against the Treasurer of Onslow county to evioin the payment of coupons of the Where There's a Will There's a Way. "One of those things which go to bonds show that where there is a will there is a way is well exemplified by happening in a certain southern city." said a well- known former railroad man. "A man before his marriage had purchased a beautifully located lot in the city cemetery and paid $100 for it. After a while he married and some ten or twelve years afterward died and was buried in the aforesaid beautifully located lot, and his grave was carefully tended for awhile by his widow. When the big fair came off in Chicago and all the world was en route to that Mecca the widow took a notion she must see that show. As a result of a long cogitation over ways and means she had the body of her deceased husband exhumed and railroaded fifty miles away and reburied at a cost of aforementioned Johnson. Congress will be asked to consider the experimental issue of a special delivery stamp, which will direct the postmaster at the receiving office to break the envelope and read over the telephone to the person addressed the contents of the letter. Wherever such connections do not exist the letter would go in the regular way. In practice this scheme would be serviceable for quick communication with a person known to have a telephone in his ouse or office. Were the system established, every post office would be equipped with a telephone. The postmaster neral, who was requested by congeneral, who was requested by con-gress to consider the feasibility of the project, will soon submit his report.

A Tip For Inventors. It has been said that small inventions bring the most money-that is, a cheap, useful article sells most readily. However true this may be, the big invention, though it takes more thought to work it out, brings the largest returns when successful. The "lump money" is in larger figures. For instance, a street car electric power inwention, not an oversuccessful one, was experimented with in Washington (the ground contact system) out of which a promoter made $65,000 without one N Worthern, Mrs Barah Willis, 28 Henry of investment. CAUTORIA

Several turfmen were discussing the sharp methods of a certain bookmaker who adds to his income by money lending. He was conceded to be a hard man to deal with. "But I'll bet $500 that I can borrow

$1,000 from him on my personal recognizance," said one. "Done!" answered the crowd simultaneously, and as he could only stake one bet they pooled against him. Thinking he had a sure thing, he went off with an accompanying committee to see the money lender.

"Mr. Cash" (that wasn't his name), he said, "these gentlemen have bet me $500 that I cannot borrow $1,000 from you. I don't need the money, but you let me have it for a day, and I'll divide the bet with you."

The committee gasped, but the effect of the cool proposition was unlooked for. Instead of jumping at the chance Mr. Cash buttonholed his interlocutor and said:

"Did you make that bet?"

"I did." "You bet $500 that you could borrow noney from me?" "That's what I did."

"Then," in a whisper, "go and hedge." New York Press.

Which Was His Wifet

A certain Turk, according to rumor, was once married to a veiled lady in white in the presence of the sultan. As soon as the ceremony was concluded the bride mysteriously disappeared. The groom was led into an adjoining room, where stood twelve ladies all dressed in white, but without veils. "Choose from the twelve," exclaimed the sovereign, "her that is your bride." As the man had never seen her face the command bewildered him. "If you make a mistake," added his majesty, "your life shall pay the forfeit." The poor man walked up and down the row of beauties, but saw nothing whatever to aid his choice. "You have only a minute left," yelled the sultan in anger; "choose at once." Ten of the ladies, he noticed, gave him nothing else than a stony stare. One of them frowned, the other smiled. "The frowning one," he thought, "is my bride, for she expresses her displeasure and impatience at my ignorance. "No," he said to himself, "it must be the smiling one, for she desires to invite me to her." After debating the subject in his mind until his time was up he boldly made a se lection from the two. He was success ful. He had regained his bride. Which was she, the one who frowned or the one who smiled?
