredited leader of his party. There is not the slightest doubt about his nomination and triumphant election to the next presidency.

ONE of the Pope's cardinals at Rome, in an interview, says that affairs in the church have so changed since the Pantheon disorders of October 2 that should the Pope not yield to the desires of official Italy he may be killed or driven from Rome. The interview is in many respects remarkable, being strikingly significant as an expression of the Vatican's views as to the grave character of an impending crisis which would mark a most important epoch in Papal history.

WHILE a gang of workmen were at work drilling rock on the Pacific extension of the Great Northern Railroad near Great Falls, Mont., Oct. 27, a hole in one section of the rock containing some powder became choked with some "wash" and the foreman started to drill it out. A spark ignited the powder, causing a terrible explosion. Four of the men were instantly killed, and five injured so seriously that there is no hope of their recovery. The foreman escaped to the woods, and it is thought he has gone in sane over the accident caused by his carelessness.

At the exposition Wednesday Oct. 28, in the presence of over two thousand people, a thrilling accident occurred. A balloon was inflated and men were holding it down by ropes. Among the men was Anthony Jordan, colored, of Raleigh, who instead of holding the rope with his hands was standing on it. Suddenly the balloon, with a parachute in which was Mrs. Hawkins, rose in the air. Jordan's foot was caught by the rope and he was carried up between the balloon and the parachute. There were cries of "drop, drop," and at the height of about fifty feet he dropped and came down head foremost. His shoulder and head struck, and he is perhaps fatally injured. His jaw bone was crushed, his wrist dislocated and he sustained wounds on the head as well as internal injuries. The balloon rose to an immense height and Mrs. Hawkins descended safely in the parachute.

EDITORIAL NOTES.
Factional fights continue to occur in Ireland.

ANOTHER American sailor, Mr. Schley is dead in Valparaiso.

BISMARCK will oppose William's policy in the German Congress.

THE United States grand jury at Boston has indicted the officers of the Louisiana Lottery.

THE Russian Government decided a proposition for relief of famine sufferers by Moscow merchants.

MRS. JEFFERSON DAVIS will soon visit Richmond, Va., to select a site for the monument to her husband.

SLIGHT shocks of earthquake were felt on the 29th inst., at Columbia, Summerville and Charleston, S. C.

LAST Sunday in Indianapolis, Mrs. Little Stevenson shot and fatally wounded Mrs. Margaret Rose. A man, two women and a pistol.

THE opinion prevails among foreign ministers at Santiago that the Chilean junta will immediately make the reparation demanded by this Government.

A BOSTON woman, Mrs. Kullbury, has sued a Roman Catholic priest in that city for alleged injury to her business in placing a boycott on the altar.

It is reported that the Mexican Government will remove the duty on the importation of corn in consequence of a threatened famine in some of the States of the Republic.

MINISTER EGAN has been instructed to take prompt and vigorous measures to secure from the Chilean Government proper reparation for the outrage at Valparaiso.

THERE is talk of consolidating the Winston and Salem postoffices. If the consolidation is effected, a Government building will, in all probability be erected and the office centrally located.

"CANADIANS are pouring into the United States. On one train the other day there were 230 who intend to live hereafter in this country." They will be lucky if some of them don't live hereafter in a hotter climate.

THE New York Central Railroad is now running the fastest train in the world. The Empire State Express leaves New York at 9 a. m. and reaches Buffalo at 5:40 p. m. The distance is 439 miles, time 3:24 miles an hour.

MR. CARLTON KIMBLE, a prominent farmer in Maryland, was deprived of defrauded of $2,800 in cash. He says he was hypnotized—absolutely under the control of two men. He knew nothing for two hours, during which he went to the bank, drew the sum named, gave it to the rascals who drove off with the money. He offers $2,000 for their arrest.

LAST Monday morning W. J. Cummings, Southern Express Messenger on the Cincinnati, Selma and Mobile railroad shot himself in his train when near Newbern, Ala., because he had lost a package containing a thousand dollars. On the day before Miss Daisy Lee, a beautiful seventeen year old girl committed suicide by driving from Rome. The interview is in many respects remarkable, being strikingly significant as an expression of the Vatican's views as to the grave character of an impending crisis which would mark a most important epoch in Papal history.

EDITORIAL NOTES.
We are not of those who believe that "everything depends on immigration." Somehow or other, the idea sticks to us that the South is the greatest country on Earth and her people the noblest under the Sun.

We have no objection to good people coming among us, indeed we welcome them to settle among us and contribute to the capital, virtue and material prosperity of this section.

We understand that one of the purposes in getting up the Southern Exposition was to induce immigration to North Carolina.

Our hearts will not sink within us (if the flood tide of immigration from Europe is not directed Southward. If we could only pick them and select the best it would be splendid, but like the old woman's eggs we must take them as they come, and if we occasionally get a chicken in place of an egg it is our luck.

Seriously, we believe that North Carolina is filling up fast enough. Certainly we need no immigration agents. Intelligent men every where know of the attractions that our State offers to capital, and not a few Northern men and some Europeans have come to us and realized that the half had not been told.

What we need most is an even chance in life's great battle.

Take from the national statute book unjust and oppressive legislation, give us a currency equal to the demands of trade and open to us the markets of the world, and the prosperity that will come to us will fill the land with industrious, progressive and virtuous people.

CHILL.
We expect to see the Chilean affair speedily settled.

There is no occasion for the interruption of friendly relations between the United States and Chili, much less for war.

The placing of a guard around the American consulate, the watch put upon the movements of the Baltimore and the arrest and imprisonment of American seamen, were irritating circumstances calculated to attract the attention of the representatives of this Government, but no one on duty seems to have known how to assume the diplomatic attitude. The clearing of decks for action was simply a play between the acts to give time for somebody to find out what to do.

EGAN was no statesman, and unfortunately the temporary head of the Department of State seemed to know very little more than Egan. There was need of a firm Italian hand; one that could cut deep into the marble, or simply touch it with the chisel's point as occasion required.

We are no worshippers of Blaine—we abominate his domestic policy—but everyone must be gratified that he has returned to Washington and taken up the portfolio of the State Department.

CHILL.
So long as the Chilean controversy is unsettled it will be a proper theme for newspaper animadversion.

That the officials of this Government blundered at the outset is very generally admitted. It is always unwise to take part in other people's quarrels, and it is especially unfortunate to take the side of the party that is to be defeated. But this is just what Minister Egan did. It was not to be supposed that the victors would be specially attentive to him when the friend of Balmaceda.

The subsequent indignities to this Government could not be allowed to pass unnoticed, and the United States, has, after much hesitation, presented her demand for redress with becoming dignity and necessary accuracy.

Comparisons are being made of the strength of the Chilean and United States navies. From statements that are supposed to be true, it would seem that we are fully able to meet Chili on sea; but who wants to slap over our little sister Republic?

The Pope has been uncomfortably situated ever since his temporal kingdom was taken from him, and his imperial sway confined to the Vatican.

Having been master of Italy and Supreme Pontiff of the World, he must have but little enjoyment as a subject of the kingdom of Humbert.

He has not been at ease since the revolution, and recently he has been subjected to indignity and insult.

It is believed by many that he is no longer safe in the Eternal City. The attack upon pilgrims in the Pantheon is regarded as an indication that reverence of His Holiness is past, and that even in Rome there is no dread of the curse of the Pope.

Will the Pope leave Italy, and the hallowed associations that cluster around Rome? Where can he go and be safe from the machinations of "the wicked"?

Austria will not shelter him, and the bold and defiant William is too proud to defend him. Russia can have but one czar: Spain is effete, France more intolerant than Italy, and Catholic Ireland is torn by domestic furies and prostrate in the dust. The States of Central and South America are too revolutionary to offer a safe asylum.

If driven from Italy, where will the Pope go? He may come to the United States. If he comes abandoning all claim to temporal power, and intent only on building up a spiritual kingdom that shall be more glorious and enduring than the empire of the Caesars, he will be welcomed, and men of all creeds join in appropriate honors to letters piety and fame.

Blaine has now the unusual opportunity of conciliating Sister Republics and at the same time boosting his favorite policy of reciprocity.

If, however, Chili refuses to make redress, she must understand that it is the imperative duty of this Government to enforce respect for its flag, and this it will do in all lands and under all circumstances.

THE HAIN FAMILY.
Many of our readers remember the killing of young Hannegan by his associate Thornton Hains at Fort Monroe, and the subsequent trial at Hampton.

The two men lived in Washington and moved in the best circles. They visited "Old Point" on a pleasure trip, and, while out sailing one afternoon, a quarrel arose between them, and Hains shot Hannegan dead.

The trial that followed was a memorable one. The best legal talent was employed in the case. Hains came from New York to defend and Footprints from Indiana to prosecute Hains. The accused was acquitted, but the public was not satisfied. An indignation meeting was held in Hampton at which the jury was bitterly denounced for their verdict of "not guilty."

Hannegan went to his grave, and Hains returned to the gay scenes of Washington City.

But the sequel was not yet. The Hains family had been accustomed to the best society, and was worthy of it. Its head was a colonel of engineers, in charge of the improvement of the Potomac flats. One of his two sons was an army officer on duty in Washington.

Thornton Hains thought that he was entitled to the same consideration after the killing of Hannegan that he received before it occurred. Not so thought Washington Society. Ladies sympathized with Mrs. Hains and continued their visits. They warmed towards her and wanted her to be cheered by the evidences of their love. But this was not enough for Mrs. Hains. She felt no happiness in being the recipient of tokens of respect that were denied her son. So, on one occasion, she called Thornton down stairs to meet her lady friend. The fair visitor refused to recognize him, and a scene followed. The incident was first whispered, then talked until Washington was full of it. The friends of the Departments and of army and navy officers stopped visiting the house for fear of having a murder charge thrust upon them, and under the whole family is self banished from Washington City.

Young Hains has gone to South America. His brother, Lieut. John P. Hains has been transferred from Washington to Fort McHenry. His father and mother will go to Portland Maine, and the entire family will have left Washington.

What a lesson to young men! It is bad enough for the guilty to suffer, but when one offender drags a whole family to ruin it is unspeakably terrible.

What WILL BECOME OF THE POPE? What will become of the Pope? We do not mean when he has "shed off this mortal coil," and his disembodied spirit enters the mysterious beyond. We have no prophetic claim that can penetrate the veil that curtains eternity, but if we were bold enough to make venture, we, though Protestants, would look towards the seats of the redeemed and glorified.

The Pope has been uncomfortably situated ever since his temporal kingdom was taken from him, and his imperial sway confined to the Vatican.

Having been master of Italy and Supreme Pontiff of the World, he must have but little enjoyment as a subject of the kingdom of Humbert.

He has not been at ease since the revolution, and recently he has been subjected to indignity and insult.

It is believed by many that he is no longer safe in the Eternal City. The attack upon pilgrims in the Pantheon is regarded as an indication that reverence of His Holiness is past, and that even in Rome there is no dread of the curse of the Pope.

THE CITY HALL.
An ornament to the City and Well Adapted to its Requirements.

The work on the city hall is nearly completed, and even as it stands our citizens have a building to which they can put with pride. It is an attractive substantial brick building fronting 62 feet on the street, and 43 in depth. The front is stuccoed and laid off in excellent imitation of elegant granite blocks.

The front of the northern half of the building, is the city clerk's and treasurer's office—the rear room of the mayor's office. Handsome signs at the door of each room give the information as to what office is within, and a door between them furnishes ready communication from one to the other, and both are nicely waded and painted and well furnished.

Access to these rooms from the main entrance is given by a wide passage, and this contains a five foot stairway that leads directly to the main room of the building—his hall—used for the mayor's office headquarters and for public meetings. This is a splendid room, 40x13, 18 feet high, furnished throughout in native wood, 2 1/2 inch double-beaded yellow pine, hard oak finish beautifully penciled overhead in the ceiling, and the walls are moulded to show a wide variety of trimmings in walnut. It is supplied with one hundred good chairs and has an ample room for the mayor or speakers, and is enclosed by a six inch rail with three inch turned balusters—the stairs are finished in oak.

Two twelve inch columns are to be placed at even distances between the two sides of the hall—one is already in position and the other will soon be.

The hall is now lighted by nine electric lights—one at the center of the room and the others radiating out from at right angles toward each side of the room; but these are to be supplemented by an elegant 12 light combination chandelier—six of the lights to be gas and six electric, and by six gas and six electric lights, the walls also are richly clad between gas and electricity.

Adjoining the hall on the south is the assembly room of the Atlantic Steam Fire Engine Company, finished similar to the hall and containing overhead a fine set of electric lights, 12 in. diameter, 2x4 feet, and has a 15-foot pitch and can be reached either through the room we have just described or by the entrance at the other end of the building.

Below the fireman's meeting room is the fire bell tower over the center of the building adds much to its appearance. The tower rests upon a thick brick partition through the center of the building, and Mr. Wm. Gaskins, the contractor, informs us that the tower will be made of brick and iron, and is being built in perfect order and the timbers of best pine without a sign of decay.

The fire bell tower will be warmed by a first class heater of the latest improved make. It has already been ordered.

Our citizens can congratulate themselves on the excellent city hall they now have, and on having secured it at a price that is very creditable to our city.

The stock exchange was large and very creditable. There plenty of good stock racing. The $100 purse was contested for by Mary Spelman owned by Mr. Matt White of Elizabeth City, Leonard J. owned in Norfolk and N. H. R. owned in Philadelphia. They finished in the order named. Time respectively 2:32, 2:31 and 2:30.

Mr. J. D. Hensley's collection of animals and birds from New Berne another good side show, too, added to the enjoyment.

We repeatedly heard expressions of admiration, characterizing the Fair as the best one ever held at Elizabeth City and the attendance the largest.

The Fair association is well fixed for their exhibitions, having nicely located grounds ten acres in extent outside of the city, a large main building, roomy stables for stock plenty of well arranged crops for poultry, a half-mile track in good order and a grand stand with a seating capacity of 800 with a speakers' and judges stand immediately in front of it.

Upon our arrival at Elizabeth City Tuesday morning after a pleasant four day trip on the steamer Neuse we had the good fortune to be met by Mr. L. E. Chapman, the clever Elizabeth City correspondent of the Norfolk Landmark and in company with him visited some of the principal points around the city, which is extending quite fast, a large portion of it has been built up within the last fifteen years, and we were informed that there are now two stores and 34 nice dwellings now in course of erection. It contains large handsome stores, a good cotton factory, is established a native New Bernian. Mr. D. M. Dewey is its foreman; there is also a 20 ton ice factory, a cotton seed oil mill, and a wire factory, a combination wire and wood-fence factory, large saw and planing mills, several other canneries and other industries.

The handsome court house occupies a square and its tower contains a town clock (New Bernians lets us have one) and a 24,000 ton ball is now being built, and on every hand there are evidences that, in keeping with other East Carolina cities, Elizabeth City is going forward at no sluggish pace.

gold-brother Pottery Works Burned.
Sunday evening, about church time, the Pottery Works of the city were destroyed by fire. The building was to be burned with some great configuration. At first it was thought to be the Pottery Works, but it was a brick drying rack, together with other valuable property on the yard were entirely destroyed, proving an absolute loss of several thousand dollars, as he had no insurance whatsoever. The Pottery Works, which are situated at the foot of the city, and that, too, on a Sunday evening, and there being no supply of water on the grounds, reaching and much of the brick drying racks, together with other valuable property on the yard were entirely destroyed, proving an absolute loss of several thousand dollars, as he had no insurance whatsoever. The Pottery Works, which are situated at the foot of the city, and that, too, on a Sunday evening, and there being no supply of water on the grounds, reaching and much of the brick drying racks, together with other valuable property on the yard were entirely destroyed, proving an absolute loss of several thousand dollars, as he had no insurance whatsoever.

The exhibition of the colored people very creditable to them. It is separate, and under the control and management of colored people and occupies the space between the Pottery Works and the city exhibit are not only agricultural products, but also many articles of artistic handiwork, which are striking proofs of the advancement made by the colored people since their emancipation.—Chatham Record.

ALBEMARLE PARK FAIR.
A Grand Success—Excellent Exhibition—Immense Attendance—Col. Polk Speaks.

The Albemarle Park Fair of Elizabeth City, which closed Friday was one worthy of that progressive city and prosperous section and it met with the success it deserved.

Thursday was Alliance day. The grand event of the day was an address by Col. L. L. Polk, the celebrated President of the Farmers' Alliance of the United States, who has made addresses and been enthusiastically received in every portion of the Union and who one week previous was making addresses in California 3,000 miles away.

Col. Polk with his private Secretary, Mr. Ayer, arrived at Elizabeth City at 11:30 a. m. in the special car of Mr. M. K. King, General Manager of the Norfolk and Southern railroad. Visiting fire companies and a large number of other visitors also came in on the same train. They were met at the depot by officers of the Fair and of the county Alliance and prominent citizens of the town and escorted to the Fair grounds. The procession as it left the depot was a long one composed of members of the Fair, a carriage containing the speakers and others, four bands, the Hope Fire Company of Berkley, Virginia, with their Amoskeag engine, a carriage delegation from the Portsmouth fire company, the Elizabeth City Fire Department with their Sibley engine and hose carriage about 50 carriages and a throng of people aloft.

Upon the arrival at the grounds four T. G. Skinner introduced Col. Polk and he held the appreciative address of his large and attentive audience of two hours duration.

The assembly was a thronged one; the visitors, 5,000 in number representing well the industry, commerce, Christianity and intelligence of Eastern Carolina passed in from every direction. There were about 500 and 700 brigades on the grounds at one time and throughout the day all who attended seemed to the best of their advantage.

The large and pretty exhibition building was well filled and the exhibits nicely arranged for harmonious effect and easy examination.

Fronting the main entrance was a set of shelves of beautiful pruned fruit, the most beautiful specimens of fruit and vegetables, above them several shelves of canned fruit, preserves, jellies, etc. the shelves of floral plants and at the apex baskets of native ornamental grasses.

In their proper departments were shown a good supply of fine ladies fancy work in its various branches, a tempting culinary display, field and garden crops, agricultural and oyster-beding instruments, handsome musical instruments, fine furniture, products of the factories of Elizabeth City, etc.

There were fine specimens of poultry—some native and some pure bred, but the collection did not embrace many varieties.

The stock exchange was large and very creditable. There plenty of good stock racing. The $100 purse was contested for by Mary Spelman owned by Mr. Matt White of Elizabeth City, Leonard J. owned in Norfolk and N. H. R. owned in Philadelphia. They finished in the order named. HOW TO OWN A HOME.
The Great Value Attached to the Building and Loan Association.

At no time in its history, perhaps, has New Berne possessed so important a factor for its improvement and material advancement as it now does in the excellently managed and admirably conducted Building and Loan Association. This fact was very clearly demonstrated by the reports read at the last annual meeting, when it was shown that during the four years of its existence there had been received and loaned out to its members more than thirty seven thousand dollars. Now when it is remembered that this very considerable sum was paid into the association in monthly payments of one dollar on each share of stock, it is a striking illustration of what may be accomplished by co-operation and unity of action; and when it is understood that this sum has been loaned for the purpose of procuring, improving and beautifying New Berne homes, the support and benefits of the association become more apparent.

Occupying fully as good a site as any other in the city, there is no need for the introduction of other buildings of similar institutions existing elsewhere and to be proud of its success. One of the secrets of the very great success of this association is, that not a dollar is paid out for any expense of operating excepting a nominal salary to secretary and treasurer, and hence every cent loaned to the members who are stockholders.

Observation and experience has taught that organizations of this character can only be made successful and successful when managed most economically and by capable men, whose services are not paid for, but who are interested in
