Died of Typhoid Fever.
On the 20th inst., death again entered the home of Mr. W. P. Toler and took his third son, Penner P. Toler, a young man about 15 years old. He had been convalescent for some time and every body thought he was past danger when the relapse came.
This is four hale, hearty young people who have been snatched into eternity right in the morning of life when their future was so bright and sunny before them. Four bright young plants, as it were, just on the verge of maturity cut down by that merciless Typhoid Death. How sad! Oh how sad!
But Oh the anguish of those bereaved parents! Who can express their anguish while for the last few months they have waited and watched and prayed and at last have seen their darling taken away one by one and transplanted in the garden of eternity.
The father himself has been at death's door for some time, thinking, no doubt, that he would be the next victim. He is now convalescent and it is hoped will soon be out of danger. But he has two small children who love the fever and it is not yet known what the result might be.

Anti-Saloon Election Probable.
Anti-Saloon advocates of prohibition have been canvassing this city for several weeks, and report that from fifty to seventy-five per cent favor prohibition.
It is expected that an election will be called for in a week or two, to determine the wretched dryness of this city.

A TEMPERANCE ADDRESS.

A Forceful and Masterly Address Before Anti-Saloon League.

There was a large number of people at the Court house last night to hear the temperance address of Rev. J. Boyd Jones of Wilson. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League. It was a masterly speech and was greatly appreciated.
His ability as a clear and logical speaker was in evidence in every sentence. His clear cut epigrams carried much force and all listened to him with pleasure.
He took as a basis of his talk the text: "And they all began to make excuse." He told why friends of the saloon, both open and secret, made excuses for the institution. The first one was that it was the poor man's club room. The poor man's money goes to furnish that club room while the family suffers. Let the wife have the money the man spends at these haunts to make the home a "club" room with pictures, books and papers and the luxuries of life.
Another excuse was that it robs a man of 15 liberty, still another was that if the saloon was voted out, the town would be full of "blind tigers" (in answer to the last argument was that there would be no "blind tigers" if there were men enough; putting very strong emphasis on the word man.)
A good epigram that he used was in relation to political parties. He said, "The day of the party is past. The time will come when we will have men and not party in this country; and the best man will be in power."
He spoke of the preacher in politics and said that he was in politics in his town of Wilson as long as he stayed there. There is no half way ground for the preacher to stand on. If he is opposed to the saloon he must fight it, if he is not his position will be known as well as though he were opposed to it.
Speaking of prosperity of towns where prohibition prevails he compared the towns of Dunn and Bath. The former town is "dry" and he says it is one of the most progressive towns of the State; while Bath being one of the oldest towns in which much historical interest is centered, is a saloon town and is one of the least progressive towns of the State.
He exhorted the Christian people to forget their church differences and unite their forces to fight the common enemy. He blamed the church for the saloon. If church members had been alert and active the saloon would not have gained the power it has today.
He compared the saloon to a mad dog and made an argument for the dispensary system by saying if there were sixteen mad dogs in the town, would it not be wise to kill fifteen of them and chain the sixteenth so that he could not bite from 9 o'clock at night until sunrise the next morning.
The gentleman spoke for about forty-five minutes and made a very good impression.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjust this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at C. D. Bradham's drug store.

A Lucky Game of Chess.

A story is told of the Moorish prince Abul Hejex, who was thrown into prison for sedition by his brother Mohammed, King of Granada. There he remained for several years until the king, fearing he might escape, placed himself at the head of a fresh revolt and seized the crown, ordering one of his pashas to see to his immediate execution. Abul Hejex was playing chess when the pasha came and he had him secure for death. The pasha asked for two hours' respite, which was refused. After earnest entreaty he obtained permission to finish his game. He was in no hurry about the moves, we are told, and well for him he was not, for before an hour had elapsed a messenger brought the news that Mohammed had been struck dead by apoplexy, and Abul was forthwith proclaimed king of Granada. It was indeed a small favor for the pasha to grant, but it altered the whole current of the king's career.

Her Mild Suggestion.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Perkins, "will you join our progressive euchre club?"
"Certainly not, I have no time for euchre."
"Well, I won't urge you. But I can't help thinking that if you played the horses as well as I play euchre you'd have a lot of money now."—Washington Star.

Practical View of It.

The thumb of a piano filled the air with tremulous distress.
"Your neighbor next door seems to have a delicate ear for music," said the visitor.
"I don't know anything about his delicate ear," said the afflicted householder. "What bothers me is her powerful hands."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Beautiful Monument.

A beautiful monument has been erected on the lot of Mr. George N. Ives in Cedar Grove Cemetery by the Tucker Board of Wilmington.
The monument is made of Westport granite from quarries in Western Rhode Island. It is gray in color and made in the prevailing shape, sarcophagus style.
The stone has a handsome base of the same material and an ornamental coping. The top alone has polished surface and four columns on the corners are the only ornamentation. It is one of the most attractive monuments in the cemetery.

Senator Mills, 2:12%, now heads the Electric family. He looks like a coming two tanner.
The new harness track at Racine, Wis., is well started and will be in working order by fall.
Eddy White, 2:11%, is lame behind, but seems to be working her along and thinks she will come out of it.
Nella B., 2:14%, the winner of last year's Kentucky Futurity, has been transferred to the hands of Jack Curry.
Dan Patch, 1:59%, will start against the half mile track record during the meeting at Lima, O., Sept. 7-10. The Lima card embraces twelve harness races for purses from $400 to $500.

Camille d'Arville recently returned to the stage, appearing in San Francisco in "The Highwayman." She was in excellent voice and received a hearty welcome.
Charles Frohman has acquired the American rights to "The Sorceress," written for Sarah Bernhardt, which will be produced in Paris, with Mme. Bernhardt in the principal role.

The Genuine vs. Counterfeits.

The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless substitutes that are on the market. W. S. Leubetter, of Shreveport, La., says: "After using numerous other remedies without benefit, one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by F. S. Duffy.

A Literary Record.

Mr. Edward Little's record in the way of literary work was an article on Matthew Arnold in the "Day" that great praise. Mr. Little's best exclusive information of the event, which happened on a Sunday. He did not get to work until half past five the evening, and it was necessary for him to catch a train at six o'clock. By dint of obtaining to his secretary and writing hurriedly, he managed to complete his article in an hour and a half and a two volume number within one hour and twenty minutes. Such a feat has never been equalled.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Electrical Cookery.

The advantage of cooking by electricity is summed up by housekeepers who are using it as these: There is no smoke, flame or soot and of course no ashes or the dust arising from them. In fact, when in use there is nothing visible to indicate the presence of heat. The dishes and broilers look exactly the same as when cold, but the cooking goes on just the same as it goes on over a gas flame or a bed of coals.
Not even a match is necessary, and when one reflects what a boon the invention of the match has been to housekeepers it seems strange that with electric lighting and heating that useful little implement is likely to become practically obsolete in domestic use. There is no fuel and no large range, the apparatus being accommodated on any convenient table. There is no ventilation of the atmosphere and practically no emanation of heat into the room.

Of course it would be idle to say that an oven heated to the roasting point radiates no heat, but probably there is no system of cooking where this is so little as by electricity. There is no labor in maintaining a uniform heat and no danger of fire or explosion. It is quickly available and of high efficiency. If properly cared for the cost of service is no greater than for coal. For baking operations like boiling a ham or baking beans the heat can be turned to the low point, and the cooking will go on as rapidly as such viands require. In cooking cereals of a kind that may be done quickly a cup of water in the outer vessel is often enough and may be brought to a boil in a fraction of time.—Good Housekeeping.

Concealing the Trunk.

It is often impossible to remove a trunk to the storeroom, and those whose surroundings are always artistic will plan some means of concealing the useful but unsightly affair. A cover is made of cretone in pretty colors and graceful design to fit the sides and ends of the trunk and have a cushion made of horsehair or excelsior covered with cretone to adjust over the top. A deep frill of the material to follow the edges gives a pleasing finish.—Delineator.

A Farmhouse Kitchen Remodeled.

An ideal living room in a certain country house has soft, neutral tinted walls, bright, flowered window curtains and chair covers, crimson felt does duty for carpet, with here and there a warm toned rug or two. The furniture, a miscellany of quaint old pieces, has the most invitingly hospitable aspect, books and ornaments are everywhere and abundance of flowers. It is just such a room as any owner of a pretty country cottage may aim at having—an embodiment of the restfulness which in these hurrying days of ours should be made as much as possible the keynote in every scheme of furnishing.

This room was once the kitchen of an old farmhouse. Opportunities for picturesque effect presented themselves in every nook and corner. There were wide stone fireplaces, oak rafted ceilings, casement windows, painted cupboards and recesses, and about everywhere there hung the sweet, indefinable atmosphere of home.

Kitchen Aids.

Toward aiding the housewife the inventors have recently seemed to have turned their energies. Any number of new little devices have appeared in the shops which are to be used to lighten the labor in the kitchen and in doing the housework. For baking there is an ingenious pan for preventing cakes and delicate sugar confections from burning. Also a perfect steam cooker in which the housewife can put on beans, stews or viands that demand long cooking and turn to other tasks, assured that the pot will not boil over or stop boiling or boil too fast, as is the case with ordinary boiling kettles.

When the bread making day comes around there is an automatic bread kneader and dough making device and also a handy contrivance for beating up the raw material of cakes and puddings.

Narbonne Fritters.

Narbonne meat fritters may be made from the remains of cold boiled beef. Cut beef slices and place in a deep dish in which you have previously mixed a tablespoonful of oil, the same of vinegar, a little minced onion and parsley. Let the slices soak in this marinade for half an hour, turning them frequently. Make a stiff frying batter, adding to it the seasoning in which the meat was steeped. Dip each piece of beef in this and fry to a golden color in deep boiling fat. Dish in a pile on a doily with plenty of fried parsley.

Pineapple Lemonade.

Pineapple lemonade is refreshing and is prepared with very little trouble. Pare and grate a ripe pineapple. Add the juice of four or five lemons and a strip made by rolling together for a few minutes two cups of sugar and the same quantity of water. Mix and add a quart of water. When quite cold strain and ice. A maraschino cherry in each glass is an addition.

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bridges, alone and destitute. Such is brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havena, Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicine gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies: "I'm on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Liver and Kidney troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by C. D. Bradham, Druggist.

NEW SHORT STORIES.

The Persistence of Augustus.

Court officials returning from Strilix, where they attended the diamond wedding of the grand duke and duchess, say the grand duke told the following anecdote at the state dinner. Said his royal highness:
"Among the guests at my nuptials with the daughter of the Duke of Cambridge was the late King Ernest Augustus of Hanover, who, arriving somewhat late, discovered that Prince Consort Albert had assumed the prerogatives of the first guest, though they clearly belonged to him, Ernest Augustus. The prince consort had even gone so far as to sign the marriage contract before that document was submitted to the king of Hanover. Consequently Ernest Augustus was mad clear through, and, seeing that the procession to the dining room was forming, stepped up to Queen Victoria and offered her his arm. 'Excuse me, cousin,' she said; 'it was arranged that Albert is to conduct me.'"
"Never mind the arrangements," replied the king. "It's my privilege to conduct you, and I will exercise it to my fullest capacity." Saying this, he pressed Victoria's arm closely to his side.
"The queen tried to withdraw her arm and nearly succeeded, but Augustus caught her hand and held it as in a vise."
"You hurt," said Victoria, with a cry of pain.
"Very sorry indeed," replied the king, "but I won't let go of that royal hand. It's mine for this occasion, and don't you forget it." The queen finally saw there was no use protesting and marched away with his resolute majesty.

The Laugh Was on Gourley.

Mr. Gourley, a member of the Canadian house of commons, is noted for his intense hatred of the United States. Only a few weeks ago he made utterance that "the United States is a greater tyranny than Algiers."
Last summer, while a number of Americans were enjoying a trolley ride in a Canadian city, Gourley and an acquaintance happened to be on board. The meager criticisms which the Americans bestowed on things Canadian nettled the vitriolic statesman. An Italian

Apply It Outside and Inside and Cure a Cold.

The idea of an onion cure may not strike the fancy of the aesthete. However, the experience of those who have tried it is that it works wonders in restoring a racked system to its normal state again. There are three kinds of doses in the onion cure, or three onion cures, as you choose to put it. One is a diet of onions, the other is onion plasters and the third is onion syrup.
It is claimed by those who believe in the onion cure that a bad cold can be broken up if the patient will stay indoors and feed on a liberal diet of onions. It need not be an exclusive diet, but a liberal one. For instance, an onion cure breakfast includes a poached egg on toast, three tablespoonfuls of fried onions and a cup of coffee. Luncheon of sandwiches, made of Boston brown bread, buttered and filled with finely chopped raw onions, seasoned with salt and pepper, makes the second meal on the schedule. For supper the onions may be fried as for breakfast and eaten with a chop and a baked potato.
The strange efficacy of onions is well known to the singers of Italy and Spain, who eat them every day to improve the quality of their voices and keep them sweet. Onion plasters are prescribed to break up hard coughs. They are made of fried onions placed between two pieces of old muslin. The plaster is kept quite hot until the patient is snugly in bed, when it is placed on the chest to stay overnight. Onion syrup is a dose that can be bought of any druggist and is claimed by some to be unequalled as a cure for a cold in the chest.
All this is probably quite true. For to be done up with onions, both inside and out, would be enough certainly to chase out any self respecting cold.—Table Talk.

American Slang in French.

More than one friend of Paul du Chailly knows why he died poor. Though large sums of money were given him by persons who believed in his work, he was equally generous in giving to others. Both in London and Paris many stranded Americans owe their return passage to his generosity.
"I should like to see any foreigner attempt to twist!"
Here the conductor interrupted the patriot's declaration and drew from the Americans peals of derisive laughter when he addressed the Italian brusquely:
"Here, you take that blooming thing off the seat. What do you think this is—a cattle car?"

Rapid Transit in New York.

New York is a big town, all right," remarked Colonel Jack Flaherty, manager of the Majestic theater. "I never appreciated the geographical area so well as I did at 4 o'clock the other afternoon when I met a friend wearing a dress suit."
"What's the matter?" I asked. "Been out all night?"
"Oh, no," he answered. "But I live in Brooklyn, and I am going to take a Harlem girl to the theater."

A Purgative Picnic.

If you ever took De Witt's Little Blue Pills for biliousness or constipation you know what a purgative picnic is. These famous little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of bile without producing unpleasant effects. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken, but give tone and strength to the tissues and organs involved. W. H. Howell of Houston, Tex., says: "No better pill can be used than Little Blue Pills for constipation, sick headache, etc." Sold by F. S. Duffy.

MERCURY
A POOR CRUTCH.

Experience is a dear teacher, as those who pin their faith to Mercury find out sooner or later. This powerful poison combined with Potash, is the treatment generally prescribed for Contagious Blood Poison, but failure and disappointment is the inevitable result. These minerals drive in the sores and eruptions, and apparently the disease is gone and the patient believes the cure permanent, but soon learns better when the old symptoms return almost as soon as the treatment is left off. You must either keep the system saturated with mercury or endure the tortures of sore mouth, ulcerated throat and the mortification that one naturally feels when the body is covered with disgusting sores, rashes, copper-colored spots and other aggravating symptoms of this vile disease.
Mercury and Potash are poor crutches, and their use eventually breaks down the constitution, ruins the digestion and cause the bones to decay.
S. S. S., a guaranteed purely vegetable remedy, is the only antidote for Contagious Blood Poison. It destroys every atom of the deadly virus, overcomes the bad effects of the mercury and cleanses the blood and system so thoroughly that never after are any signs of the disease seen. Nor is the taint ever transmitted to others.
We will send free our book on Contagious Blood Poison, which is interesting and contains full directions for treating yourself at home. Medical advice or any special information desired given without charge.

AN UNFORTUNATE GIRL.

She's never in a novel, though she isn't rare. And she can't get into fiction. For, though her face is fair, Her cheeks as pink as roses, Her teeth as white as pearls, The authors all ignore her. 'Cause her hair won't curl.
She's very fond of dancing; To row is her delight. She glories in lawn tennis; She could golf from morn till night. But she sits out half the dance. (Least her ringlets all unfurled, And she must not be an athlete, 'Cause her hair won't curl.)
She loves to go in bathing. But really doesn't dare. She knows she's simply hideous With lank and straggling hair. While other maids are aping When the mercury is high, She bakes upon the sea beach, 'Cause her hair won't curl.
Her culture is a triumph When the days are cool and dry. But she bids farewell to beauty When the mercury is high. She doesn't crave a million Nor pine to wed an earl. But she prays for an invention That will make her hair curl.

ONE WAY OUT.

A Resident of New Bern Shows The Way.
Only one way to cure a bad back. Linctum and plasters may relieve it. They won't cure it. Backache means sick kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills. New Bern people prove this. Read a case of it:
J. H. Curtis, plumber of 71 Craven Street, residing at the end of Neuse Bridge, says: "I suffered with a weak back which started from a wrench I gave my back when seventeen years old, and it has troubled me ever since, sometimes so badly I could not work. I seemed to lose all use of my back at times and was hardly able to stand, and could not straighten to save my life, especially when I took cold. I never thought about it coming from my kidneys. I used plaster after plaster and liniments without number but without permanent relief. I saw notices about Doan's Kidney Pills and was induced to go to Bradham's Pharmacy for a box. They are a backache pill beyond doubt. I used them and have not had any former pains and my back has become well and strong. You can use my name as one who endorses it. I am glad to have you do so."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Doan's Kidney Pills and all agents for the U. S. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
