

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and costiveness of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Kodol DIGESTS WHAT YOU EAT

Gives Health to the Sick and Strength to the Weak.

THE SUPERLATIVE GIRL.

She is a superlative girl! She says it is simply absurd that her tongue takes a terrible twist selecting the littlest word.

She knows it is perfectly wrong and thinks it is splendid advice that she should speak so horribly long—but they are so horribly nice.

However, since others object.

She feels there's but one thing to do; that short words she will have to select. It makes her atrociously blue.

She says, though, she's certainly sure she'll use but the tiniest sort. And that thus she her habit will cure. And use words deliciously short.

—Chicago Tribune.

Worst of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered. "For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c, its guaranteed by C. D. Bradham's drug list."

Trouble at Sea.

Harry Lehr and John Jacob Astor visited Philadelphia recently in a motor car. They remained overnight in that city, and during the evening a number of young men called on them.

Mr. Lehr was in good spirits. His conversation was amusing. The talk happened to turn to sea voyaging, and he said:

"Once, crossing the Atlantic, a tremendous row arose among the sailors. They fought down in the forecastle like a pack of wild beasts. Luncheon was going on at the time, and the first officer left the table to see if he could quell the disturbance.

"He had only been gone a little while when the hubbub began to die down. Everything was quiet when he returned. The captain called across the saloon to him in approving tone:

" 'Things seem to be smoother now.' "

" 'Yes,' replied the first officer, 'we have ironed the sailors, sir.' "

Driven to Desperation.

Living at an out of the way place, remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident resulting in Burns, Cuts, Wounds Ucers, etc. Lay in a supply of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth, 25c at C. D. Bradham's Drug Store.

Little Uction In It.

John Morley, the biographer of Gladstone, being commended for the serious teaching of his writings, said laughingly: "No; that is all wrong. You remember the French story of the monk who was a great friend of the devil—quite an old story. One Sunday the monk found himself too ill to preach, and the devil appearing in the sacristy he persuaded that obliging person to go into the pulpit and harangue the congregation. The devil preached a most masterly sermon, covering himself with shame and confusion. 'How now,' said the monk when the devil came down. 'You have pretty nearly ruined yourself with that sermon.' 'Oh, dear, no,' answered the devil; 'no harm done, no harm done. There was no uction in it.' Well, there is little uction in my poor books."

Woman's Nightmare

The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother passes, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying ordeal without suffering.

PELLETIER.

June 25th.

Crops are looking very well through this section, cotton especially.

We are having fine seasons and crops are in good condition. Mr. Walter Buck has the finest cotton in our section.

Mr. E. L. Thomas of Loco is visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thomas at this place.

Larl and Carl Tolson of Swansboro are visiting their sister Mrs. Anna Hay here.

Mr. Bryant Back is traveling on a backwoods road some time ago, he heard a noise on one side of the road, in looking he saw two small bears and heard a growling on the other side and looking he saw a very large bear standing on his hind feet.

Bryant says that no one will never know the balance.

Mr. L. G. Cannon ran a bear off one of his hogs a short time ago.

One of Mr. S. M. Rhems sows came up a few days ago badly torn up by a bear. We lose lots of hogs every summer by the bears.

Saturday's Game.

The game of ball played between Beeton Grove and Lima Saturday afternoon June 25th on Lima's diamond was only another evidence of Lima boys skill as ball players.

The game resulted in a victory for Lima of 21 to 2.

With Geo Perry in the pitcher's box and Alex Watson behind the bat Beeton Grove had very little running to do, seldom being allowed to reach first base.

Geo Perry pitched a fine game which completely puzzled Beeton Grove and with Watson behind the bat to save the ball as it passed the batter they struck out 20 men and only gave one man first base on balls. "How's that for amateur plays?"

The next game will be with Cove at Jasper next Friday evening at 3 o'clock July 1st. Look out Cove.

ask the readers of this paper to test the value of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Those persons who have used it and who have been cured by it, do not hesitate to recommend it to their friends. Kodol digests what you eat, cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. Increases strength by enabling the stomach and digestive organs to contribute to the blood all of the nutriment contained in the food. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is pleasant and palatable.

HINDOO FANATICISM.

Self Inflicted Tortures of Religious Zealots of India.

Self inflicted torture by Hindoo zealots is common in India. One man will lie upon his back, place a piece of soil upon his lower lip, plant in it a mustard seed and not rise from his position until the seed has become a plant of size. Another will make his couch upon spikes; a third walk with his boots filled with similar delirium; yet another keeps his hands clenched until the nails grow through his palms and out at the back of his hands, while others distort their legs and arms into atrophy. The extent to which Hindoo fanaticism will go, or native belief extend, was shown by a case reported in the Civil and Military Gazette of Lahore a year or so ago. The natives of Trevandrum were found worshipping as a god come among men a man who had taken up his residence under a tree on the bank of a river. For the first week or so he ate a plantain and drank some milk twice or three a week. Then he gradually enlarged the intervals, till after three or four months he took no food at all, but passed his time huddled before a fire, seeing no one, hearing no one. Exposed to cold and wet, to heat and dust, he sat thus without food for three years, "wrapt in divine contemplation." At the end of the three years he died, never having spoken to, or heeded, a soul from the time he first appeared until the spirit passed from his body.

That Throbbing Headache.

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and build up your health. Only 25c, money back if not cured. Sold by C. D. Bradham's Drug Store.

Heard in the East.

"You don't know enough to stay in when it rains," derisively said the can to the umbrella.

"Look here," retorted the umbrella, "such bluffs from a mere stick like you don't go with me. My motto is 'I'll put up or shut up' every time."

The Main Question.

First Artist—We must go to nature for our subjects. Second Artist—Oh, that's easy, but where in thunder are we to go for our customers?—Brooklyn Life.

Of course a man could learn to sew on a button if he wanted to, but most men find it easier to get married.—Somerville Journal.

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them as much so as it is to love the beautiful an pure. The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother passes, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying ordeal without suffering.

WHY HE DIDN'T

He was a newspaper man and a poet. Still the combination worked very well. The only trouble was that his work rather knocked the bloom off the romance of life. He found it difficult to be romantic after churning around after the stern realities, the tragedies and comedies of this mortal existence for sixteen hours a day, but he managed to retain something of the dreamer about him notwithstanding. He lived in love. Somewhere on this mundane sphere there existed a woman whom he should one day meet and love and be happy with her forever after.

She was to be his affinity, his twin soul, and they should know it the moment their hands touched. Naturally it was all rather hazy in his mind as yet, for he did not have much time for dreaming. Newspaper work on a lively daily and dreaming were not compatible, and as the daily bread, also cigars, depended upon the newspaper the dreaming was neglected.

He had also a rooted opinion that he should one day commit suicide. He often said as much to his chum Jim, who always looked cynical and fell to whistling softly with a faraway look in his eyes. He would talk about it quite seriously and discuss the different methods, but his preference was for the revolver route. When he got tired of living or things went wrong, he intended to try it, he said, and kept a revolver handy.

And so one spring day he fell in love. It was all in one moment. (He was at his desk writing away, like mad when the door opened, and she came in—a little, blue-eyed, fair-haired, childish thing, with Cupid's bow lips and a frightened manner. He looked up impatiently, and their eyes met.

They neither knew afterward what they said, but five minutes later he was at his desk, she was gone, and between his eyes and the paper was a fair, childish face, with Cupid's bow lips and blue, frightened eyes.

Before two days he met her on the street. Their eyes met again, and they both spoke. Then he walked home with her and carried her schoolbooks, and all the world was suddenly fair and sweet as a rose garden in June. She understood his every word, and he—well, he lived in a world of his own. He walked in a dream. The real things of life—the murders, marriages, divorces, even the men and women he met—seemed a faroff dream, and only Daisy and himself real people. He was in love and for the first time.

Her mother soon became aware of the state of affairs and decided Daisy was much too young for love or lovers. Her father told him so, and also that he and Daisy must see each other no more except as acquaintances. There was nothing against him—they were simply too young. And so she was to go to school, but Gordon could call to say "goodbye."

That night he went to see her and came away filled with wonderful schemes for the future. He was to become rich and famous, and when she came back he would marry her. That was his plan, and from that day he worked as he had never dreamed it possible that he could work. Before he worked because a certain amount of work was necessary to keep, grim want at bay, but now he had an object for which to work, and he threw his whole soul into it. It was for Daisy, and that thought kept him going. For two years it was constantly with him.

She was to be home in June, but went to visit friends and wrote him that it would be the 1st of July, and her dear friend, Bessie Thornton, was to come with her.

It was evening when she would arrive, and he started to the station to meet her. Instead a telegram met him. Daisy had been married that morning. She was not coming at all. The lights in the streets danced up and down, and he repeated it softly, "Daisy married."

His hand went mechanically to his pistol pocket. Only one idea was left in his stunned brain, and that was to carry out his old time morbid fancy and put an end to the existence that he now concluded was not worth living. He did not take time to argue the pros and cons, but felt a slight sense of disappointment when he remembered he had left his revolver at the office. He would not take long to go for it, he thought dreamily, and glanced at the telegram in his hand. "Daisy married." It must be a dream. The train came in, the train Daisy was to have come on.

The moments were like hours, yet he did not hurry. It was not far to the office, "Daisy married." One finger on the trigger, and then—

There was a touch on his hand, timid and soft. He glanced down and for an instant did not see who it was. Then he knew—it was Bessie Thornton, Daisy's friend. There were tears in her eyes, and he read pity—and was there something else!—in her soft brown eyes. Neither spoke, but neither felt the need of it. Once again he was looking into the awakening soul of a woman. A sudden light sprang into her brown eyes. Unconsciously their hands met, and they turned and walked together.

Next day his friend Jim received the revolver as a gracious gift.—Clarita Lee Isabelle in Chelmsford Post.

Sued by His Doctor.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50 which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coconella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was no." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by all Druggists.

FOR A HUNDRED YEARS

For a hundred years or more Witch Hazel has been recognized as a superior remedy, but it remains for E. C. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, to discover how to combine the virtues of Witch Hazel with other antiseptics, in the form of a salve. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the best salve in the world for sores, cuts, burns, bruises and piles. The high standing of this salve has given rise to counterfeits, and the public is advised to look for the name "DeWitt" on the package, and accept no other. Sold by F. S. Duffy.

The gold dollar of the United States is the monetary standard of Canada, British Honduras and Colombia, and it is anticipated that Mexico will attain the gold standard, with the American dollar as its unit, at an early date.

Dr. Dawson Burns has published his annual analysis of England's drink bill. The total amount of the expenditure on spirits, wine and beer during 1903 was £174,445,271, a decrease of over £5,000,000 as compared with 1902.

Lake Balkal, the "Holy sea," is, excepting Victoria Nyanza, in Africa, the largest lake in the eastern hemisphere. It is 3,100 feet deep, its bottom being 1,000 feet below sea level, and in area corresponds to Lake Michigan.

At Loughton-en-le-Mothen, Yorkshire, live John and Ellen Baxter, supposed to be the oldest married couple in England. John is ninety-six years of age, and his wife is ninety-eight. They have been married seventy-five years and have lived in one cottage over sixty years.

Fifty-three women have been regularly ordained and are doing the full work of ministers. Forty-five of the fifty-three are married, although some of them were ordained before marriage. Most of them have independent parishes, where they preach, make pastoral visits, officiate at marriages and at funerals.

Hundreds of boys from the Denver juvenile court will be sent into the sugar beet fields near Longmont, Colo., to work this summer. The boys will be sent out in parties of twenty-five each in charge of a probation officer and will be equipped with tents and camping outfits. They can earn from $1.20 to $2 per day each.

Rev. Thomas H. Lassie, principal of the public schools of Owensville, Ind., believes in flogging. In one day recently he whipped thirty-two boys ranging in age from seven to fourteen years. All the boys were in one room, and the floggings were administered only after the principal had been called to that room three times to quell disturbances.

A clever smuggling plan has come to light on the Dutch-Belgian frontier, where a farmer had some buildings put up, part of which were in the one country and part in the other. The customs officials, hearing strange sounds, made a search and discovered an underground passage for the illegal passing of cattle and pigs across the frontier.

At a recent examination of young men in England three of the answers to the question, "What is the Monroe doctrine?" were: "The religion of America taught by Dr. Monroe on the transmigration of souls," "The doctrine that people may be married several times," "One that has to do with the vaccination and smallpox; it was brought out by Professor Monroe."

The adulteration of and use of inferior materials in the making of candy are beginning to attract much attention in England. Professor Ooston recently lectured on "saccharomaniacs." He expressed the opinion that future scientists would place the evils of sugar gluttony on a pedestal as conspicuous as the drink question, as causing deterioration of individuals and races.

Fruit growers in California complain loudly of delays in getting their products to the eastern markets and blame the railroads for an insufficient supply of cars. Oranges have been so cheap in the principal cities of the east that there is some question whether a more rapid movement of citrus fruits to the Atlantic seaboard and the Mississippi valley would have bettered conditions for the California growers.

The man in Thomaston, Me., who sent the treasury department a half cent of 1820 a week or so ago has had his coin returned to him "with many thanks" by the secretary. The letter accompanying the piece of money informs him that the department has several such coins in its collections and therefore has no use for it. The sender of the half cent forwarded it to the department under the belief that the United States had none of them.

A TANTALIZING FISH.

The Ways of the Salmon Are Beyond Finding Out.

Who knows the way of the eagle in the air or of the salmon in the sea? Of all fish the most tantalizing, he has been the life study of thousands of men. Yet how little any one really knows about him, and how conflicting is the testimony as to what is known! If you want to get the idea that there is no such thing as abstract truth, you can form that opinion quickly by sitting in front of the fireplace in a fishing club some evening when the most experienced members are present and feel like talking. There is scarcely any proposition connected with the life history of this fish upon which any two men of forty or fifty years' experience in salmon fishing will agree. The biography of the fish is filled with puzzling blanks. You catch a glimpse of him in his infancy. He mysteriously disappears, returns during adolescence and then is gone again until, on his third appearance, the infant has grown to be fully mature. Who would think the childish smolt of a few ounces that slips quietly down river in the early spring could come back the same summer in the pride of youth as a three or four pound grilse? And the next time he goes upon what meat doth he feed that he jumps to maturity and ten pounds weight? What ports does he visit while he is off on his deep sea cruise? Where does he keep the chart by which, after his far away wanderings, he unerringly returns to his birthplace? And why do many grilse come to some rivers and comparatively few or none to others? In Miramichi waters there are in August ten grilse to every full grown salmon. In the Tobique there are scarcely any grilse at all.—From "The Trout of the New-England," by Frederic Ireland, in Scribner's.
