"Now, if you will please begin," the newspaper man said. "'In these days of stern reality and suffering and struggle for existence a romantic episode comes upon one with the refreshing delight with which a traveler in a desert beholds an oasis." Clickety-clickety-click went the keys, and then-"Isn't that lovely! Is it going to be novel?"

The newspaper man looked up in amazement, but it was utterly impossible to be angry with such blue eyes regarding him in admiration.

"No," he said, "Please go on, 'In the monotonous routine of Tombs police court cases, however, there was one yesterday behind which lay a story so romantic and so picturesque that it would almost seem to have been created by a great novelist who had striven to excel all bis past efforts.' " When this had been recorded, and while the newspaper man was wondering what he would say next, the young lady, smiling most radiantly, prattled on in this fashion:

"That's just splendid. It sounds like a real novel. Did you ever read 'Clarissa; or, The Forlorn Hope?' It begins something like that, only it isn't so interesting. Do you know, I never took dictation like that before. The last place I worked in I had nothing to do but copy letters. Oh, dear, wasn't it tiresome, though!"

The newspaper man felt his collar getting too small, but after swallowing something that seemed to stick in his throat he said as gently as possible: "Won't you please go on? I'm in somewhat of a hurry. What have you

And she read what she had written. Then, just as the newspaper man had settled back in his chair, determined to dictate to the end without giving her another opportunity to interrupt him, she said:

"Excuse me, I think my hair is coming down.'

She went to a little mirror in a corner of the room, examined her hair carefully, and then, after touching up the puffs of her sleeves and smoothing her waist, she sighed and returned to her seat.

"There, now; I'm all ready." ₹ For the next few minutes she had to Sweet Pickled Peaches, 30c per quart. so hard that she hadn't say a single word. But soon the page was filled, and she had to insert a new sheet, and that was her opportunity. "Gracious! How fast you dictate! It almost takes my breath away. But do you know I like it. I think it's good practice. Were you there when all that happened? My! I wish I could be a reporter."

The newspaper man went on with his dictation. He was fast growing hopping mad, but he hadn't the heart to say a harsh word to the girl. She was really very pretty, and as she became interested in the story a delicate flush mantled her cheeks, and it was a positive pleasure to watch her. But a news paper man has no time for pleasure during his business hours, and these charms did not interest him as much as they might have done under other circumstances, so he struggled bravely

"Oh," she suddenly exclaimed, stopping in the middle of a sentence, "did that really happen?"

"Yes, yes! Will you please go on?" "Well, the idea! I wouldn't have be lieved it. Do you know, I don't believe half what I read in the papers, but of course if you say so it must be true." "I'm very sorry I can't chat with you. Miss Brown, but really I'm in a great
