A MURDEROUS ATTACK.

One Negro Assaults Another With A Spade.

Two negroes who were at work loading a gravel car on the A. & N. C. road north of the city had an altercation early yesterday morning and as a result one of them lies at his home at No. 79 Elm street in a serious condition.

It is not known what the quarrel was about as the injured man is not in a condition to give any account of the affair and the assailant has gone away. They were heard to be quarrelling violently and one man raised his spade and hit the other on the head just above the ear breaking the skull and causing concussion of the brain. The other laborer brought the wounded man to his home and Dr. Duguid was sent for. He reported last night that the man was still unconscious and it was impossible to state what the result would be but at present it does not seem as if the man could recover.

Accommodating the Captain.

One of the sea captains in the employ of Stephen Girard had a rural Yankee's fondness for whittling with his jackknife and on one trip succeeded in getting away with a large part of the rail. Although admitting that he was not without the article, he really regarded the rail as a greatly improved in appearance. When the vessel came to Philadelphia, Girard went aboard, made a general inspection in the captain's absence and as he was about to return to shore, he saw one of the men who had been cutting the rail. The seaman told him the captain and then, a crafty fellow, might have unpleasant consequences were the captain to learn of it in a roundabout way, informed that official of the interview with Girard. The captain was in terror of a reprimand, but hearing nothing from his employer, supposed the incident closed. As he was about weighing anchor, ready to leave port a dray loaded with shingles drove down to the wharf, and the driver halted the vessel.

"There must be some mistake!" abouted the captain. "Our bill of lading doesn't mention shingles!"

"This is where they belong!" sung back the driver. "Mr. Girard himself told me to deliver them! He said they are for the captain to whittle!"—Philadelphia Times.

Farmers complain a great deal about the condition of the A. & N. C. crossing at the Neuse road. It is very rough, and some assert even dangerous. It should be repaired without delay.

The Pollockville and Trenton base ball teams played a game at Pollockville yesterday, the result was a score of 10 to 9 in favor of the Pollockville boys. Tisdale of this city pitched for the winning team.

News of the sudden death of Mr. W. S. Wynne of Wards Mill, reached here yesterday afternoon. Mr. Wynne was one of the most prominent merchants of Onalawa county, was highly thought of by all, and will be sadly missed.

Capt. J. J. Lassiter was having rigged aboard the steamer Howard yesterday, a hoisting beam with steam lift to load and unload the boat. This will considerably lessen the work of loading cotton, which has heretofore been very difficult at some landings.

There were 45 persons took advantage of excursion rates to Asheville yesterday morning. Among them were Messrs. S. C. Bishop, Wm. Dunn, J. J. Taylor and family, B. S. Galloway and family, J. M. Spencer and wife, C. C. Jordan, D. R. Davis, Iva Cooby and son, Charles.

To My Friends.

It is with joy I tell you what Kodol did for me. I was troubled with my stomach for several months. Upon being advised to use Kodol, I did so, and words cannot tell the good it has done me. A neighbor had the dyspepsia so that he had tried most everything. I told him to use Kodol. Words of gratitude have come to me from him because I recommended it.—Geo. W. Fry, Viola, Iowa. Health and strength of mind and body, depend on the stomach, and normal activity of the digestive organs. Kodol, the great reconstructive tonic, cures all stomach and bowel troubles, indigestion, dyspepsia. Kodol digests any good food you eat. Take a dose after meals. F. S. Duffy.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Tobacco Dust For Insect Pests.

Bulletin No. 64, Texas experiment station, "Insect Pests Attacking Truck Crops," is a valuable work. In this bulletin tobacco dust, both as an insecticide and fertilizer, receives unqualified praise, and while fully agreeing with most that is said, my experience is that it is not a "cure all." At present it is practically a waste product of tobacco factories, and the nominal cost at which it may be obtained entitles it to a far more extensive use as a fertilizer alone. Its unqualified use as an insecticide must be taken with a grain of salt, as both worms and bugs of some species will live and thrive in it. While an extensive use of it on rosebushes, sweet peas, squash, cucumber, pumpkin and muskmelon vines has given gratifying results, I almost ruined watermelon vines with its use. At least I was able to assign no other cause for the failure. I was using it unmodified on all other varieties of vines and reasoned that a like use would be helpful to the watermelons. The vines were varieties which were being tested, and they were treated the same as the others, being liberally dusted with tobacco, with the result that instead of pushing ahead they began to go backward and continued to do so until the dust was removed and the vines were drenched. This may not be conclusive, but it warned me from the use of it applied directly to the vines. I still use it on all other vines and work it into the soil both before and after planting.—J. E. Morse in Rural New Yorker.

Earthworms as Soil Renovators.

Earthworms are not soil formers, for they are seldom met with in soils that are destitute of organic matter. They are simply renovators, and, as a writer says, the richer the soil and the more it is manured the more numerous they are. Their action as soil renovators consists in swallowing earth, leaves or organic matter of all kinds, triturating it, converting it and then ejecting it over the surface of the field. In this way they very soon effect a complete inversion of the soil down to a certain depth, especially on meadow land which is left undisturbed to their operation. They even make additions to the soil by bringing up fresh matter from the subsoil. Every year a worm is driven by dry weather or any other cause to descend deep it brings to the surface and empties the contents of its body, a few particles of fresh earth. At the same time it fertilizes the subsoil by opening up passages which encourage the roots of plants to penetrate deeper, these passages being lined with excreted matter which provides a store of nourishment for the roots. On meadow land Darwin found these worm casts amount annually to eighteen tons per acre and on good arable land to about ten tons.—American Farmer.

Farmers Should Plan Work.

Mistakes in farming are often costly. We should learn to avoid them by planning work carefully. I made a mistake in not keeping all the stock my farm would support, instead of selling hay and grain. The fertility of the soil was not kept up, but was steadily depleted. I had too much under the plow, more than could be properly fertilized at reseeded. The same land was plowed too many years in succession before reseeded. Instead of raising corn and potatoes for market they should have been fed on the farm. Old pastures, practically run out, should have been plowed, fertilized and reseeded. I did not give near enough cultivation to crops during periods of drought. In dry periods cultivation should be most thorough. Plenty of small fruit should be raised for home use and market. Growing clover and plowing under to build up the soil have been found essential on my farm for its best welfare. I kept scrub stock too long. The time is past when there is profit in anything but carefully selected animals.—E. S. Barr in Farm and Home.

The Farmers' Power.

While some people are landing Johnson grass as a feed and valuable plant for their purpose Louisiana farmers are making war against the southern railroads for distributing and establishing this grass along their lines. A bill is now before the Louisiana legislature which if passed will require the railroads to get rid of the grass on their lands and keep it cut to prevent reseeded. It is stated that the railroads will fight the measure, but as it is supported by farmers it is thought it will pass unanimously. Here again is an illustration of the power of the farmer in a community or state when he turns his face in the right direction and uses his influence to secure legislation in his behalf.

Thinning Fruits.

There is no fixed rule about thinning fruits. The time to do the work and the distance apart depend largely upon conditions. One thing should be borne in mind, and that is thinning should be done before the seeds are well formed. When peaches reach the size of an ordinary peach pit, they should come off. As a rule too little fruit is taken off. Most successful peach growers thin from four to eight or ten inches. About six inches is the average distance. Peaches should have about the same distance, while plums will do well if left as close again.

Peaches and Watermelons.

There is at least one place in Georgia where there will be peaches in abundance, and that is at the farm of J. W. Hale. He has 125 acres, of which every tree is loaded with fruit, and he estimates his crop at 20,000 crates. He also has twenty-five acres in watermelons, which are looking fine, and he says he expects to get twenty cars from them if the season is propitious.

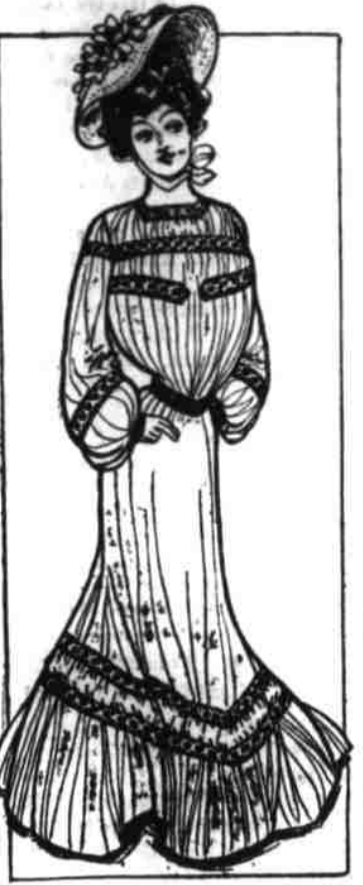

Curly Hair.

Persons with naturally curly hair are said to be possessed of more lovable and sweet natures than those with wavy or straight capillary adornment. On most occasions the fact that we are looking our best is a wonderful incentive to good behavior, and the woman with natural curls can discount her straight haired sister many a time and not be amiable? Straight hair was considered by the ancients as a mark of the gods' displeasure. Hair which was straight before sickness will sometimes grow curly afterward.

Summer Evening Gowns.

Flowered silks of all kinds are in fashion for evening gowns, and queer old dull blues with pink bouquets or baskets of flowers are very effective. The jacket waist is used with these gowns a great deal, with the wide bertha collar of heavy lace. Occasionally a jacket is seen with the skirt of tulle or lace, but as a rule skirt and jacket should match.

These silks are generally to be found at quite reasonable prices, unless some one of the newest designs is desired; then it is a very expensive thing, for these designs come only in the very newest and handomest qualities of white silk. Even the simplest flowered muslins are possible for summer evening gowns made on the lines of a silk or lace one, close fitted around the hips, always with a wide Spanish flounce and with ruffles on the edge of the flounce or on the skirt that is worn underneath. Ruffles of lace or embroidery trim the waist, which should be very simple in design.—Harper's Bazar.

The Latest in Linens.

Many of the newest unbleached linens resemble hosiery, and these and the twills, mercerized plaques and drillings of fine quality are used with silk vests and trimmings. The line woven holland appears among stylish tailor costumes, the heavy Irish linens are decorated with bands of real gimpure lace insertions. Large collars and overall embroidery are banded with insertions, and usually under the jacket of these beautiful suits one gets a glimpse of a tucked blouse of pink, yellow or white India mull.

A Hint on Spanking.

Mercury and Potash

ONLY SERVING AS A MASK FOR CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

They hide its repulsive form, and this serpent disease, stupefied by these drugs, lies dormant until the effects have worn off or treatment is discontinued, when it breaks down the mask and becomes as full of life and venom as ever. Mercury and Potash may dry up the sores and eruptions, but at the same time they drive the poison back into the blood and system, where it feeds upon the tender tissues, membranes and nerves, finally breaking out in most disgusting sores and even destroying the flesh and bones.

Mercury and Potash cannot accomplish a radical and permanent cure. They have a palliative but not curative effect upon this treacherous snake-like disease. These drugs produce mercurial Rheumatism, destroy the teeth and corrode the membranes of the stomach and bowels, causing inflammation and dyspepsia, nervousness and general derangement of the system.

S. S. S. is a Specific for Contagious Blood Poison, and the only antidote for the peculiar virus that spreads so quickly throughout the system, corrupting the blood and infecting every organ and fibre of the body.

S. S. S. destroys the serpent, and eliminates every atom of poison from the blood, it makes a thorough and radical cure of the disease, and at the same time builds up the general health. S. S. S. contains no minerals of any kind, but is a purely vegetable remedy and we offer $1.00 for proof to the contrary.

Write us about your case and our physicians will cheerfully advise without charge. Our home treatment book will be sent free to all who desire it.

RAINS BENEFICIAL

For Crops Last Week. Normal Temperatures and Weather Favorable For Farm Work.

The weekly crop bulletin for week ending Monday, Aug. 18th, is as follows:

The past week was a very favorable one, and on account of beneficial rains which have wet the soil thoroughly several times, a general improvement in the condition of crops took place. The rainfall was abundant throughout the central-eastern section, occurring chiefly from the 14th to 16th, and the only region of the State still suffering from drought includes a few extreme western counties, viz: Jackson, Swain, Clay, Henderson, Buncombe and Madison.

The week was characterized again by numerous severe local storms, especially in Mecklenburg, Cabarrus, and a few other counties, which resulted in considerable damage to crops by wind or hail over limited areas. The mean temperature for the week averaged about 76 degrees or nearly normal; the maximum temperatures were not excessively high, while at night the temperature has been agreeably low without checking, vegetative growth. There was abundant sunshine and the weather was generally favorable for farm work; plowing stubble land for wheat is beginning to make some headway; sowing turnips and fall Irish potatoes has been pushed; saving late hay and pulling fodder are underway.

Cotton continues to do well, but reports indicate that black rust has spread on cotton considerably and it is feared will injure the crop; shedding has diminished, and the plants remain full of bolls; cotton on uplands and sandy soil is opening, some prematurely perhaps, and picking has begun on a small scale. Old corn is practically made; late corn has improved very much and is very promising. Tobacco plants appear to be large and heavy in north-central portion, where cutting and curing are becoming general with fairly good results; in the south portion curing is approaching completion; in some sections tobacco is taking second growth. Peanuts and sweet potatoes are making heavy growth of vines and now promise well; clover and turnips have come up nicely; field peas are promising. The prospects for rice continue favorable. Grapes are ripening rapidly and are very abundant everywhere. The U. S. Department of Agriculture gave the condition of apples in North Carolina on August 1st as 80 per cent. of an average, which confirms the unfavorable reports on crop which have appeared in this bulletin.

Take a bath in Hancock's Liquid Sulphur. They are superior to those of the most celebrated Sulphur Springs, having the additional advantage of being made of any desired strength. They will cure Prickly heat, Eczema, and all skin diseases. For sale by F. S. Duffy.
