VICTORY FOR GREENSBORO COMPANIES.

The Greensboro, N. C. Fire Insurance Companies have just won a notable victory over the Southeastern Tariff Association, which is an attempted monopoly seeking insurance organization.

Some months ago the Southeastern gave notice to insurers that their fire rates would be advanced 35 per cent, at the same time seeking for the cooperation of the Greensboro Companies.

These companies refused to join in this forced insurance rate advance, saying there was nothing to warrant making the additional tax upon the insurer.

The Southeastern then began a petty warfare upon the Greensboro companies attempting to buy up or drive out its agents and thus get them out of the business.

But the Greensboro companies not only kept in business but backed up at home, secured so much new business, as to threaten the Southeastern's business, in fact has greatly reduced it.

The end has come, and the Southeastern has been forced to take off its extra tax of 35 per cent, in fact, the Southeastern is now in the cut rate business, as it has besides the 25 per cent, taken off 10 per cent, thus proving the falsity of its previous contention, when it advanced the rate 25 per cent, that the advance was necessary to protect it against loss.

It was only an attempt at extortion, because it thought itself strong enough to carry its point, and no insurer should be deceived by this cut into giving up the Greensboro companies, which have stood for the insurer against the Southeastern Trust Association.

The victory belongs to the Greensboro Fire Insurance Companies, and the business, all that is possible, should be given them.

THE WEEK OF THE ELKS.

Today closes the Elks Carnival, which has held the attention and time of this community during the past week.

It may not be called a great affair, this Carnival, a too strict analysis is not demanded to prove its value, but it has made a welcome break to those people who have not been away during the summer months, and whose amusements and good times depend upon what is brought to their doors.

It is not expected that the Elks Carnival would come under criticism, as might the "passing show" of one night. Its chief value may be said to be its merit as a fun producer, to those who daily gather upon the midway, to greet friends and take part in the confetti throwing, the merry-go-round, or see such freaks as were on exhibition.

It is these diversions, such as the Carnival just closing, gave, that go to make up the existence of a community, to give its people some change from the monotony of the every day kind of work and to bring into action the fun enjoying part of human nature.

Those who have visited the Carnival and taken part in its sights and festivities, best know of the benefits enjoyed, while those who failed to visit the Carnival, to walk its midway, see the shows which might have pleased, and did not enter into the fun of the confetti throwing have missed a good time.

The Carnival passes, but the remembrance of its various attractions will remain to be talked over by young and old. It has served its purpose as an innocent mirth producer.

TIME AND WORK NECESSARY.

A short road to an education, a two years college course equal to other colleges' four years course, and similar arrangements may be found in newspapers and periodicals, advertising in the interest of education.

which can shorten school or college courses, but there is no easy road to a good education, for the attainment of such an education can only be acquired by perseverance, time and effort on the part of the applicant.

The educational movement begun in this State, the seemingly great appropriations for one year, might appear to some persons as sufficient to not only start, but also prove enough, so that further large appropriations would be unnecessary.

But such is far from the case. The work already begun, the appropriations made and money spent from these appropriations, are but the precursors, if North Carolina is to be taken out of the list of illiterate States, if the illiteracy is to be eradicated.

There are no short cuts, by which illiteracy can be removed. It is a work and a great one, one in which the parent can bear a most important part, in fact without the hearty and continuous cooperation of the parent with the teacher, the latter cannot successfully cope with conditions.

It is the need of patience and perseverance, not only on the part of the parent and teacher, but on the part of the taxpayer, and every friend of education, which are so essential to the work of education and its successful progress in North Carolina.

It is no easy road for any of those engaged in this educational work, but it is a work, which demands keeping up even more than all other work, for through it must come the better civilization, the higher morals of a people, the knowledge of right from wrong, of good from evil, which can only come through the education of the youth of the State.

There is no time, effort or money expended in this educational work, but which will bring great results and rewards, if faithfully continued to the end, to the time when the stain of illiteracy has been thoroughly and forever removed.

RALEIGH.

Reduction in Number of State Convicts.

Big Demand for Wood. Tramps Make Their Appearances. Winter Tourists Beginning to Come South. Raleigh Mills are in Cotton Mill Merger.

RALEIGH, Oct. 10.—The number of State convicts is 830, a falling off in numbers of 64 in twenty years. In the penitentiary there are only 90, none of whom can be sent away to work on the farm or on railways. Good progress is being in harvesting the crops at the farm and 300 bales of cotton are already ginned and packed.

Another set of campaign appointments has been made for Governor Aycock and he will not return here until the 26th instant. On the 27th he will open the State Fair.

The demand for wood here is far greater than in many years. Prices have not as yet risen, oak being $2.30 and pine $1.75 to $2 a cord. The street railway is using wood for fuel.

The advance guard of tramps has arrived here. One of these pilgrims says that the number coming South will be large, and that they will go as far towards the Gulf of Mexico as they can, in order to dodge the cold weather.

It is also learned that more tourists than usual will come South for the winter. Moore county will have several thousand of these winter visitors. They are making that county rich, and in a few years it will be one of the richest in the State. Another great hotel is to be built.

The president of a railway of a hundred miles length, which has done an immense business in lumber, says that so great is the cutting of timber that he will have next year, to look for other lines of business. Not long ago there were over 25 saw mills on his road. This year his timber haul has not been half as large as it was last year. Miles of forest have been literally destroyed.

The State Superintendent today sent a warrant to Scotland county for five rural school libraries; the first established in that county.

Cotton mill men here are interested in the news that 70 mills have gone into the H. E. Fries combination or merger. Two Raleigh mills are in it.
