IS THE ST. LOUIS EXHIBIT TO FAIL?

Governor Aycock's letter to the people of the State, asking for contributions rich in honesty to the fund to pay the expenses of a North Carolina exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition, next year, is the last visible sign that such an exhibition is thought of in this State.

After the Governor's call for contributions, there was published the names of two or three contributors, and since then a dead calm has prevailed.

Previously, the State Press has had much to suggest and say regarding the value of a State exhibit at St. Louis, but nothing is now said.

The same good reasons for this State exhibiting next year at St. Louis, exist today as existed months ago, while the which does not pay its incumbert libermuch shorter.

The Legislature failed to provide for silence, the Governor has failed, and ac- the conscientions man. cepting the silence of the State press on the subject, it appears that the people do not want their State represented.

SUNDAY LIQUOR' SELLING NOT NECESSARY.

The present city administration, under Mayor Ellis, gave prompt notice when it took office, that Sunday liquor selling would not be permitted.

The liquor dealers and the saloon keepers of the city pledged themselves that there should be no Sunday liquor selling, that their influence, collectively, would be to assist the Mayor and the city, in enforcing the law against Sunday liquor selling.

And yet last Sunday it is said that beer was sold, because a city physician wrote a prescription which called for beer for his patient.

If the doctors can prescribe beer for their patients, which must be procurred from some saloon, there is no limiting the prescription to beer patients, for whiskey patients, gin or rum patients, may have equally urgent pains, aches or thirst, which call for drink on Sanday, and the satisfying or allaying of these aches and pains.

This community wants no liquor selland board of Aldermen are against it, and the law is certainly distinct on the subject, and against Sunday liquor sell-

That it is necessary for any doctor to prescribe for a patient on Sunday, beer, whiskey, gin or any liquor, which can only be found at some saloon, is simply preposterous.

The doctor who may have such a patient, ought to keep a keg of beer or bottle of whiskey in his office, and administer the dose according to the degree of the patient's sche, and not send forth his patient to ask some one to violate the law.

And it cannot be a good and sufficient excuse for any saloon keeper or liquor dealer to hand out a drink on Sunday use a doctor sends for it.

Drinks of any and every kind can be procured on Saturday, in quantity to relieve the most violent Sunday ache, so here can be no need for getting such a

DOES OFFICIAL HONESTY DE MAND PRAISE?

"Retired from public office a poor, but honest man," has become so customary in its usage, that the man leaving a position of trust considers it a necessary recommendation, a proof that nothing in the office has "stuck" to him, and he may retire without feeling the questioning look of the public.

Positions of municipal, State, and Federal trust, are being too generally regarded as places for personal graft, and the matter of getting rich in these offices, is not one involving any peculiar brand of honesty, the so-called old time honesty, just so the financial gain coming to the office holder may not appear in conflict with the special duties of the

It is because riches appear to come so often and so easily to men in positions of trust, that the office holder who retires rich and independent, without any actual or open betrayal of his trust, is That of Ernest Haywood. faithful performance in official duties, is worthy of praise, to say that just performance of official duties, warrants the special term of honesty, would justify that dishonesty should be applied to the official who retires with the super alundant money roll.

At Raleigh the number of consecutive days without rain was 23, the longest period of drought on record. Where no rain occurred the great increase in temperature which otherwise any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) would have been very favorable, served only to intensify the drought. Conditions began to be favorable for local thunder showers about the 21st, and since then in some dozen chiefly eastern counties irregularly distributed showers have fallen, generally in amounts quite inadequate, only two places, Lumberton and Raleigh receiving over an inch. The small amount of rain that did occur was very beneficial. The temperature aver aged over 10 degrees above the daily much about, such as counting up to normal, the maximum exceeded 90 degrees during the last half of the week reaching an extreme of 98 degrees at stimulating.
