A DEN OF DISORDER.

The Press Gallery of the French Chamber of Deputies. The press gallery of the French chamber of deputies seems to enjoy special privileges. The spectators behave as they please—that is to say, very badly. They shout, laugh, interrupt the orators or discuss among themselves the topics treated on the floor. As their voices are drowned by the noise made by the house and their manifestations are not easily located, the president and his deputies affect to ignore them and very often let pass many boisterous pranks in which that young and somewhat uneducated body is wont to indulge. When they are wearied by a speech they cry out "Cloture" as the deputies do to shut off a speaker. They greet speakers whom they dislike with groans or laughter. They make at the top of their voices all sorts of disrespectful remarks about the lawmakers down below. There was one reporter in the press gallery of the senate who, as he entered, used to cry out the famous phrase of a speaker of the revolution, "President d'assassins, je demande la parole!" As a rule, however, the deputies by themselves are a spectacle interesting enough, and the noise they make is distracting enough to monopolize the whole attention of the galleries as well as of the speaker; consequently the din of the press gallery passes unheeded until once in a while a journalist goes too far and has to be called to order or expelled.—Century.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Gotham's New Police Commissioner. Many political wisecracks claim that the administration of the New York police department has a great deal to do with determining national elections. These gentlemen say that the conduct of the metropolitan police force has an important influence upon the voters of New York, the state as well as the city, and that the state of New York is often the determining factor in national elections. Admitting the correctness of this conclusion, then the whole country is interested in the personality and record of the man who is at the head of the New York police department. William McAdoo, the newly installed police commissioner, is an Irishman by birth. He is fifty years of age. About the time of the breaking out of the civil war Mr. McAdoo's father, who was a schoolmaster in Donegal, came, with his wife and seven children, to this country and made his home in Jersey City. When William McAdoo grew to manhood he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1874. He was elected to the legislature of New Jersey and was afterward elected to congress four times. He was a member of the house committee on naval affairs. During his second term as president Mr. Cleveland appointed Mr. McAdoo assistant secretary of the navy, which position he retained for a time under President McKinley and was then succeeded by Theodore Roosevelt. The new police commissioner has been a resident of New York city some six years.

Italy's Dowager Queen. Queen Margherita of Italy, who is traveling about much since her widowhood and recently has been staying with the king of Denmark and his family, has always had a great love of travel, which to some extent had to be curbed while she filled the position of reigning sovereign's consort. The dowager queen is a beautiful and accomplished woman, speaking English and many other languages perfectly. Her greatest hobby is the acquisition of exceptionally beautiful lace, of which she has perhaps the finest collection in existence.

What the German Emperor Can Do. The Kaiser is proud of recounting the number of things he can do. He is as proud of being able to cook his own dinner as he is of having composed considerable music. He can also play chess, it seems; give a lecture, preach a sermon, sing a song, manage a yacht, a regiment or a battleship. He has also studied electricity and engineering, has written a play and conducted its rehearsal, drawn illustrations and caricatures and conducted a chorus.

Friendly Menelek. The latest information from Africa is to the effect that King Menelek of Abyssinia has a warm spot in his heart for the United States. William H. Ellis, who was the first American to visit the African king at his court, recently returned to this country, bringing with him substantial mementoes of Menelek's regard and warm assurances of the reciprocal feeling he entertains for the friendly overtures made by this rejected with scorn. A certain social organization called the Young Woman's club found itself in difficulties after the lapse of some twenty years. The "young" women were no longer rightly named. Mr. William H. Crane, the actor, was once consulted by some charming girls in regard to the name of their prospective club. Their object, they wrote, was the building of character. They wished that to be suggested in the title and also the fact that they were unmarried. Mr. Crane replied that he had a name for the club, "The Building and Lone association."

Telephone Repartee. "Who are you?" "Who are you?" "I asked you first." "Well, I won't talk unless I know who you are." "All right—neither will I. Goodbye."—Detroit Free Press.

Better Than Gold. "I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run-down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. ## A DISRAELI EPISODE.

How the State-eman Took His Brandy Neat in the Commons. I was stationed in London nearly two years during the seventies, when Disraeli was prime minister, and often heard him speak, frequently saw him upon Whitehall, walking home with Lord Russell by his side, once "interviewed" him and witnessed the solemnities of his elevation to an earldom. But the most characteristic and thoroughly Disraelian incident I recall has never been told.

About 1 o'clock in the morning, shortly after the return of the earl from Berlin bearing "peace with honor," I left the press gallery of the house to go to the cable office. Passing a stand in the lobby where a stooped shouldered woman was wont to sell spirits and "soft" drinks, I dropped into line with half a dozen men and waited my turn to be served. I paid no attention to the man directly in front of me except to notice that he was hatless and to comment mentally upon the dangers of such conduct in that cold and drafty place.

"Sixpenny 'orth o' brandy, neat," said the broad shouldered little man directly ahead. The dame courted, an unusual attention to a customer, served the spirits, and the purchaser drained the glass at a gulp. "Put it on the book," said the customer as he replaced the glass upon the counter. Then he turned, facing me, and made his way through the crowd toward the house of lords.

The man was unnoticed in the bodily light of the corridor, although his name was ringing throughout the civilized world, the Earl of Beaconsfield! The interesting feature of this episode was not that his lordship took a drink of brandy during a long night's session, but that he had an account with the woman tapkeeper and from sheer force of habit had walked over to the commons end of Westminster palace to get his "brandy neat" at the familiar place—Julius Chambers in Harper's Weekly.

The Mattie Girl. The mattie girl existed as early as the eighteenth century. In Japan girls in those days used to throw their fans and purses at the feet of the "leading man" as he minced along "the flower walk" to the stage. Pictures of these "heroes" were an early product of Japanese wood engraving, and these portraits were secret treasures of many maidens.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought. Bears the Signature of Wm. D. Little

Zola and Dreyfus' Book. The editor of a Paris paper, recalling what Zola had done for Dreyfus, called upon the novelist to have him review the unfortunate captain's book, the history of his troubles. The visitor found him at the big table in his library, doing his day's work. "Review Captain Dreyfus' book!" he repeated when the proposition was made to him. He got up and ambled round the table—a short man, with a stomach and no presence—grunting at intervals. Finally he said: "Why should I review his book? He never even read mine."

The Bigger the Better. A Scottish parish minister was one day talking to one of his parishioners, who ventured the opinion that ministers ought to be better paid. "I am glad to hear you say that," said the minister. "I am pleased that you think so much of the clergy. And so you think we should have bigger stipends?" "Aye," said the old man. "Ye see, we'd get a better class o' men."

SO DIFFERENT. Lots of Claims Like This But so Different --Local Proof is What New Bern People Want.

There are a great many of them. Every paper has its share. Statements hard to believe, harder to prove. Statements from far-away places. What people say in Florida. Public expression from California. Ofttimes good indorsement there. But of little service here at home. New Bern people want local proof. The sayings of neighbors, friends and citizens. Home indorsement counts. It disarms the skeptic; is beyond dispute. This is the backing that stands behind every box of Doan's Kidney Pills Here is a case of it: Charles F. Harget, a car painter at the A & N O R shops, residing at 47 Bern street, says: "I have found great relief by using Doan's Kidney Pills. My back had been hurting me for a long time, often so bad that I could not work. The kidney secretions were very dark and cloudy. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills the secretions have regained their natural color, and I do not suffer from the pains in my back at all. I can safely say all who are similarly troubled to what I was to go to Bradburn's Pharmacy, procure Doan's Kidney Pills, and give them a trial. They will not be disappointed in the result."

MELEK, KING OF ABYSSINIA. country. When told by Mr. Ellis that Consul Skinner and his party would soon reach the Abyssinian capital under the American flag and that the commission was coming to arrange a treaty which would help trade and was not coming to try to get land, the king was overjoyed. He said: "I will welcome them in God's love. That is what I long for—connection with a nation that is not looking to get some of my territory." Menelek asked Mr. Ellis to tell him about the great men of the United States, and when his guest had complied with the request the king cried: "Brave men, and I admire brave men! The king ought always to be a fighter, lest the devil come and 'reel his sheep!'"

ALWAYS AT WORK.

Congressman C R Thomas, faithful in Discharge of His Public Duties. Washington D C Correspondent: Charlotte O server, Feby. 14th.

There is no member of the North Carolina Congressional delegation who devotes his time and energies more conscientiously to working in the interest of all sections of the State than Hon. Charles R. Thomas of New Bern district. Mr Thomas is rarely absent from his seat in the House when that body is in session and his mornings are given up to visiting the government departments on matters of importance to the State and to work in the Committee on Public Buildings of which he is a prominent Democratic member. He has done good work for the state on that committee during the 56th and 57th Congresses and said to-day that if any new public buildings were authorized by Congress at his expense he would see to it that North Carolina received her share of the funds appropriated for such purposes. He has all the papers and necessary documents in regard to the proposed public buildings at Asheville, Winston-Salem, Kinston, etc; all in good shape before the committee, and his former experience and success as a member of the same and on the floor of the House, in presenting the claims of Carolina citizens is a guarantee of success next year when public building bills which have been prepared and presented to the committee at the present session will have precedents, and new buildings authorized.

Mr Thomas, has been loyal to the Democratic Party and to every interest entrusted to him; he has secured appropriations in his district for rivers and harbors, life-saving stations, public buildings and rural free delivery routes, etc, aggregating a quarter of a million of dollars in two terms of service. He has fifty rural free delivery routes in his district, and has many applications pending. An inspector is now in the district putting new routes in. Upon all public questions, involving the interests of the Democratic Party, or the people of his district, he has been heard upon the floor of the House of Representatives. His influence as a member of Congress has grown rapidly, and he is in a better position now to serve the district and State than ever before.
