THE COTTON OUTLOOK.

Estimates of the Crop—It May Be 10,000,000 Bales, but Likely Much Less.

The factors expect to see a larger business this year than formerly, says the Augusta Chronicle, and are sanguine that last year's receipts will be overreached by the present crop prospects. The cotton crop is estimated to reach 10,000,000 bales, or a million or a million and a half bales.

These are the figures of an average cotton year, and who for years, have made a business of selling the crop. They believe the outlook is a great deal better than at this time last year, but disagree with the somewhat exaggerated estimates that have been sent out from various points in the South.

One report which gained currency through the press, it was said, was that the crop of 1894 would be 10,000,000 bales. This, conservative cotton men believe to be extravagant. Last year's crop was 9,000,000 bales, and it is not such a bad crop. The total yield in bales will be between eight and nine million bales.

It is a great deal of a great deal of cotton, and it is estimated that it will be made of the coming crop. It is practically made, a storm or an early frost might destroy at least half a million bales.

Said a prominent cotton factor yesterday: "No cotton man, no matter how well posted, can talk with certainty about the cotton outlook. The possibility and probability of rains and early frost furnish so many variables that it is impossible to say with any degree of certainty what will be the result. It will be several weeks before anything can be said with definiteness."

"The greatest danger which we have to fear is an early frost. Such a calamity might cut off the crop to the extent of a half a million bales, therefore in speaking of it, it is necessary to allow a wide margin for such occurrences."

"It is just simply guess work to talk about what the crop will be. We can only tell what it is now. Speaking from the present outlook, the future will be good. I expect a crop of between eight and nine million bales."

Obituary.

Died at his home on the north side of New river in Craven county, after about two weeks painful illness of hemorrhagic fever, Esch Feltner, aged 62 years, 6 months and twenty days. He was buried by Bro. B. H. Abrighton, in 1894 and since that time has been a very consistent member of the Free Will Baptist church. He will be sadly missed, both in the community and in the church, but to where more than in the home circle now bereft of his genial presence.

He leaves a widow and three children, one son and two daughters to mourn their loss.

May God's comforters and love lighten the sorrows of the bereaved widow and children.

The funeral services were conducted by Bro. Jesse Boussett.
