closing session of the Fifty-seventh Congress, and it is evident that that body will have its hands full in this brief session. Both houses will have abundant seasion will fall upon the Senate. Not to speak of the important domestic legislation pending, much of the time of the Senate will be taken up with the consideration of treaty relations. Reciprocity with Cuba bids fair to be a feature of the work of the session. Thus far the negotiations looking to the adoption of a treaty have not been very re- high enough to enable them to undersell warding, and a special effort to bring them to a speedy issue has been made in the sending of General Bliss to Ha- American people are not eager. They vana.

trial monopolies becomes vocal, a magazine article or a newspaper interview is emitted by a Trust official, usually a lawyer, to combat all the arguments which show these over-capitalized combinations to be mischlevous and unworthy of the benefits of tariff protec tion. Twice, at least, the work of representing the Trusts as beneficent and neo essary to our continued prosperity has fallen on Judge Gary, a distinguished lawyer, who is chairman of the Executive Committee of the Steel Trust. Yet with all the experience he has had in this line, he is not more successful than other Trust lawyers in making a consistent and convincing brief for his concern

Not all the legal talent in the land can harmonize certain opposing facts, which are vital.

Judge Gray fully agrees with President Roosevelt and with Representative Cannon and other Republican leaders that it would never do to revise the tariff in a way to deprive the Trusts of protective duties. The result of such a revision, he > avers, would be disastrons. Protection is needed, he declares, to maintain these industries, which employ so many thousands of people. Yet in the same argument Judge Gray glotles in our coming In a week will be ine convening of the industrial supremacy. "We win in the markets of the world," he exclaims, "because we deserve to win. We can do bet ter work than our rivals;" What lawyer can reconsile these two things-that our work to do, but the chief strain of the Trusts industries perish without protective duties, yet win in the world's markets because they do better work than their foreign rivals.

> If Judge Gary should be entirely frank he would say that the Trusts aid us in getting foreign customers in this way: Owing to the protective duties the Trusts may make American prices foreign rivals abroad. This is a form of industrial supremacy for which the would prefer lower prices for themselves even though nothing should be sold
