The Charlotte base ball team, minus the head, arrived in town yesterday, bringing with them the world's record for consecutive games won, and entertained the Truckers at Athletic park at 4 p. m.

The Hornets won a clean victory over the home team, by bunching their hits in three innings, netting nine runs.

Applegate was in the box for the visitors, and pitched a good steady game allowing seven hits, and only giving two bases on balls. Quite a change.

Symons pitched a fairly good game, being handicapped by not getting the corners.

Weaver did fine fielding in center, and the infield did good work for Asheville.

There remains little to be said of the game, hence the tabulated score—

DOVER HIGH SCHOOL

Commencement—A Red Letter Day For Dover. A Literary Treat. Fine Program Rendered.

Thursday night at eight thirty as the curtain rose it displayed a stage beautiful to behold in its tasty and harmonious decorations. Altogether suggestive of the high order of exercises which were so pleasantly and faultlessly presented. The house was filled to overflowing, but the night was perfect, and the evening breeze, which is a regular thing at Dover was at its best. After prayer, the exercises or parts played by the little children came, interspersed with instrumental and vocal music. There was not a tiresome moment during the entire evening's entertainment, a very noticeable feature of which was the absence of the many little sing-song speeches, lessonless dialogues, "negro sermons" and the like, these all being supplanted by a series of exercises which were elevating and ennobling in the extreme.

"What is Potpourri?" was going the rounds in the audience as different ones glanced down their programs. The question was delightfully answered when the curtain rose on a dozen of the prettiest girls that ever graced the stage with maiden modesty and youthful beauty, a dozen young ladies perhaps, for they are just blooming into womanhood. And as they stood in graceful poise arrayed in Grecian costume, the beauty of the Grecian slave was not wanting. Assuming a classical attitude with their tastily decorated French barbelles they rendered most charmingly Dacome's two-part song, "Estudiente-ria." Then followed in perfect cadence of time a series of marches and drills which could not have been surpassed on any stage.

The motion song by thirty little boys and girls was rendered with military exactness, still with such harmony as not only to gladden the heart of each mother but their bright faces, sprightly movements and gleeful songs found a responsive chord in the heart of each one present.

The exercises on Friday night fully came up to the high standard set the previous evening. Each and every feature of the program was a perfect success, showing beyond question the wonderful talents and extraordinary abilities of the teachers in both the literary and music departments.

The Dover Cornet Band rendered excellent service and was a potent factor in helping to perfect the commencement exercises.

"Our Public Schools" the subject selected by Hon. S. M. Brinson was presented in a most charming manner. Mr. Brinson's address and delivery secure the closest attention and when he speaks upon the vital subject, "Our Public Schools" none could fail to listen and be aroused to higher conceptions of citizenship, of duty purposes in life and a broader sense of duty to his fellow man, besides being awakened to deeper love for his state and becoming prouder of the glorious heritage of being a North Carolinian. His speech cannot fail to accomplish much and lasting good in this section of the Old North State. A better man could not have been found any where for the high office which he now holds, Superintendent of Public Instruction for the illustrious County of Craven.

The literary address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Coggins. It behooves every North Carolinian to know this worthy son. Born in Buncombe county about ten miles from Asheville, he attended the public schools in his community and the high school in Asheville, and then entered Milligan College, Tenn., where he graduated with the degree of A. B. Later he took special work for two years in Chicago University, Christian University, Canton, Mo., gave him the honorary degree of L. L. D. and this year Grant University, Tenn., bestowed upon him the Ph. D. degree. Dr. Coggins is a gifted preacher. He has a prepossessing appearance, a strong clear voice and never fails to instruct and edify his audiences. He has held pastorates in Kansas, Missouri and Illinois. His last pastorate was at Decatur in the last named State where he had a large congregation of the most influential citizens in the city. He resigned this position to return to his native State and take the Presidency of Atlantic Christian College. This institution was purchased by the Christian Church or association called, Disciples of Christ at their last annual State Convention held in Kinston last fall. Dr. Coggins has spent the summer canvassing, preaching and organizing his faculty. He has secured some of the best talent in the United States to teach in this new college, with such an able body of helpers and such a man as Dr. Coggins at the helm we can make no other prediction than that the school will be a success from the beginning. Pardon this digression. His address was replete with oratory and philosophy, deep and instructive, yet his manner so agreeable and his voice so fine that you naturally think of Whitfield and his power in swaying a multitude; His theme was about the nature of man, his powers and possibilities. He presented lofty conceptions for our ideals and urged us to hold man up to the same high standard of nobility of purpose and purity of life that we naturally ascribe to woman. He emphatically condemns the inconsistencies of polite society and high life and declares that a man or woman is just as great as he is good.

Prof. Hargrove made a brief announcement of the work of the school year just completed showing what wonderful progress the school is making and the bright future that is promised it.

Through some zealous friends of our educational interests three handsome medals will be given the school next year, one for the primary, one for the intermediate and one for the advanced or high school grades. These medals will be given for scholarship, deportment and attendance. But the best thing for Dover High School is the Literary Scholarship offered to the pupil who makes the best record during the school year. This scholarship is offered by the Atlantic Christian College and was done through its worthy President, Dr. J. C. Coggins. G. V. Richardson.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Views of Wonderful Theorists.

Mr. Eddison—My calling attention to the assertions made by scientists on "Evolution" as published in the Journal, induces giving further views of those wonderful theorists. Professor Heikel of Cambridge, not long since, published a book, "The Riddle of the Universe." He said the world never had a beginning, nor will never have an ending, and he surely has reached the "As me," as a theorist, by saying there is no such quality as the Soul, that it's simply an innate principle, possessed by the smallest insect, and all animal life, all living things. The animals of the forests, the birds of the air, the fish of the waters, all up to and including the various races of mankind. He tells of the Bees knowledge as shown by their gathering honey, and preparing cells for storing it up for the winter food. The animals of every class, show their knowledge of preparing, supplying or seeking their wants. The various birds, all have different modes for obtaining their wants; some build nests of the downiest materials, while others use coarse straw, and even trash for their nests. He includes the wants of mankind for their comfort, and happiness, all he says, is simply an innate knowledge of their wants.

I must say, all this has a seeming plausibility; yet in this age of the world, its advanced culture, and Bible teaching, his attempt to ignore the reality of the soul of mankind, is simply "sounding brass and tinkling cymbals," and we are induced to believe, that the views of that "savant," (if not a craze) is surely a showing of ambition for literary distinction regardless of absurdities. He may however, have learned (as published a year ago) that "Uncle Tom's Cabin," yielded a profit of over one hundred thousand dollars. Hence perhaps his wonderful effect is to hear the jingling of dollars.

Next in line, comes an English scientist, who tells that the food supply of the world for sustaining the life of mankind, and all animals, will soon fall short of the demand. Owing to the annual diminishing of certain chemical matters, in the atmosphere, that is the chief food of growing crops, vegetables, etc. Y. d. he does not tell how soon the trouble will reach the world, This neglect or purposeful failure, to tell, plainly shows his innate English characteristic selfishness, had he told of the time, as he doubtless knows, preparations might be made to meet the sad calamity. He doubtless will hoard up an abundant supply of roast beef, plum pudding and barrels of good "hole Hinglish Hale for himself.

Next, a Washington, D. C. professor not long since, lectured before a "Theosophical class" and claimed that the intellectual world, had already accepted the fact, that "science is the voice of spiritual worth" and after much twaddle, in line with his visionary theory, he stated as a positive fact, that with the aid of science, nothing is impossible for man to do.

And eventually the veil will be lifted by science and disclose to the world, all of its now hidden mysteries. He repeated, that nothing is impossible for man to do, hence if the learned gentleman's theory is correct, the world need not feel surprised any night by seeing him slipping wise with the men in the Moon.

Next in line, a French scientist claims to have discovered the mountains and rivers in the noted planet Mars, and purposes to visit and have communication with its inhabitants, of course he knows their language. His aerial voyage of millions of miles, will doubtless be one of peril. However he may first confer with Aesculap, the God of the Winds, and get him to curb their fury against his being thrown out of direct line of Mars, and doubtless he will appeal to Jupiter to protect him against the thunder bolts.

In line with scientific research, an other wonderful human being, has by science discovered that a change in the order of time, is rapidly approaching in the movement of the globe. Hence soon there will be six years of daylight, and six years of darkest night. Poor fellow what will he then do? Let me ask, has he never heard of asylums for the insane when he doubtless might have a case home, all the long days and all the long nights.

"The indeed notable that an old professor, now retired, writing of the terrible earthquakes in the West Indies, says earthquakes will continue heaving up the Island, and they will eventually will form a new continent. He also seems to believe that the Millenium is fast approaching, and the Savior will then govern the world for a thousand years. The good old professor, may have recently read the 20th chapter of Revelation or may have a memory of reading it and has assumed the knowledge of a prophet.

Today the world seems flooded by scientific researches in many lines. All must admit that real scientific work is wonderful and doubtless in some cases, throws a brilliancy over the age. Yet, if these wonderful men can ever bring forward facts, realities to sustain their theories or assertions, that so annoys the world, They merit golden halos of glory, that the angels would envy.
