THE SCHOOL AN INVESTMENT.

It is often said that North Carolina is spending too much money on the education of the youth, that legislative appropriations for State institutions of learning tax too greatly the people of the State, and that local special tax levies for the district or public school are too severe upon the sections where such special school taxes are voted upon.

The real truth in the educational situation in North Carolina is that the school is an investment, that because it does not this year pay a splendid apparent and tangible dividend, therefore it is an unprofitable investment, and the tax payer should not be burdened with it, at least that the educational investment in the school should not go on upon the scale that it is now, that the aim should be lowered somewhat and there be less strenuous effort towards giving an education to every child in the State, and less endeavor in the betterment of the Public School system.

If it can be shown that the money invested in the school in North Carolina is at all dishonestly employed, if there is politics in the movement, if the appropriations made and the tax levies raised are for certain favorites, then there is being spent too much, for demoralization is certain to follow.

But there is nothing to show or prove that the people in charge of the educational movement in this State are not sincere in purpose, loyal in their efforts, and firm believers in the wisdom of the investment in the school, and feeling this way, their conduct has enthused parents and children, making the first ready to sacrifice, by paying increased taxes, and causing the youth to see the grand possibilities which the attainment of an education means for them.

As each school term passes, as year after year goes by, the splendid results of the school, as an investment, will be fully demonstrated in this State, by the development of its civil and social structure, by the gain in its industrial and commercial conditions. From the school comes the inspiration which promises that each succeeding generation is to build up this commonwealth into a greater and grander mold, which shall prove that those who first sacrificed to start and firmly establish the school in North Carolina did not labor or suffer in vain, but left a magnificent monument in the later results shown, to reward their efforts and fully repay all sacrifices made.

TEMPERANCE REAL AND PRETENDED.

The esteemed Raleigh Post does not stand to split hairs on the ethics of temperance nor does it stand and accept any fine woven theories that liquor selling per dispensary is more moral than selling it to the public per the saloon or the speak easy.

The next Legislature is going to have plenty to do on the liquor question. There is going to be plenty of sentimental and eye rolling temperance talk, which is going to serve to distract from the real legislation that is likely to be attempted, such as the incorporated "towns" where whiskey can be made, and if made as surely put into circulation along the remaining route.

The dispensary is held by some misguided and unthinking temperance people, as being an actual "moral" agent. Its business is conducted by such nice gentlemen, then no one can loaf around or drink in the dispensary shop, and it is not open nights!

But the advocates of the dispensary either deceive themselves or are dishonest. Look at the reports from the towns and cities having dispensaries, and nine tenths are of figures showing the great profits in the sale, and what money is to be gained for the town or city from the ever increasing sales. The one tenth best that the cause of temperance is the gain by the dispensary, is more than over shadowed by the nine tenths best of profits.

If the people of North Carolina are for real temperance, why employ subterfuge, and accept whiskey making or whiskey selling under any guise? The saloon pays its license, and the community receives the tax for this kind of liquor selling, the individual becoming the sole agent of responsibility by the law for the results of the sale, although those granting the license, are morally suarers in the results arising from the liquor sold. Through the dispensary every citizen and tax payer becomes an actual partner in the sale of the liquor, as each shares in the benefits coming from the profits.

Is it not time for temperance to be real, and not a pretence, or is there to be further talk of temperance, offset by legislation which shall offer the incorporated "towns," and the dispensary, as monuments for promoting temperance?

THE SOUTH'S FAILURE TO SECURE IMMIGRANTS

Two things are said to have greatly interfered with the South in securing immigrants for this section, the first being the fact that the South has, as the New York Journal of Commerce expresses it, "been asleep while the other parts of the country have been hustling" which means that this section of the country has not shown its resources nor advertised them so as to attract immigration that was coming to these shores from European countries.

Another reason is that whatever crimes are committed in the South are both magnified and exaggerated, and these reports have been sent to Europe to prejudice immigrants against coming south.

That the South has suffered through both of these, there is no question. Too many towns and sections of the South simply remain indifferent to any exertion. Their climate and soil may possess many advantages, but the outsider knows nothing of it, except by accident when the people should have boldly given publicity to their section's resources.

The matter of securing immigration is a business, not a matter of chance or luck. The west and northwest have always realized this, acted accordingly, while the South, with magnificent resources capable of the greatest and richest development, has quietly stood still, wondering why immigrants selected the cold northwestern sections of the country instead of seeking the comfortable and genial sections of the South, where crops could be grown every month in the year.

In the matter of crime, conspicuous for its horrors, the South has had some shocking cases, but there are crimes equally as atrocious committed in other sections far from the South.

The real cause for failure in this matter of immigration to this section is the lack of publicity, indifference on the part of cities and counties to let possible investors know of their local advantages through, advertising, and so checking all knowledge of the commercial possibilities, while the telegraphic reports told only of the crimes of every degree and kind which were committed.

THE HYMAN SUPPLY CO.

Over fifty years ago, our firm began selling paint throughout the South sales have continued uninterruptedly, and ten times greater than any other brand of paint. Read the following:

"Have used the L. & M. paint twenty years, houses painted with it eight years ago show better today than houses painted with other paints within two years."

A. B. Edgell, Alachua, Fla. "Have used all brands of paint, L. & M. Pure Paint stands better, and wears longer than any other paint I have ever used in my ten years experience."

H. F. Smith, Painter Concord, N. C. "I painted Frankenburg Block with L. & M. Paint, stands out as though varnished. Actual cost was less than $1.30 per gallon."

W. B. Barr, Charleston, W. Va. "I painted our old homestead with L. & M. Paint twenty-six years ago. Not painted since; looks better than houses painted in the last four years with other paint."

H. S. Scottfield, Harris Springs, S. C. "Used the L. & M. Paints for sixteen years. Painted three houses with it fifteen years ago; they have not needed painting since."

IMPORTANT CASE

Involving Constitutionality of Corporation Commission.

Facts From Truckers Eastern Carolina. Republicans Don't Think Blackburn Controls All Patronage. Declines Special Mastership.

Raleigh, Nov. 18.—Prof W. F. Massey has accepted an invitation to deliver an address January 19th before the board of agriculture of New Jersey on the development of the trucking industry of North Carolina. He will go to the eastern part of the State soon and make an inspection, using the facts gathered in his address.

Some of the Republicans are smiling at the statements that Spencer Blackburn is to control all the North Carolina political patronage. They say he will very probably control it in the 5th district, but not elsewhere. They admit that in case of a dispute he may be called in as a referee. They do not doubt that he and state chairman Rollins will pull together.

Today the Methodist Orphanage here received $400, the proceeds of the sale of land in Alabama bequeathed by a Mr. Cross. The orphanage is nearly ready for occupancy, though there is no heating plant. A temporary plant will be installed for this winter. It seems to be very hard to get a good one. Everybody recommends some particular plant and proves that all other plants are absolutely worthless.

Before Judge Purnell today there was a hearing of the case of the Southern Railway against the Greensboro Coal & Ice Company and the corporation commission. It came before him on the report of standing master Shepherd, who found as to the facts, that the refusal of the railway to place certain cars of coal on the side track at the company's ice plant was cause $146 of demurrage was unpaid, and that had this been paid the car would have been delivered on the side track. The case is very interesting indeed. The railway is endeavoring to test the constitutionality of the entire act creating a commission and it denies the right of the latter to take any action whatever regarding freights from any point within the State to any point within it.

E. J. Justice appeared for the Ice & Coal Company, Richard H. Battle for the corporation commission and F. H. Babee, William A. Henderson and J. O. Northrop for the Southern railway. Eugene S. Martin declines to serve as a special master in the matter of the suit of Jacobs against the Fayetteville & Wilmington Steamship Co. Martin was appointed Wednesday by Judge Purnell.

Not long since your correspondent suggested to the Anti-Saloon people that they would find some valuable information in Record Book No. 10 in the office of Revenue Collector. A member of the league was here today and quickly found that two men in his county had paid the $35 government tax. This is prima facie evidence that they are selling whiskey and violating the Watis laws. One man in the county was caught and had to pay $3500 and was also closed up.

The Day to be Thankful.

Gov. Aycock has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation and his injunctions are wise and should be observed. The proclamation reads: It becomes a free people, prosperous and content, in the midst of their prosperity to pause at least once a year and make acknowledgment of the source whence come all the blessings which they possess and in its acknowledgment to renew their strength for the accomplishment of better things.

I, Charles B. Aycock, Governor of the State of North Carolina, therefore, issue this my proclamation setting apart Thursday, November twenty-fourth as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer, on which day I request all people to meet in their respective places of worship and thank God for the blessings which He has given to them individually and as a people and to ask for His protection and guidance in the future. I earnestly recommend that on this day all people shall give out of their stores unto the needy as freely as God has prospered them.

Done at our city of Raleigh this, the seventeenth day of November, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and four in the one hundred and twenty-ninth year of our American Independence.

CHARLES B. AYCOCK, By the Governor. P. M. FEARSALL, Private Secretary.

RALEIGH.

Important Suit Before Judge Purnell.

All Available Convicts Sent to Roanoke Farm. Raleigh, Nov. 20.—Before Judge Purnell in the Federal Court today, there was a continuation of the argument in the case of the Southern Railway against the corporation commission and the Greensboro Coal and Ice Company. This case began as a small affair, but has now reached large proportions. The State, through the corporation commission and the coal company also, are putting up a sturdy fight.

A new carpet, of very handsome pattern is being put down in the Hall of the House of Representatives, which has been entirely refitted for the first time in a great many years. Next summer the Senate Chamber is to receive a renovation. A great deal of work is needed in the interior of the Capitol. The walls are dirty and scratched in many places, and there are all sorts of a shabby furniture on the upper floors. Almost the entire building needs renovation.

A school district in Sumner township Guilford county, has voted a local tax for its public schools. Guilford continues to be in the lead in this respect. State Veterinarian Tait Butler has returned from Wayne county, where he went to investigate a supposed outbreak of diseases among cattle. A few cattle had died in the section he visited, but there was no serious disease of any kind prevailing on his arrival. There is no epidemic or anything of that kind.

The October bulletin of the State Agricultural Department has been issued and is very good reading, containing the best addresses made at the Farmers Institutes which were held so numerous during the past summer and autumn.

Every available convict has been sent to the State farms on the Roanoke River, in order to gather the very large crops of cotton and corn. They will probably be there for three weeks and will then be returned to various contracts.

RIVER AND HARBOR APPROPRIATIONS.

What North Carolina's Water Ways Will Get.

Washington, D. C. Nov. 19.—The following sums are estimated for the harbors and rivers of North Carolina: Roanoke River $10,000, Scuppernon River $5,000, Fishing Creek $500, Pamlico and Tar Rivers $5,000, Contentment Creek $1,500, Neuse and Trent Rivers $25,000, Beaufort Harbor $2,000, Inland Waterway, between Beaufort Harbor and New River, North Carolina $1,000, Cape Fear River above Wilmington $300,000 and Cape Fear River, below Wilmington $150,000; Waccamaw River, North and South Carolina and Little Opdee River, South Carolina $23,000, Total for North Carolina $418,000.

Ten Thousand Churches Painted With L. & M.

There is not much money lost in buying one pint of ready mixed paint, but when a quantity is needed, then its big loss to buy any ready mixed paint. The Longman & Martinez L. & M. Paint is semi-mixed, and quickly made ready for use as follows: to four gallons of the L. & M. at $1.55 per gallon, add 3 gallons of Linseed Oil at 50 cts per gallon, thus making 7 gallons of paint for $3.10 or $1.16 per gallon. Wears and covers like gold. Sold by Hyman Supply Co.

Metropolitan For December

"Garon the Cast," a $500 prize story by W. A. Frazer, is illustrated in color by Charles Livingston Bull, whose work is too well known to need comment. "Once Upon a Time," an ideal story of love and life by Richard Le Gallienne, past master of imaginary, is illustrated in full color by Maxwell Parrish, whose wonderful tint effects have caused so much comment during the last two years. An "Uncle Remus" story, that which Joel Chandler Harris has never done better, is entitled, "Brother Rabbit and the Glazed Easter." Thomas Nelson Page contributes a charming "Old South" study "An Old Neighborhood in Virginia" being his theme. Charles G. D. Roberts in "The Terror of the Air" has done a little masterpiece in describing the pursuit of a wild duck by an Arctic goshawk.

Commander Booth-Tucker, who for the past eight and a half years has been at the head of the Salvation Army in this country, sailed for Europe.

Our Bow to Editor Stevens.

Wilmington Messenger, 19th.

The WILMINGTON MESSENGER of the 16th inst. makes most complimentary editorial comment on an editorial which I contributed to the Washington, N. C. GAZETTE MESSENGER.

The Journal feels greatly favored and complimented by the splendid endorsement of its esteemed contemporaries on this same editorial for it appeared in these columns on November 10th.

In further connection with this same editorial, the WASHINGTON, D. C. POST used it as a basis for an editorial in its issue on November 12th. It certainly must have been a good one.

The above is from the New Bern Journal of yesterday. Our brother editor of that paper understands the situation, but for those readers of the two papers who may not be initiated in the newspaper craft we wish to say a few words. The editor of this paper scans the New Bern Journal closely for local news and editorial comment. It is one of our most valuable exchanges. He overlooked the editorial page of that paper of the 10th, but at a later date found the article above referred to in The Gazette-Messenger published an editorial of that paper. The Messenger editor was struck with the sound sense and good reasoning of the article and reproduced it, with comments, giving credit to The Washington Gazette-Messenger for the article. We assure friend Stevens, of The Journal, that we meant no slight to him. The article first came to our attention as an original composition of the editor of the paper to which we gave it credit. We would suggest that Brother Stevens make a few additional remarks to the editor of The Gazette-Messenger. He is the one at fault and not the editor of this paper.

Any how the article was a sound, readable one and worthy of careful consideration by the Democrats of this State. The Democrats of the south should rebel against the serfdom under which they have for years existed. They have had no independence. They have allowed the north to dictate to them. We propose that the south shall go to the Democratic convention in 1908 with a candidate of her own. She can't twiddle the votes necessary to elect a president. Let her say to the other Democrats that they shall do as she wishes or nominate no candidate at all. Let the southern Democracy at the next national convention put up and insist on the convention nominating such a man as John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, for president and some man of equally as good political principle from some other section of the country for vice president and then tell the Democratic party of the nation that they may vote for or knife the ticket just as they please. The south has grown tired of endorsing the candidate the northern democrats have put up for the pleasure of knocking down.

(In justice to our Messenger friends it can be said of them that they were never known to willingly infringe upon editorial rights or privileges, so far as the writer can remember, so the blame is not theirs in this instance, and the above is more than satisfactory, in fully explaining the Messenger's position.—EDITOR)

Everybody's Magazine December.

The December issue of Everybody's Magazine will certainly attract attention not only because of the sensational interest of its installment of Thomas W. Lawson's "Frenzied Finance," but through the distinction and excellence of its general contents and the beauty of its illustrations. Some of the best fiction writers before the public are represented within its covers. There are stories—and good ones too—by Booth Tarkington, O. Henry, Elizabeth Jordan Lindsay, Inez Haynes Gillmore, and Hall Caine. Henry Ward Dyke contributes "The World Growing Better"—an article especially appropriate to the season of "Peace and Good Will," in which he discusses the development of kindness into a world virtue and the gradual elimination of cruelty. Another clever feature is Theodore Water's investigation of the beggars of New York, in which he starts out to solve the problem, "Should we give alms to the indigent who solicit in the street?" The illustrated features of this number certainly claim attention for their beauty and interest. The number opens with a superb series of drawings by Benson Knapp, reproduced in two colors, showing scenes of childhood. Some admirable character studies by J. J. Gould depict the personages in Booth Tarkington's vivid story. Other well known illustrators represented are Harold Foley, B. Cory Kirk, H. M. Watson, and O. H. White, who has come to be the favorite delineator of the queer dramatic personae in O. Henry's stories.

No Poison in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

From Napier New Zealand Herald: Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of all the cough medicines that were sold in that market. Out of the entire list they found only one that they declared was entirely free from all poisons. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, made by the Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa U. S. A. The absence of all poisons makes this remedy the safest and best that can be had, and it is with a feeling of security that any mother can give it to her little ones. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is especially recommended by its makers for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. This remedy is for sale by all Druggists.

OFFENSIVE CATARRH

I suffered for a long time with a bad case of Catarrh, and took a great deal of medicine without any benefit. I had a continual headache, my cheeks had a grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of your S. S. S. and wrote you. I commenced to use it, and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. MISS MARY L. STORR, Cor. 7th & Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 25, 1905. I had Nasal Catarrh for years for which I used S. S. S. with very gratifying results. I tried local applications for some time, and getting no permanent relief I came to the conclusion that the seat of the trouble was in the blood. Knowing S. S. S. to be a good blood medicine I began its use, and after using it for some little while it did away entirely with the offensive mucus in the nostrils, and I did not have to hawk and spit, especially in the morning, to dislodge the catarrhal matter.

The filthy secretions and foul mucus that are continually dropping back into the throat, find their way into the stomach and are absorbed into the blood. Catarrh then becomes constitutional, and the only way to get rid of it is through the blood. Write us if you have Catarrh, and our physicians will advise you without charge.
