Do You Know Your Letters?

Any man who can read would prob ably resent such an imputation of ignorance as this question conveys. "Do you know your letters?" is what is asked the little tot when he or she first sets foot in school. #### ESCAPED DEATH

But Horse Was Killed by Live Wire Sunday Night.

Sunday night shortly after 10 o'clock,

Mr. Dewoy was seen yesterday and told the story of the accident and his es-

He had only returned Sunday from a trip to New York and had been at the bank looking over his letters until nearly ten o'clock, when he started for home. The night was dark and stormy, and it was impossible to see any thing, with the streets unlighted.

On George street, just beyond New street, the home gave a sudden lunge, then fell in a heap. For the moment Mr. Dewey, thought the horse had a spasm and had fallen, then he knew evening wear is made of plaitings of nothing, until he found himself in the roadway beside his buggy. Some colored men living near had been attracted, and Mr. Dewey called for an axe to cut the wire to release his horse, but a colored man said, "No use, Boss, he's

> Returning to the city, Mr. Dewey gave notice of the wire being down, then went home. His explanation of the time when the horse went down and he found himself in the road, is that the wire had entangled and charged the buggy, which caused him to spring out, the shock on alighting restoring him to full consciousness.

An examination of the horse showethat the animal had straddled the wire, which had first shocked, and caused the mare to fall, this tightening the wire bring ing the full current to, bear. Prob ably two minutes elapsed, the mare giving several groans, and was dead

When removed, there was found the electric company's wire and the city's fire alarm wire, one under the horse, the other above. A straight burnt line, from the horse's breast, beneath the body, to the tail showed where the current had done its work.

The cause of the accident was due to a fallen pole across the road with the two wires on it.

Greek Husband Housekeepers. In Greece it is the custom for the man of the house to go out early in the morning and not only to order the day's food, but to send along with the boy who delivers it explicit orders how he wishes to have it cooked. In this connection it should be remarked that any man of Greece can cook any Greek dish. Grecian women seldom go to market and often do not know how to cook as well as their husbands.

These people eat very lightly in the morning, the meal consisting of fruit. At noon comes the first real meal, the breakfast. From noon until 4 o'clock they sleep. This is the midday siesta. To call upon a Greek at this time were quite as rude as to call ner, or hearty meal, is not eaten unt

The Gummed Flower.

You may buy upon the street flowers which to the eye are of a bloom as fine and a growth as fresh as any which could be procured at the most costly establishment. You buy them for a song and bring them home, when, lo! to your astonishment and dismay they fall to pieces at a breath like a cardboard house. They have been subjected to one of the "tricks of the trade." It is known as the "gumming process." A single drop of gum is inserted with a sharp pointed instrument into the center of each calyx, and by this means the conformity of the bloom is preserved until the flowers are sold. The composition of the gum is such as to dry up and set immediately, becoming invisible even to the closest scrutiny.—Everybody's Magazine.

After twelve years of light and shade-the shade predominating-her sun went down while it was yet day, and she closed her eyes in dreamless slumber in a foreign clime.

Since that time what a change has been effected in the attitude of woman to the cause of Missions! How many young women without the protection of husband or relative, have rejoiced to go on these errands of love and mercy to the uttermost parts of the earth! The writer recalls an accomplished unmarried lady who for more than thirty years has been an efficient laborer in China, making meanwhile but one visit to her Old as our city is, it appears to have native country; and another, a lovely purpose of re-inforcing our missionari

Note also the improvement in our agencies for fostering the missionary spirit, and in our methods for develop ing missionary work. Most of our churches have Women's Missionary Socities-in some denominations, for more effective service, organized into one bedy, after the model of our Confer ences and Conventions, yet officered by women. One grand object of our committees and executive boards is the pub lication and dissemination of missionary literature. 'Do we sustain as liberally as we ought our missionary magazines? Do we even take the trouble to read the tracts that fall into our hand, or to consult the missionary columns in our religious journals? We need to be better informed of the needs and condition of our mission fields, and such an acquaintance with our workers, through thei correspondence, as to enter into their hopes and fears, in order to intelligent sympathy and co-operation.

Perhaps some of us have not availed oarselves of this medium for stimulating our missionary zeal. Others, perhaps, have neglected attendance upon th meetings of our societies, and thus have lost the inspiration that comes from united effort. And yet others, perhaps have failed in our contributions to the support of our representatives on the frontier and in heathendom. Let us swake to's sense of our duty in these regards, and with grateful hearts for their sacrifices and successes, let us cast in to our tressuries as the fruit of our selfdenial, a generous offering, a fitting but inadequate tribate to the Christian berolam of our brethren and sisters, who, in His name, "bave gone forth, taking nothing of the Gentiles."
