THE IMPORTING INDUSTRIAL STAGE.

The free trade contention has been that a country should confine itself to the manufacture of only such articles as its own country could produce, and not attempt to compete in manufactures with any country which had established manufactures.

In Great Britain, the free trade have believed until lately, that England was safe, and must hold the supremacy of the world in the manufacturing line, although it was admitted Great Britain would have to import both food products and raw materials.

But the change from this idea is shown by recent reports of the United States Treasury Bureau.

These reports show in figures that practically one half of all the imports into this country during the month of March were of raw materials for American manufacture.

This would seem to prove pretty conclusively that the industrial stage of development in this country has so far advanced that it has gone beyond the point of having sufficient of the home raw material, to meet the manufacturer's demands.

Which proves that this country has advanced so in its manufactures, that the raw materials, once so freely sent to British manufactures, are now consumed by home manufactures instead of exported.

The change is a radical industrial one, and one which means extreme competition among manufacturers for the raw material in England and the United States.

IRRIGATION THROUGH GOVERNMENT AID.

At present national irrigation cannot be regarded as an up-to-date political issue, or be alleged as such upon the ground that is an economic duty of the government to legislate upon this matter.

Irrigation in this country is as yet upon a very small scale, in the way of money investment compared to the amount of territory which is really in need of irrigation to make it productive, or fit for agricultural purposes.

It is estimated that two fifths of the area of the United States is land unsuited for agricultural purposes, except if be irrigated.

This being so, to hastily put forth any legislation, which demands hundreds of millions of dollars for irrigating purposes, without ample study having been previously made on the subject, would mean a tax, not merely onerous, but one which is unnecessary at the present time.

The cost, value and expense of operating the irrigating works, as against the value of crops to be raised, is an important consideration. In fact, to make irrigation a subject for national concern, for which taxes are to be assessed, collected and the moneys paid out, is something not to be entered into without great care.

At present the population of the country does not demand this work of National Irrigation.

Where private individuals go into the business of buying arid lands at nominal prices, and make the same valuable through irrigation, such work is to be commended.

But National aid through taxation for the purpose, is not needed, today, however the demand may be for more agricultural lands, before the century has passed.

THE CONTEST FOR RAW TOBACCO.

The tobacco farmer this year has practically only himself to look to for good results from his tobacco crop.

That is, with careful planting, favorable weather for growing and attention given to the curing process, and with special attention in curing, the matter of good prices and demand for the tobacco need not enter in as a disturbing factor in the tobacco farmer's calculations.

The fear of a tobacco trust, of a single trust which can dictate the amount of tobacco to be bought of the farmer, and thus name the price at which the farmer must sell, is absent this year.

The American Tobacco Company this year has a rival in the North Carolina tobacco market in the shape of the Imperial Tobacco Company, an English concern, which proposes to be a keen competitor for the raw product grown by the tobacco farmer.

The fact of the American and English Tobacco Companies fighting in the market over the consumer, who is to buy their finished product, is not so important, in its benefits, as is this contest of these companies over the raw product which means everything to the tobacco farmer.

When as sellers, it is understood that these companies are selling cigarettes and smoking tobacco manufactured from the American product in countries which a few years ago knew nothing of these goods, and that Virginia and the Carolinas furnish seven tenths of this raw product, the importance of the situation is seen.

With a good tobacco crop this year, it means that the established tobacco markets will handle increased amounts of the raw product.

And with the competition of these two companies, with their buyers in every market, it means that the farmer raising tobacco will find a ready market for his tobacco, and realize better prices for it, than he has received in many years.

The Plague in Australia.

Plague has broken out again with great severity in Australia for the third time in as many years. The state of New South Wales seems to be the greatest sufferer. As in former years, the dissemination has been traced to rats. It is said that one man, who discovered two dead rodents in his cellar, undertook to bury them and was stricken the next day with the disease. An elaborate system of extermination of the rats by poisonous vapors is being carried out, and the government has placed a bounty on each animal killed. In this way, hundreds of thousands are done away with.

ONE OF NATURE'S LAWS.

Action and Reaction That Produce a Fit of the Blues.

Probably in two cases out of three the blues are caused by one's physical state. If a man has overworked or has been under an unusual strain or excitement or has worried a great deal for a while in a state of joy and elation—all of which require an expenditure of energy—he is very likely to have the blues and to be in low spirits by way of reaction.

The body is a machine which can do a certain amount of work and no more. If it does a great deal today, it must do less tomorrow and thereby make up for today's extravagance. If a man takes one glass of whiskey, the slight stimulus that he feels will be followed, as night follows day, by an exactly equivalent sinking of the spirits. If he has been thoroughly and gayly drunk, his recovery will be attended by corresponding melancholia and misery.

When a man has the blues, he ought to consider that he is merely an exponent of one of nature's laws and that he has no right to harass others with complaints. Some men are not pleased unless they communicate their unpleasant moods to all about them. They become sulky and cross with their wives and children, and they throw a gloom over their household. Such conduct is very selfish.

A man in the blues ought to take some pills and a good long walk all alone or with some companion of steadfast cheerfulness. Lucky it is for him if he has a wife who will not be downcast and who can restore him to cheerfulness without spoiling him. -San Francisco Bulletin.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Groves' Tasteless Chill Tonic, because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure - no pay. Price 50c.

Biliousness is a condition characterized by a disturbance of the digestive organs. The stomach is debilitated, the liver torpid, the bowels constipated. There is a loathing of food, pains in the bowels, dizziness, coated tongue and vomiting, first of the undigested or partially digested food and then of bile. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets ally the disturbances of the stomach and create a healthy appetite. They also tone up the liver to a healthy action and regulate the bowels. Try them and you are certain to be much pleased with the result. For sale by F. S. Duffy.

First English Book on Sport.

The first book on sport ever printed in the English language was a rhymed treatise called the "Boke of St. Albans," its author being a woman, Dame Juliana Berners. Its second edition was printed by Wynkyn de Worde in 1490. A descendant of her family, Lord Berners, was the translator of Froissart's "Chronicles." It is true that old manuscripts existed, such as the "Venerie de Tweecy" of the time of Edward II, but it was Dame Juliana who was the real ancestress of sporting literature in England, for she also composed an essay on "hawking and another on 'Fishing With an Angle,' the last being of such excellence that Isaac Walton himself did not disdain to take a hint from its pages.

The Brain of an Eskimo.

Although general conclusions cannot be drawn from a single example, the result of a careful examination of the brain of an Eskimo man by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka possesses much interest. As a whole he found the brain to be heavier and larger than the average brains of white men of similar stature, while the cerebrum rather exceeded the average while man's brain in certain details which have usually been regarded as indicating superior intelligence.

Like a Drowning Man.

"Five years ago a disease the doctor called dyspepsia took such hold of me that I could scarcely go," writes Geo. S. Marsh, well-known attorney of Nacoochee, Tex. "I took quantities of papain and medicines but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. I felt an improvement at once and after a few bottles am sound and well." Kodol is the only preparation which exactly reproduces the natural digestive juices and consequently is the only one which digests any good food and cures any form of stomach trouble. F. S. Duffy.

RALEIGH.

The King's Daughters Reformatory Young Criminals.

Last Volume North Carolina Regimental Histories. Biological Club Contest. Lamps For Confederate Monument. Nothing of Interest in State Departments.

RALEIGH, May 16.—There is general satisfaction at the decision of the King's Daughters to take up the establishment of a reformatory for young criminals as what they term their "State work." Undoubtedly they will have the moral and financial aid of various other organizations and of many private individuals. The State officials will know the great need for a reformatory.

State Auditor Dixon today made an address at Winston-Salem, at the closing of the public schools.

The fifth and last volume of the North Carolina Regimental Histories are now being distributed. It is declared to be the most interesting of all the volumes.

At the State Agricultural and Mechanical College here this morning the Biological Club had its first annual contest. Among the subjects were "Seed Regeneration," "The White Ants," "Toads and their economic value," "How plants are pollinated," etc. Julius S. Cates is the president of the society.

An eastern league of baseball teams is being formed in this State.

E. A. Johnson, colored, second assistant U. S. district attorney here, has returned from Petersburg, where he made the annual address before the negro State Normal School. In this school are a number of students from this State. There were 50 in the graduating class.

Only the merest routine work is going on in the various State departments here at present. News was never scarce.

At the base of the Confederate monument in Union or Capital Square are four lamps, each carrying three electric lights. These are to be removed and placed in the grounds of executive mansion and cannon ball will take their place. The lamps are not lighted and the iron columns are staining the granite base of the monument.

Beware of a Cough.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as the cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases which cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by F. S. Duffy & Co.

"A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him.
