THE MEASURE OF LOCAL PATRIOTISM.

The measure by which a man is judged in his community must ever be a varied one, according to the spirit of the person who may attempt the measurement.

Political, commercial, religious, may be named as the three most important rules for measuring, although the social cannot be everlooked.

A man may fail to come up to the full requirements in all of these, and vet prove a good citizen for the community to have, and so far as the demands of a measurement for local patriotism, will come up to the ful requirements.

Perhaps it is because men strive to meet some one or all of the demands made, that they actually fail in making themselves of present and future value to their community.

For political ends, success may be at tained, and yet the successful person prove of no special benefit to his com-

A man may come up to the full com mercial requirements, meet his obligs tions promptly, and have property bonds and a bank account, and yet have done nothing which could make him feel missed in his community, if he was taken away

There is ability, power and sincere ef fort, but withal directed towards parrow ness.

The measurement of a person for local patriotism is difficult

There is a want of glamor, an intangi bleness. The person may appear so simple as to defy measurement.

The effort of today is so mingled with the results that may come tomorrow or the next day, that no note is made, and even when the splendid results come, the local patriot, the promoter and prime mover and worker in it all, is forgotten in the shout of applause over the sight of the object developed into all its com-

It is the work which a man or woman does for his or her people, or community, that is the true measure of local patriotiam.

Its unostentatiousness, its simplicity, its quiet working out, makes its promoter hardly recognizable, and even with the work in its maturity, when the people are loud in their praise, and all enter into the benefits brought about, and the community rejoices in the blessings ob- the disease, and giving the patient tained, the zealous local patriot is forgotten, and no one seeks to find the measurement, for it cannot be com-

Now that the political awards have been made to the township, county and district giving the greatest majority for the Amendment, or for the State ticket, it is to be hoped that the offering of awards will take some other subject, besides the political, for which flags or gifts shall be gives.

The lad visited General Wheeler, and the latter after his first greeting turned to his work and allowed the youngster to amuse himself as best he might Young Bryan found a loose chair caster and a big bundle of rubber bands. These he tied into a long string and then, se curing the caster to the botton, went to a window and began bouncing the piece of iron up and down on the sidewalk seventy-five feet below.

The General, engrossed with his labors paid no attention to the boy who gradually became so interested in his play that he leaned further and further out of the window

"Fighting Joe" happened to glance up cally the same rules and regulations as a few moments later and was horrified to see the lad hanging with his whole body over the sidewalk and only the toes of his shoes clutching the angle of the window. He sat aghast for a moment and then rushing to the window he pulled the lad in by his legs and langled him

Speaking of the occurrence afterward General Wheeler acknowledged that young Bryan was within an inch of being dashed to death on the pavement below when he caught sight of him.
