WHY PUNISHED.

Reason for Giving the Convicts the Lash.

Big Changes in State Guard. Grand Lodge Meeting. Secured Freight Reduction. Big Cotton Mill. Strawberry Shipment Record Broken.

RALPHIGH, May 11.—The Federal convicts in the penitentiary were, until Capt. "Bill" Day took hold of the penitentiary, allowed to do pretty much as they pleased. They despised their could not be punished. They planned ementes and they were on the point of demoralizing the State convicts. Day came in and found that they could be punished. Thirty-five of them were ordered to the brickyard and six of them swore they would not go. The ringleaders were a white man and a negro preacher from Alabama. They were given sixteen lashes, the others three to six. Day says this worked like a charm and that the mutineers acknowledged that they got what they deserved.

The adjutant-general has made a big change in the regiments of the State Guard. What was the First is made the Second. The First thus created embraces all the companies of the First Volunteer Regiment, which served in Cuba, except the Goldsboro company, which is put in the new Second regiment. The Maxton and Lumber Bridge companies are put in the Second regiment. The Third regiment is not changed. Each regiment has twelve companies. Joseph F. Armfield will command the First and in July or August it will make a practice march. The Second and Third will go into camp. The companies of the First will retain their letters as they were in Cuba.

There are 148 delegates attending the Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows, now in session here. These represent 108 lodges in future instead of meeting at a different point annually, all the meetings of the Grand Lodge may be held here. This matter is being specially considered.

Only one new case of smallpox is disclosed in this city, while sixteen patients are discharged from the pest house and twenty-four suspects from the detention camp. As yet no one has died at the pest house and the authorities say they do not expect to lose a case there.

The new hospital at the Confederate Soldiers' Home here is to accommodate forty patients. The building will be one story, with a continuous veranda.

Work will begin this month on a cotton seed mill here at the works of the Carolina Phosphate and Fertilizer Company. It will be a mill of medium size.

The Wilmington Tariff Association secures equal freight rates with Norfolk and Richmond to points in Central and Western North Carolina. The Atlantic Coast Line and Southern Railway agree to make this reduction.

The Ladies' Memorial Association in a very quiet way, decorated the graves of the Confederate dead. There was no parade and no address.

A report made by the Atlantic Coast Line Railway shows that it has broken all records in strawberry shipments between Wilmington and Goldsboro. There were ninety carloads, making three trains, containing 25,500 crates.

It is learned the Duke family of Durham will build a $300,000 cotton mill there. A $100,000 mill will also be built at Durham in addition to the $250,000 mill there, the stock in which was taken last week.

Robert Strange Kirkland, brother of Commodore Kirkland and General Kirkland, died in Brunswick county, N. C. He had spent much of his life in Tide water, Virginia.

The Comptroller of the Currency has decided that Judge Ewart, of the western district of North Carolina, is entitled to the salary attached to the office from the date of his qualification under the recess appointment issued to him by the President on April 13, 1898. During the last session of Congress, Mr. Ewart served as district judge under a recess appointment issued July 13, 1898.

The Supreme Court adjourned to meet next September. For the first time in over 50 years not a single case was carried over to the succeeding term.

INSURGENTS ATTEMPT RECAPTURE.

Exploit a Great Deal of Breath and Many Cartridges, But Were Easily Repulsed. Their Congress Was Feared.

MANILA, May 10.—The Filipino General Mascardo's army, inspired by wine taken from the storehouses of Bacolor and by the General's oratory on Monday evening, attacked San Fernando. There was tremendous yelling and a great expenditure of cartridges by the rebels, but very little result.

General Mascardo holds the outskirts of Bacolor. West of the railroad in front of his position, are the Kansas and Montana regiments, which occupy trenches that the Filipinos built in anticipation of an attack from the direction of the sea. During the afternoon of Monday, General Mascardo, with a large retinue of officers, rode along the lines, frequently stopping to harangue his warriors.

At dusk a detachment of insurgents rushed towards the outposts of the Montana Regiment, but were met by a hot fire from the Montana Regiment's line. The insurgents from trenches near three miles long responded. After an hour's firing, during which one private soldier of the Montana Regiment was wounded, the insurgents subsided, although they kept up a scattering fire throughout the night.

Prisoners who were brought into the American lines said that General Mascardo distributed barrels of wine among his soldiers, telling them that he expected them to capture the city of San Fernando.

The trenches undoubtedly saved the Americans from heavy losses, bullets falling thick about them during the engagement.

SPEECH OF GEN. GORDON.

"A Pledge of the South's Eternal Loyalty to the Perpetuity of American Freedom."
CHARLESTON, S. C., May 10.—General John B. Gordon's opening address at the Confederate reunion today was as follows:

"My fellow-countrymen of South Carolina: The flood of emotions which stirs the sensibilities of these veterans today is their loving answer to your gracious greeting. These emotions will speak to you in language far more impressive and eloquent than any words I could utter. The ringing shouts from these thousands of Confederate throats are veritable echoes of the inspiring resolutions of welcome unanimously adopted by your General Assembly.

"While those resolutions have cheered and thrilled every Southern soldier's heart, they were not needed to tell us of the reception that awaited us in South Carolina. Her whole history and that of her commercial capital were the promise and guarantee of this magnificent reality.

"What else could be expected of a people in whose veins are conmingled the blood of the proud English cavaliers—the blood of those devoted and resolute men who protested against the immoralities and grinding exactions of the Stuarts; the blood of the stalwart Disasters and of the heroic Highlanders of Scotland and of the sturdy democratic Presbyterians of Ireland; the blood of those defenders of freedom who came to your shores from the mountain battlements of Switzerland, and lastly, but not less pure and sacred, the blood of the high souled Huguenots of France, whose martyrs, by a glorious fidelity, even unto death, have made sweeter and richer the record of human devotion to conscience and liberty.

"No resolutions, I repeat, by which this great Commonwealth extends its loving welcome were needed to assure these remnants of the South's immortal armies that the freedom of the State was theirs, and that every heart within her borders was a soldier's shrine. We had but to remember that South Carolina was the nursery of heroes, as well as of statesmen and of patriots—that no one State, except that she be endowed with an almost boundless abundance of greatness, could in one century have given to the cause of liberty and the republic such a splendid galaxy as South Carolina presents in her Rutledge, her Sumter, her Moultrie, her Middleton, her Marion; in her Butler, her Pinckney, and her Pickens; in her McDuffie and her Calhoun; in her Jamison, her Hayne, and her beloved Hampton.

"I feel myself overwhelmed by your confidence to send to every patriot in every section and State the fraternal greetings of this convention and of the whole people to pledge in the name of every Confederate and son and daughter of a Confederate the South's eternal loyalty to every cause for the upholding of American manhood, the perpetuity of American freedom, the unity of the American people that by all these agencies we may accelerate the onward march of the republic in its benign mission to humanity.
