How Day Rum Is Made.

Bay rum is manufactured in Dominica from the dried leaves of Pimenta neris. Bay rum is procured by distillation and this in a very simple manner. The leaves are picked from the trees and then dried. In this state they are placed in the retort, which is then filled with water, and the process of distillation is carried on. The vapor is then condensed in the usual way and forms what is known as "bay oil." a very small quantity of which is required for each puncheon of rum. The manufacture of bay rum is carried on at the northern end of Dominica and man of few words. Probably there is a lesson in this.

The average horse understands only a few things thoroughly, only a few words, signs or commands. The slient man gives only a few, and he does not confuse his horse. The horse is made to know them thorosphly. He understands the man who understands him. It is a pleasure to drive a horse that understands. Few pleasures in life can equal it if the horse is a good, cheerful driver. There would be more of this kind if they were made to know a few things thoroughly-the right things -- National Stockman

How Sousa Got His Name.

When Sousa, famous the world over as king of march music, landed in the "home of the free," he carried with him a valise on which was marked in plain letters "John Philipso, U. S. A.' Time passed, and this son of sunny Italy commenced to grow musical and also to become Americanized. It was then, so the story goes, that he exfor a name more pressed the desire nearly like those of the people which he was one by choice. Philipso sounded out of place doing service for a man who had imbibed American beliefs and customs and whose destiny was closely linked with "the stars and stripes forever." A member of the band to which he belonged finally made a suggesion. It turned out to be a happy one and was ter. adopted by the master of the baton. The suggestion was this: To the name Philipso add U. S. A. Divide the one name into two words, and there was the smooth sounding and easily pronounced name of John Philip Sousa. Roup is produced by a cold that has been neglected.

A duck grows faster than a chicken, sells for more money, costs us no more to feed and needs little care, especially after it is well feathered.

By a little planning so as to hatch pullets of different ages it is possible to insure a more regular supply of eggs throughout the year.

It is hardly good economy to force 50 cents' worth of medicine down a sick fowl that if well and sent to market would not sell for more than 25 cents.

Plan now to hatch out as many early chickens as possible. It means early laying pullets in the fall and eggs in winter that are always valuable and profitable.
